MRS. DAVIS COLLAPSES IN COURT

Plea for Freedom of Son Causes Aged Woman to Faint

Breaking under the long strain of the trial, Mrs. Thomas A. Davis, Sr., mother of young Tom Davis, charged with the murder of State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger, collapsed today in the courtroom as defense attorney Robert B. Ivory opened his argument to the jury.

She was carried from Criminal Court to the first aid room where a physician was summoned to revive her.

Ivory began his arguments shortly before noon and it was expected that the jury would get the case late today.

Ivory completed his arguments at 2:10 p. m., after addressing the jury for two hours and 40 minutes. After a short recess, Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk, prosecuting the youthful defendant, opened his talk, urging conviction and demanding the electric chair for Davis.

ALIBI UPHELD

Defense of the 19-year-old South Hills High School senior is perfect, Ivory told the jury. He declared that Davis' witnesses had proved that he was home and in bed between 11 and 11:30 p. m., last September 3, the time and date that Brantlinger was fatally wounded. He argued:

"You must not hold the fact that Tom Davis served a term in the reformatory for burglary against him. That was two and a half years ago. His record between that time and the circumstances that bring him here is clean. Tom Davis is innocent of Brantlinger's murder."

Rallying to the boy's defense, a score of the defendant's relatives and neighbors took the stand yesterday to support his contention that he spent the entire evening of September 3 in his home and that he was in bed at the time of the shooting.

Included among them were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Davis, Sr.; his two brothers, Fred, 17, and George, 14, and his sister, Gracie, 10.

SURPRISE WITNESS

A surprise witness was W. S Reynolds, of East Peoria, Ill., who previously testified for the commonwealth that Davis "kidnaped" him and forced him to drive 50 miles in an effort to escape police. Reynolds yesterday was revealed as a guest in the Davis home since Sunday night.

In his appearance for the defense, he declared the youth's lips were swollen and his leg injured when he went to the Pekin (Ill.) Jail to identify him as his abductor. The testimony was offered in corroboration of Davis' statement that he was "third-degreed" by state police to obtain the confession.

Whoopee Linked To Weirton in Feud With NRA

WILMINGTON, Del., May 1.—(AP.)—Threats and cheers, a country club party for girl workers and cigars for men are among the means which the government alleges the Weirton Steel Company used to dominate the election of employe representatives.

The government is arguing in the United States District Court for an injunction to restrain the company with interfering with the holding of a second election under the auspices of the NRA; the steel company contends all is well at its plants and that reopening of the issue would precipitate labor troubles.

PARTY DETAILS GIVEN

James Lawrence Fly, representing the Attorney General's office, expects to complete his argument today.

Fly told yesterday of affidavits in which 17 girl employes said they had been taken to an exclusive country club near Weirton, W. Va., for a party, and while there urged by a department superintendent to give their support to the "company union."

Fly said the superintendent,

SHOT IN STRIKE RIOT KILLS BOY

LATROBE, Pa., May 1.—State and county officials today were investigating the fatal shooting last night of Paul Mehalic, 16, of Loyalhanna, during a riot at the plant of the Latrobe Electric Steel Company, on the outskirts of town, where a strike has been in progress since April 23. The plant was closed today.

The boy, with a small girl whose name police did not learn, had been playing ball in a field near the plant, and when darkness overtook them, they went toward the plant where trouble had been reported during the day.

When they neared the building the riot broke out and officials were told that deputies fired 50 shots into the darkness in an effort to disperse the crowd. One bullet struck Mehalic.

As a result of the trouble the plant of the Vulcan Mould and Iron Company, nearby, closed down today.

Bequest for Care Of Parrot Revealed

ASHTABULA, O., May 1.—(AP.)—A unique clause which provided income from $500 for care of "Max," a pet parrot, and proper burial for the pet after death, was revealed today in the will of Alonzo D. Davis.

The bequest, made 15 years ago, came to light following the recent death of Mrs. Davis, his wife, principal beneficiary in the will. "Max" died at a ripe old age.

2,500 IN MARCH OF REDS HERE

Pittsburgh Communists and sympathizers, numbering approximately 2,500, massed today for the annual May Day demonstration and marched through the downtown streets.

There were no disorders and it appeared that the day would pass quietly. Extra details of police, however, were held in readiness.

More than 2,000 Communists, many of them children, women and girls, formed in a parade at Fifth avenue and Dinwiddie street. With the arrival of some 500 others from the South Side, the entire grouped marched to West Park, North Side, where Mayor William N. McNair has established one of his "free-speech shrines" for the demonstration.

Some of the banners, carried by marchers, read:

"We want food."
"The Red Army sends greetings to Pittsburgh's youth."
"The Roosevelt New Deal means war."
"We want bread, not bullets."

POSSE TRAPS OHIO PRISON FUGITIVES

Convicts at Bay in Swamp After Fierce Gun Battle

COSHOCTON, O., May 1.—(AP.)—The three convicts who scaled the wall of Ohio Penitentiary Sunday afternoon were believed cornered by a posse in a swamp near Conesville, 14 miles south of here, today.

Roads in the vicinity were closely guarded as the authorities prepared to close in on the heavily armed desperadoes.

The trio was forced to abandon an automobile which they stole from H. A. Musselman, a farmer, near Hebron, last night, because of a blockaded wooden bridge.

Barricading themselves behind their automobile at the entrance to the bridge, the three convicts successfully held up two car loads of Coshocton County police who had picked up their trail.

After an exchange of shots the three escaped a net hastily thrown around them and made their way down the river. It was believed one of the convicts had been wounded.

Officers were unable to get within close range of the trio because of lack of fortification. For nearly an hour the two groups exchanged shots.

Under the cover of darkness the trio slipped across the long covered bridge. It was a few minutes before the officers ascertained that the convicts—Rufus (Blinky) Deeds, Arthur Koontz and Martin Schmidt—had abandoned their machine and fled.

Fearing an ambush in the bridge, the officers finally entered the covered structure only to find the trio had escaped down the river bank. The officers picked up the trail into the "bottom lands."

Eight shots were exchanged with the fugitives after the latter had reached the swamp territory.

CHILD RANSOM WAY CLEARED

TUCSON, Ariz., May 1.—(AP.)—The kidnapers of 6-year-old June Robles were free today to negotiate for a $15,000 ransom without interference from authorities.

Her father, Fernando Robles, issued an announcement to the kidnapers saying he was ready to meet fully their demands and that, at the family's request, official investigation had been stopped to permit unhampered negotiations.

Bernabe Robles, reputedly wealthy grandfather of the child, returned from a second trip across the border to Santa Ana, Sonora, where he told a hotel proprietor he had sought the advice of Manuel Gamboa, recognized in that area as a seer.

Passing through Nogales on his return, the pioneer cattleman expressed hope that "this little journey is going to lead toward solving of the kidnaping."

HUGE 'TAKE' OF WALL ST. BARED

Stock Exchange Survey Results Revealed By Pecora

By EUGENE J. CADOU
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—While the public lost more than 85 billion dollars from 1928 to 1933, Wall street brokers made gross profits of more than two billion dollars on the New York Stock Exchange, according to a survey presented to the Senate Banking Committee today by Ferdinand Pecora, its special counsel.

Pecora submitted a summary of answers to a questionnaire sent brokers covering the period from January 1, 1928, to August 31, 1933.

Gross receipts of some 500 stock exchange firms during the period which included both the heck- boom year of 1929 and the defl- tionary times that follow lotaled $2,153,218,671.

Expenses were only $1,262,007,- 668, leaving a net profit to the Wall street dealers of $891,211,003. Deducting $102,838,240 in bad accounts, the actual net earnings were $788,372,763. If the $44,- 794,923 net profits of the "odd lot" firms are added, the total would be $833,167,686, Pecora reported.

MILLION FOR PUBLICITY

Meanwhile, a million dollars was spent for "public relations."

The "pay dirt" of the broker was in commissions on the sale of stock. These amounted t $1,502,751,275. Interest brought return of $320,040,673, trading o their own accounts, $237,957,256 and miscellaneous income, $92,- 469,467.

In addition, New York Stoc Exchange members operating individuals obtained gross profi of $92,723,731. Their expen total was only $19,838,270, leavi a net income of $72,885,461.

In vivid contrast, was evidence before the committee showing that the value of stocks sank from a maximum of $89,700,000,000 in September, 1929, the month be- fore the big crash, to $15,600,000,- 000 in July, 1932. At the end of the period covered by Pecora's re- port, stocks had mounted only to $32,800,000,000.

The year 1929 was red letter for the Wall street firms, which garnered gross profits of $653,- 921,232. But in 1932, the gross had shrunk to $176,451,346. Ex- penses and bad debts that year, however, caused a deficit of $6,556,778.

SLUMP NO LESSON

The report revealed that many who play the market have been ward to quired no caution as a ret eastern and the big slump. In 1929, cus Kan- West on margin accounts numbere sal- 559,934, or 40.8 per cent, and the eight months of last year, t total was 432,115, or 42 per ce The numbers of cash custom for 1929 and 1933 were 811,9 and 596,376, respectively.

In support of his stand that stock exchange members have participated in many pools in which the public lost billions, Pecora submitted statistics showing there were 213 syndicates, pools and joint accounts in which member firms, member-partners or non-member partners participated.

The 1928-1933 period saw 324 of the 1,549 bond issues listed go into default.

During the tempestuous 1929 there were 1,124,608,910 shares traded. This total decreased to 425,234,294 in 1932.

Calm Moving Day Held 'Good Sign'

Decrease in Number Of Families Forced To 'Double Up'

Pa and Ma Pitt were moving today, but they were in no rush about it, even if this is the day of the traditional moving van classic.

And it's a good sign, this reluctance to change homes, according to the people who understand economic graphs.

The fact is, the Pitt family has been on the move steadily for the past few months, and the transfer companies were not surprised by the relative slowness of their May 1 business.

Indicating a 24 per cent decrease in "spring" movings, the Duquesne Light Company reports slightly more than 15,000 orders for transfers of electric light service in the county this spring as compared with 20,000 a year ago.

Comparable figures were reported by the gas companies.

According to the light company:

"The decrease is a good sign. It indicates that families are 'undoubling' and remaining in homes of their own, and that families that have been employed are apparently satisfied that they have obtained just about the lowest rent possible in their present homes, and are staying."

Pittsburghers have been slowing down on their moving since 1931, as shown by figures prepared by William Bradford, division manager of the Bell Telephone Company. In 1931 the company moved telephones for 19,589 customers; in 1932 this number had dropped to 18,446 and in 1933 there was another fall to 13,796.

Bradford said:

"This tendency to decrease prevails at this moving season. Of course we have fewer telephones in service than we had before the slump started, but the decrease in the number of moving subscribers is striking nevertheless."

All of which is good news to the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, according to J. Roland Brady, executive secretary.

The board has championed for a number of years a plan for "staggering" moving days and preventing a last-minute rush each May 1. Now apparently the natural course of events is aiding the board's campaign, Brady explained:

"If moving were staggered it would be easier on transfer men, the utilities and the real estate men. And, what is more important, it would assure the property owner of a year-round market for vacant houses."

U. S. BLUNTLY WARNS JAPAN OF TREATY RIGHTS IN CHIN

HULL DIRECTS MESSAGE TO TOKIO

Washington Asserts Opposition to Guardianship

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Japan today had a blunt warning from this government that the United States will oppose any Japanese effort to assume guardianship over China in violation of existing treaties.

The warning was served upon Japanese Foreign Minister Koki Hirota at Tokio by American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew.

On instructions from Secretary of State Hull, Grew called on the Japanese Foreign Minister Sunday evening and made a lengthy statement in which he said that in the opinion of the American people and the American government, "no nation can, without the assent of other nations concerned, rightfully endeavor to make conclusive its will in situations where there are involved the rights, obligations and legitimate interests of other sovereign states."

Grew also called attention to America's treaty rights in China and declared this government expects "due consideration" on the part of other governments of the "rights, obligations and legitimate interests of the United States."

In a significant reference to the sanctity of treaties, the ambassador told the Japanese foreign minister:

"Treaties can lawfully be modified or be terminated only by processes prescribed or recognized or agreed upon by the parties to them."

Grew further informed Hirota that this government's relations with China, as with Japan and other countries, were governed "by the generally accepted principles of international law and the provisions of treaties to which the United States is a party."

The government's action in taking this strong stand in the Far Eastern situation was disclosed by the State Department, which made public the substance of Grew's statement to Hirota. Previously the officials doubted if any statement would be made. Now they awaited with interest to see whether Tokio would make any reply.

Tokio Ignores Hull Warning on Policy

TOKIO, May 1.—(AP.)—The communication of Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, on Japanese policy in the Far [illegible] was pointedly ignored in a [illegible]tten communique given by the [illegible]eign office to the Japanese [illegible]ess tonight.

Although the Hull statement was published complete in local afternoon newspapers, and was the principal topic of discussion in diplomatic and official circles, the communique does not mention it except to reiterate its contention that the head of the American State Department indicated the United States' unwillingness to accept the Japanese "hands off Asia" stand.

The communique, which reviews [illegible]e recent declarations of For[illegible]n Minister Koki Hirota, Am[illegible]ssador Joseph C. Grew, of the [illegible]nited States, and Ambassador [illegible]r Francis Lindley, of Great Brit[illegible]n, was so timed and framed as [illegible]o give the Japanese people the [illegible]pression that Tokio had the [illegible]st word in the past fortnight's [illegible]ternational exchanges, leaving [illegible]finitely on the records of the [illegible]rld a declaration of Japan's [illegible]que position in East Asia.

JOB WARNING GIVEN SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The administratiton either must furnish jobs to unemployed through a vast new public works program or "kill them in revolts sure to come," former Mayor C. Nelson Sparks, of Akron, O., told the Senate Labor Committee today.

Sparks appeared with other municipal officials in behalf of the [illegible]Follette bill for a 10 billion [illegible] public works program.

[illegible]nzo Hammond, general [illegible] of the Construction [illegible] of America, urged in[illegible] public works expenditures. [illegible] the present recovery pro[illegible]am had done little for private [illegible]nstruction where four and one[illegible]lf million persons normally are [illegible]ployed.

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, today declaimed that unless the huge appropriation is authorized "we might as well admit we do not have guts enough to end this economic catastrophe."

"The world and our nation are at war—the enemy is hunger," Hoan said, speaking on behalf of the United States Conference of Mayors.

ACCUSES PRESIDENT

He also accused John C. Williams, president of the company, of using undue influence in favor of the company union and against the rival Amalgamated Iron and Steel Workers' Union, which was defeated in last December's election.

Federal government counsel charged today that the employes' union plan now in effect at Weirton Steel Company plants is "obstructive" to the aims and purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Fly told the court today that the petition seeks to enjoin the company from continued imposition of "yellow dog conditions."

Judge Nields asked Fly if he was "trying to import the Amalgamated Union into these plants." Fly replied:

"Not at all. We are asking only that the employes be given a free and untrammeled choice so their representatives will be free to act for them freely in collective bargaining."

New York Fare Fight Lost by Commutors

Old Postoffice Here to Remain In Service

Part of the first floor of the old postoffice building will be continued in use as a financial and business district substation after the new federal building is occupied, Postmaster William M. Turner announced today.

As a convenience to business and financial houses in the Fourth avenue district, one-third of the first floor space will be utilized for conducting mail business.

Mail collected there, however, will be taken to the main office for sorting and distributing.

WAGNER BILL'S CHANCE FADES

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—Further administration efforts at revising the Wagner labor bill were projected today but the outlook for the passage of an acceptable measure at this session of Congress was far from good.

As conferences were resumed today between Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, Secretary Perkins, Hugh S. Johnson and Donald Richberg, of NRA, there was no indication that the group was near agreement on what constituted workable legislation.

President Roosevelt asked this special committee to get together before Congress goes further with the bill.

In addition, American Federation of Labor leaders moved to consolidate their position for a government ban on all company unions. The present Wagner bill would outlaw employer-dominated company unions. The A. F. of L. made no secret of its readiness to oppose any labor bill failing to meet its demands.

NRA CHANGES UP TO MINERS

First convention of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, since enactment of the National Industrial Recovery Act and its consequent victories for labor opened today in Moose Temple.

This biennial meeting is the supreme governing act of the district union. Any changes in the organization's constitution necessary as a result of NRA will have to be made at its sessions during the next week, according to union spokesmen.

Speakers at this morning's session included Philip Murray, international vice president; P. T. Fagan, district president, and Councilmen Thomas Gallagher and Charles Anderson. Charles Miller, vice president of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union, was temporary chairman of the meeting.

Steel Men Ready To End Convention

With changes expected to liberalize long-established policies of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, the fifty-ninth annual national convention, in session in the No. 11 Elks Club auditorium, was expected to close today, according to President Michael F. Tighe.

Resolutions, one proposing a 50 per cent reduction in dues, were to be considered today.

U. S. CHAMBER TO ASK SINGLE TRADE LAW

Business Group Will Define Policy Toward Recovery Act

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—A proposal to codify in a single law what business can and cannot do—virtually new anti-trust legislation—will be considered for indorsement by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

This was disclosed authoritatively today as the chamber opened its convention here, drawing businessmen from all sections to discuss the New Deal.

Simultaneous with the opening there was publication of a survey covering 100 cities, revealing that a majority of the chamber membership canvassed believe NRA the father of many "detriments."

The idea of legislation to write into one law both fair and unfair trade practices is contained in a special report. It has the indorsement of important chamber leaders.

Apparently there was no idea of suggesting the replacement of NRA. It was said, nevertheless, that consideration should be given to the establishment of definite legal principles of fair competition, building on the experience derived from the Clayton act and the Federal Trade Commission act.

NRA Aide Bares Offers Of Riches By Racketeers

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—Dr. Wilson Compton, chief of NRA's trade association division, told a group meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today that trade association executives had promised three times to make him rich if he would engage with them in some industry "racket."

He made this statement to a meeting of the American Trade Association executives, a section of the Chamber of Commerce, Compton, explaining the future function of trade associations in NRA, said the power of the association would be very much up to the organizations themselves. He added:

"If I were to mention some of the nefarious 'rackets' attempted to be put over on the NRA, you would, I'm sure, join me heartily in saying as I do fervently say in a time like this: 'Thank God for a man like Gen. Johnson.'"

SHOW BOMBERS HUNTED BY U. S.

The United States Department of Justice today was revealed as working on the investigation of the Pittsburgh theater bombings.

Working on the theory that an out-of-state gang of terrorists may be involved in what police say is a "war" between rival unions of motion picture operators, federal agents said they believe an arrest is near.

Although their activities had been previously kept secret, it became known today that the Department of Justice agents had been working on the case since the first of the recent theater bombings.

Four theaters in the Pittsburgh district were bombed early Monday. The theaters were unoccupied at the time, but residents of nearby buildings and apartments fled to the streets in terror.

TARIFF BILL'S FOES SCORE CABINET

Slump of Wool Trade Laid to Speeches Of Wallace

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—President Roosevelt was urged to restrain his cabinet members today by witnesses before the Senate Finance Committee, which was considering the administration's reciprocal tariff bill.

Both Judge W. F. Boggess, representing the Wool and Mohair Association of Texas, and Fred R. Marshall, of Boston, secretary of the National Wool Growers' Association, said that writings and speeches of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace have caused the wool market to collapse because of fear that the wool tariff will be reduced or eliminated.

After Judge Boggess persisted in criticizing Secretary Wallace, Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, said:

"Some times the generals and captains make mistakes. If they do, you can't blame the chief."

Judge Boggess replied:

"Yes, but courtmartial facilities are available."

Senator Connally (Dem.), of Texas, commented:

"The President can't place padlocks on the mouths of all his supporters."

Manufacturers Fight Tariff Reciprocity

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, told the Senate Finance Committee today the reciprocal tariff bill might subject jobs and investments to uncertainties.

The association, he said, is opposed to the authorization of the President to make the trade agreements without refering them to Congress. He told the committee:

"No greater element of uncertainty could be added to the present difficult economic situation than the prospect of various industries being vitally affected, not only in themselves, but in their relation to all other industries, by the prospect of tariff changes made without their knowledge vitally affecting their employing capacity.

"Neither the jobs of employes nor the investment of individuals, partners or stockholders should be subjected to the uncertainties of agreements modifying foreign competition without a day in court."

AIR MAIL BILL MEETS SETBACK

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—The House Postoffice Committee voted today to reject the Senate-approved air mail bill and seek enactment of its own measure.

The two bills are different in a number of respects although both allow the Postmaster General to award one year contracts.

The Senate bill, however, permits bidders to appeal decisions of the Postmaster General to the Interstate Commerce Commission and direct ICC to determinate the air mail routes and reasonable compensation for service. The House bill contains neither of those provisions.

Where the Senate bill would reduce air mail postage to six cents an ounce, the House bill would cut it to five cents.

Wins Suit

MRS. MYRTLE MACK

SCHWABS WED 51 YEARS

LORETTO, Pa., May 1.—(AP.)—High in the wind-swept Alleghenies, Charles W. Schwab, 72, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and his wife, the former Emma E. Dinkey, of Braddock, today surveyed "the scenes of the days that were" and observed their fifty-first wedding anniversary.

Leaving their palatial home on New York's Riverside Drive, the Schwabs came to their summer estate for the occasion—"Immergrun," which is located on the edge of the "home town" where the last of the colorful steel masters is still known as "Smiling Charley."

Schwab, born in Loretto and educated at St. Francis College, nearby, once drove a stage coach between here and Cresson, the nearest railroad point.

His next job was in Braddock, where as a store clerk he met swashbuckling Bill Jones, ace superintendent of Andrew Carnegie's steel mills.

Schwab went to work for Jones driving stakes, a lowly position from which he was destined to become one of Carnegie's world-famous "young geniuses."

ATTACK TRIAL WINS DELAY

Frank J. Wong, Chinese laundry proprietor, of 1503 Fifth avenue, was held over for a further hearing by Magistrate Charles McCall in Center Avenue Police Court today, charged with pointing firearms and assault and battery.

Wong is accused of having thrown a brick at some children who were annoying him and having hit Thomas Sero, 6, of 1501 Colwell street, knocking him unconscious.

When the lad's father went to the shop to protest, Wong is alleged to have drawn a gun and pointed it at him.

The congregation also expressed displeasure with a companion statement that "American women should follow the example of Mrs. Roosevelt and serve wine in their homes."

Heflin Comeback Waits Verdict at Polls

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 1.—(AP.)—Alabama Democrats wrote their answer today to the essayed political comeback of former United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin.

Many other issues were up for decision in the party primary and Democratic leaders called it the most important Alabama election since Reconstruction days.

Heflin sought to unseat Miles F. Allgood in the Fifth Congressional District. Maj. Joe Starnes also is a candidate.

The state's critical financial condition vied in interest with reorganization of the state government, prohibition, reapportionment of representation in the [illegible]ate Legislature and local issues.

STATE POLICE SEIZE 16 IN RAID ON 'MASONIC' LODGE

OFFICER ACTING AS CANDIDATE OPENS DOOR

Rituals, Insignias Seized in East End Headquarters

Sixteen men arrested last night in a raid directed by Corp. Jackson R. Dodson, of the state police, will be given a hearing Friday afternoon before Alderman Harvey A. Lowry on charges of unlawful use of insignia, a misdemeanor in Pennsylvania.

Posing as a candidate to the Doric-Ionic Lodge No. 109, of the Independent Order of Freemasons, private Raymond F. Walsh, state trooper, was being initiated at the order's headquarters, on the second floor of 5602 Baum boulevard, when fellow officers burst into the place and arrested all who were wearing Masonic emblems.

BARGAIN FEE

Walsh said he had negotiated for membership through Harry W. Gaskill, of Greensburg, extension director of the order, who, he said, told the policeman he could become a Mason for $21.

Speaking of his initiation, Walsh said:

"After some quibbling, they reduced the fee to $15. So I signed up. The ceremonies consisted of stripping to my underwear and substituting a black robe for my suit.

"Then they put a bedroom slipper on my left foot. With the other one bare, I was told to walk around the room blindfolded, while some sort of prayers were said over me every time I completed the circle.

"When I heard Dodson knocking on the door, I ripped off the mask and let him in."

ENTER DURING SERVICE

Dodson and Walsh and another state officer, assuming the roles of prospective candidates, had gone to the place earlier in the evening. Waiting in an anteroom while Walsh went through the ceremonies, they signed up for membership and delayed their entrance until the ritual was under way. They then presented a warrant and walked in on the procedure.

Those arrested and released on $300 bail after a preliminary hearing were: Charles S. Edman, 6470 Monitor street, deputy grand master; Morris Kann, 634 Hastings street, grand treasurer; Harry M. Alter, 2123 Shady avenue, local treasurer; Louis E. Cohen, 5626 Callowhill street; Albert Rosen, Hyman Darling, David Bernstein, 2630 Wylie avenue; Jacob Stein, 6435 Frankstown avenue; Joseph Mullen, 5134 Penn avenue; Samuel Kamen, 311 Coltart square; G. L. Beck, Shore avenue; C. H. Reese and E. E. Chittsler, Blawnox; Harry W. Gaskill, Greensburg; Dr. James Earl Fleming, 227 Grant avenue, Millvale, grand secretary of the national lodge, and Abraham Litlow, of the Wallace Building, East End.

Among the articles seized were ritual regalia, three books of treasurers' reports and a box containing a trowel and other emblematic implements.

SAY LODGE CHARTERED

After everyone had been searched, only those wearing Masonic emblems were held. Following the search, several pins and lapel buttons were found discarded in various parts of the room.

According to Dodson, state police and the District Attorney's office have been working on the case for three weeks. Asked what prompted the investigation, he said:

"We acted after receiving complaints from disgruntled persons who thought they were flimflammed."

Pleading ignorance as to the reason for the raid, members of the lodge said it was legally chartered in November, 1930, and has been functioning since then, with meetings being held three nights every month.

ORDER'S NAME FORGOTTEN

According to Dodson, another similar lodge is in McKeesport, and there were formerly units in Johnstown and Jeannette.

Though members admitted that the order is not recognized by the Free and Accepted Masons, they declared membership in it entitled a person to Masonic privileges outside the state.

The highest local official of the order, C. S. Edman, a printer, could not remember the legal name of the organization when asked it. He said:

"It's long and complicated. I can't recall it right now."

A Lodge vs. State Police

The scenes in the Doric-Ionic Lodge's rooms in Baum boulevard as state troopers (in mufti) struck with a raiding party during an initiation ceremony. Sixteen were arrested, charged with the unlawful use of insignia (that of the Free and Accepted Masons). The lodge officers protested that the lodge was founded in 1930, lawfully registered at Harrisburg.

HEPBURN WAITS DIVORCE IN YUCATAN

Screen Star Talks of Pictures, Mum on Marital Rift

MERIDA, Yucatan, May 1.—(AP.)—Katharine Hepburn, red-haired star of the screen and stage, is stopping at a hotel here pending decision of her petition for divorce from her businessman-husband, Ludlow Ogden Smith, of New York.

Miss Hepburn arrived April 22, the Associated Press correspondent learned, accompanied by her friend, Laura Harding.

She went unrecognized until last night.

Then, readily admitting her identity, Miss Hepburn discussed pictures, but declined to comment on her divorce action. A decree is expected to be granted within a few days.

She registered at the Hotel Itza under the name of Katharine Smith and through a local attorney, Francisco Arcovedo Guillermo, filed suit immediately for a divorce.

WED IN 1928

The action sets forth that she and her husband were married December 12, 1928, in West Hartford, Conn. The actress said:

"I am not accustomed to making statements on my private life."

She added she was interested in getting an idea of what Yucatan is like, saying:

"I was surprised and favorably impressed with the culture and civilization of both ancient and modern Yucatan."

She already has visited the famous Mayan ruins at Chichen Itza and Uxmal. She also has visited the large hemp estate at Mukuyche and the beautiful grottoes there.

Miss Hepburn had a fresh coat of tan today after an excursion to the beach about 20 miles from Merida yesterday for a swim in the sea and a sun bath.

MUM ON RIFT

Reports that Miss Hepburn, star of "Little Women," "Morning Glory" and "Spitfire" on the screen and of the short-lived Broadway play "The Lake," was considering divorcing her husband, a New York businessman, have been current for months. Miss Hepburn's reply to inquirers has always been that the matter was personal.

Smith himself, in New York, declined to comment. He is 32 years old and his family is prominent socially in Philadelphia.

Smith and Miss Hepburn, whose father is a well known Hartford physician, were married December 12, 1928, before Miss Hepburn had attained stage success. Broadway took notice of her, four years later, when she appeared in the stage play, "The Warrior's Husband."

Hollywood was unaware for some time after Miss Hepburn began making pictures there that she was married. Her husband remained in New York. Recently he was quoted as saying:

"I do not expect Katharine to interfere with my career, so why should I interfere with hers?"

RICH PHYSICIAN GETS KIDNAP THREAT

Chicagoan Warned to Pay $50,000 Under Death Penalty

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP.)—A letter demanding $50,000 under threat of kidnaping and death was turned over today to police by Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, reputedly wealthy West Side physician, who in 1931 was ordered by the Federal Court to pay the government $192,442.35 in income tax, penalties and interest for the years 1921 to 1929 inclusive.

The letter, said by Police Lieut. Patrick Bonner to have been typewritten and mailed from a West Side postoffice station, read as follows:

"Doctor, you are on the list for $50,000 or kidnaping. Your time is up now. Have $50,000 ready or we will kill you.
"$50,000 OR DEATH."

In reporting receipt of the letter, Dr. Nathanson said he did not have $5,000, much less $50,000.

The letter was sent to his West Side office, but re-addressed by the postoffice to his home, police said.

Bremer Kidnap Plot Solution Near

International News Service.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Hinting that a solution of the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, was close at hand, United States District Attorney Dwight Green today directed further questioning of John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, former legislator, and three men held as co-conspirators.

McLaughlin has admitted handling $53,000 of the huge Bremer ransom.

Federal agents will continue to question the prisoners, Prosecutor Green said, in an effort to learn further details of the kidnaping plot.

Indictments will be asked of the federal grand jury at St. Paul within 24 hours, Prosecutor Green asserted, and the four prisoners will be taken there as soon as the indictments are returned and certified copies received here.

Held with McLaughlin are his 17-year-old son, John, Jr.; William Vidler and Philip Delaney. Vidler when arrested had $2,600 of the marked ransom money in his possession. Young McLaughlin had $85 of the ransom money in a safe deposit box.

2 DAUGHTERS THREATENED

CINCINNATI, May 1.—(AP.)—His daughter threatened with kidnaping unless $5,000 is paid, Dr. D. F. Russell, well-to-do Van Wert (O.) physician, took her back home yesterday for safekeeping while he investigates "in my own way."

The girl, Virginia Russell, 20, student in music conservatories here, has received seven letters and several telephone calls in the last week threatening her with kidnaping, he declared.

The doctor contended he believed some residents of Van Wert are involved, that "they have connections in Cincinnati, and their connections here are of the underworld."

EDMONTON, Alberta, May 1.—(AP.)—Police said today they were investigating a case in which the Rev. J. M. Comynching, rector of Christ Church here, received a note threatening the kidnaping of his 21-year-old daughter, Margaret, unless $5,000 was paid.

DILLINGER GIRL TRIAL SPEEDED

By THOMAS F. CULLEN
International News Service.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 1.—While police and federal operatives marked time in the hunt for Desperado John Dillinger, United States District Attorney George Sullivan today prepared to bring to trial in Federal Court four persons accused of harboring the fugitive killer.

Evelyn Frechette, "gun moll" of Dillinger, and Beth Green, whose hoodlum husband was slain by federal agents here April 3, will be arraigned tomorrow on charges of conspiring to conceal the Indiana phantom gunman, Prosecutor Sullivan announced.

Federal Judge M. M. Joyce was scheduled today to hand down a decision on the application for bail reduction filed by Dr. Clayton J. May and Mrs. Augustus Salt. They are held in $50,000 bond on charges of treating the gang leader's wounded leg.

All four defendants will be brought to trial at an early date, according to Sullivan, and indications today were that the trial would begin late this week or early next.

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, At Sea, May 1.—(INS.)—Although returning to the United States a prisoner and without relatives aboard this ship, Samuel Insull found out toady he is not entirely freindless.

When a button came off his smoking jacket, Insull, who used to leave such things to his valet, was somewhat non-plussed until Mrs. Ralph Karger, of Forest Hills, New York, came to his rescue. She deftly replaced the button and tightened another that threatened to come loose.

Insull is popular with the women passengers.

Weather Conditions

Pressure is moderately high over the eastern states (New York, 30.54); north of the Lake Superior region (Port Arthur, Ont., 30.24), and over Northern Saskatchewan (Prince Albert, 30.20), and low over the plateau (Modeno, Utah, 29.46), with a trough extending northeastward to Southern Minnesota. There have been showers, mostly light, in the southeastern states, over the Canadian Northwest and portions of North Dakota, Montana, Kansas, Western Texas and the far West. Weather continues fair in the central valleys, although there is some cloudiness. There has been little change in temperature since yesterday morning, except it is colder in North Dakota, Minnesota and Nevada. Temperatures continue near or below freezing over Western Ontario and westward over the Canadian Northwest, and the border states from Montana to Minnesota.

Rogers Hailed as Star At Debut in Drama

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—(AP.)—Will Rogers read in the newspapers here today that San Francisco critics consider him a success in his first appearance as a full-part actor in a dramatic production.

The former rope-twirling vaude star, who has temporarily left the movies to play the role of "Nat Miller" in Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness," drew enthusiastic applause from a capacity audience at his debut last night.

Lloyd S. Thompson, Examiner critic, wrote:

"It gives Rogers opportunity to be that which has made him the favorite of a nation—the shrewd and kindly philosopher. He was a distinct success."

Contrary to expectations of some of the audience, Rogers followed the text of the part word for word. He had announced before that he did not intend "to try to improve on O'Neill."

The play, which opened for a two-week engagement, is produced by Henry Duffy. The cast includes Anne Schoemaker, Charlotte Henry, Helen Flint, William Janney and Jay Ward.

Characterization of the part, a sympathetically human one, created an impression of George C. Warren, drama for the Chronicle, wrote.

NEVILLE SCHOOL STRIKE GOES ON

Students of Neville Township Junior High School remained on strike today, protesting the dismissal of three of their favorite teachers.

A few of the students, mostly girls, returned to their classes, but nearly 100 members of the student body continued to "picket" the school.

The strike follow notification to Miss Martha Willard, Miss Twilla Johnston and Mrs. Grace Constantine, teachers, that their contracts would not be renewed after the close of the present semester.

This action of the recently reorganized Neville Township School Board has not only resulted in the student strike, but also has divided the community into two sharply opposing factions, one of which accuses members of the board with "playing politics" with the school.

Actor Breaks Leg Posing as Dillinger

LINTON, Ind., May 1.—(AP.)—An impersonation of John Dillinger cost Billy Armond, 24, Indianapolis actor, a fractured leg today.

Armond, rehearsing a "Dillinger" role with a stock company, was imitating the limp of the Indiana bad man when his foot caught in a rug and his leg was broken in the fall.

CLUB CLEARED IN SLAYING

Officers of the M. A. Z. Political Club, 7632 Frankstown avenue, were cleared today of any connection with the fatal shooting of Daniel Forlastro, 52, killed Sunday night.

Because a membership card in the club was found on Daniel Ferriero, 1035 Blackadore avenue, suspect who was seized in the slaying, Inspector Jerry Deasy ordered Lieut. Frank Shine to question the M. A. Z. officers.

Lieut. Shine, after an inquiry, said he was convinced the M. A. Z. officers had no connection with the shooting, and that the card game which preceded the slaying had taken place in another political club in the neighborhood.

Early today the second suspect in the fatal shooting surrendered to police.

He is Canio Rosello, 56, a gardener, of 1038 Wheeler street, East End. He admitted, according to Mike Tortorelli, of the city bomb and arson squad, being at the scene of the killing, but denied any connection with the affair.

Tortorelli said Rosello surrendered voluntarily when he learned he was being sought.

Man Goes to Chair For Texas Killing

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., May 1.—(AP.)—Johnnie Williams, 32-year-old Houston Negro, who nearly three years ago killed H. L. Bennettt, Houston chicken farmer, was electrocuted for the crime at 12:03 this morning.

Beecham's 'Bawling Out' Subdues Din at Opera

LONDON, May 1.—(AP.)—A peremptory "Shut up, you!" and a milder "Stop talking" by Sir Thomas Beecham, effectively subdued a babble of conversation and ill-timed applause at the opening of the opera season in Covent Garden last night.

The noted conductor found the result so good that he said today he would go even further next time and give the audience a "talking to" if necessary.

"Stop talking" came in the middle of the overture when some members of the audience persisted in "chattering," as Sir Thomas put it.

The sterner "Shut up, you!" came when applause broke in where the conductor thought the audience shouldn't interrupt the continuity of the music.

Sir Thomas had no regrets. He said it was "an incredible piece of barbarism," and added that if the occasion ever arises again he will "stop and address the house—asking them if they are savages or a fine flower audience of the greatest city in the world."

'13' Sniffs Liver Meal, Recovers From Cold

BERKELEY, Cal., May 1.—(AP.)—"Thirteen" sniffed at a bit of liver today before eating the meat, and Dr. Robert E. Cornish, conducting experiments in life restoration, said he believed the revived dog had recovered the use of its olfactory nerves.

Previously the animal, which was asphyxiated and revived on April 13, had gulped its food without smelling it.

The dog, Dr. Cornish said, had also recovered from a head cold.

The young scientist also denied a report that within 24 hours he will be asked by the University of California to give up the laboratory in which he has conducted revivification experiments.

The report said university authorities will request Cornish to move because the building is needed and also because the notoriety surrounding the unusual experiments have proved distasteful.

Dr. Cornish is not connected with the university staff at present having been dropped last J[une] when the university's funds [were] curtailed.

Returning to a discussion of [the] experiment, Dr. Cornish said t[hat] despite the fact that "13" is al[ive] 17 days after its cilinical death, [it] is not the animal to which h[u]manity must look in its researc[h] for the secret of revivication. H[e] said:

"Thirteen is still but semi-conscious. Probably his damaged brain cells never will return to normal."

FAIL TO 'HUSH' PINCHOT LEVY ON PAYROLL

HARRISBURG, May 1.—Despite denials, employes in some Capitol Hill departments are being told to make contributions to the campaign fund of Gov. Pinchot, opponent of Senator David A. Reed for the Republican United States senatorial nomination.

While officials of the Governor's office and departments involved say that no solicitation is being made, a number of employes have been notified that their campaign contributions are expected to help finance the Governor's campaign. The employes have been told to make their contributions to the treasurer of the Governor's campaign committee.

Efforts are being made to make the contributions appear voluntary. Nevertheless a number of employes have been told what amounts they are to donate to the cause.

The departments where the employes have been definitely asked to contribute are the Property and Supply and Highways. In the latter department, no worker receiving less than $1,800 is being told what he is expected to pay toward the Pinchot campaign war chest. Workers in the Department of Property and Supply declare the contributions are voluntary.

The "assessment" in the Highway Department are at least 1 per cent of the annual salary of the employes.

State employes who did not expect to contribute to the fund of the Governor, or any other candidate, have two paydays between now and the primary to make their payments.

Today is payday and there is another before the May 15 primary. Officials of the Pennsylvania State Employes' Association today admitted they had been told of the assessments. Numerous complaints have been made to the officials, but no decision has been made as to whether the association will protest.

WELCH, FAMED MEDICO, DIES

BALTIMORE, May 1.—(AP.)—Dr. William H. Welch, dean of scientific American medicine, died yesterday at Johns Hopkins Hospital. He was 84.

The eminent pathologist, who held the first professorship of pathology in the Hopkins medical school and was one of the Hopkins "Big Four," had been ill since February 1, 1933.

He was born in Norfolk, Conn., the descendant of a long line of New England physicians, and had lived in Baltimore for the past 50 years. He was a bachelor and is survived by a nephew, United States Senator Frederick C. Walcott, of Connecticut.

Cancer of the prostate gland was the cause of his death.

His teaching and discoveries in the field of pathology made him world famous. He was the pioneer American pathologist who brought to the United States from the laboratories of Koch and Pasteur the new science of bacteriology.

The death of Dr. Welch leaves only one living member of the so-called "Big Four," a quartet around which the Johns Hopkins medical school was built. He is Dr. Howard A. Kelly.

Dr. Welch, Dr. Kelly, Sir William Osler and Dr. William S. Halstead comprised the group that established the medical school.

Reed Volunteers Organized Here

Miss Elizabeth S. Arbuthnot, of 6423 Fifth avenue, has been named vice chairman of the Reed Volunteers of Allegheny County. Formation of the Allegheny County chapter of the organization, advocating the re-election of United States Senator David A. Reed, completes a state wide coverage, it was announced. The group plans a tea in honor of Senator Reed in the Chatterbox, William Penn Hotel, Thursday afternoon. Headquarters have been opened at 947 Union Trust Building.

Schnader Forces Seek Herron Aid, Reed Denies Tieup to Governor Race

Senator Assails Pinchot, Charges 'Cowardice'

By MARK SHIELDS

Three statewide primary candidates, Senator David A. Reed and Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, seeking nomination for the U. S. Senate and governorship respectively on the Republican ticket, and Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, appealed for votes in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania.

Senator Reed, after speeches yesterday and last night in East Pittsburgh and Beaver Falls, established himself in his Roosevelt Hotel headquarters today for personal talks with his constituents. The Senator will remain in Pittsburgh through tomorrow, when he again will be at his headquarters.

Gen. Shannon today, touring Western Pennsylvania cities, will climax a busy day with a speech tonight in McKeesport.

Judge Bonniwell was campaigning in Sharon, Farrell and adjoining communities today and will be in the Pittsburgh district until Saturday. A previous statement that he would address a meeting tonight in Peabody High School was in error.

HERRON MOVE AWAITED

Meanwhile there was interest as to the eventual decision of former Mayor John S. Herron as to the gubernatorial candidate he would support in the Republican primary. Indications are that he will come into the camp of Attorney General William A. Schnader through the persuasions of Schnader himself, William B. McFall, Allegheny County chairman of the Schnader committee, and W. L. Mellon.

Senator Reed, plainly irked by the attacks made upon him by Gov. Pinchot, his primary opponent, charged the Governor was adopting a "cowardly attitude" by indulging in personalities. He attacked the Governor for "regimenting of industry" on the Roosevelt plan.

ATTACKS DAIRY PLAN

"The state is entitled to know from Gov. Pinchot whether he indorses the plans for the regimentation of industry which have been advanced in the name of President Roosevelt by Prof. Tugwell and others in Washington. We have recently had in Pennsylvania an example of planned economy at the hands of Mr. Pinchot that bids fair to ruin the dairy interests of Pennsylvania."

Senator Reed charged that regulations of the State Milk Control Board discriminated against Pennsylvania producers.

REED DENIES ALLIANCE

Senator Reed also denied his candidacy was linked with that of any gubernatorial aspirant, though reports have persisted that he was placed upon an unofficial slate along with Attorney General Schnader by the Mellon-Grundy-Vare interests. The Senator said:

"I do not know and do not care to whom you give your allegiance among the candidates. The candidates for Governor are among my friends. You may vote for any candidate for Governor and it will be entirely consistent with a friendly attitude toward my own candidacy."

Gen. Shannon, after arriving yesterday by plane, immediately started a western tour which continued today. At a noonday meeting in his Pittsburgh headquarters, A. T. Morgan, Allegheny County chairman, said that only with Shannon could the Republicans be certain of winning in November. He pointed out that Gen. Shannon was a business man as well as a soldier, and that his service on the State Emergency Relief Board had acquainted him with the needs of the people.

AIDE OPPOSES SCHNADER

Deputy Attorney General Edward O. Spotts, subordinate of Schnader's, declared he was for Shannon because "the stamp of approval of the Republican organization definitely eliminates Schnader as an independent candidate."

Joseph N. Mackrell, Register of Wills, today was lined up with other county officials in the Shannon camp.

Last night in Wilkinsburg he made a speech urging the nomination of Shannon.

Three Statewide Candidates on Tour Here

Campaigning in the East, Charles J. Margiotti, another candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, advocated legislation to immediately reimburse depositors in all closed state banks. The state, he said, has a moral obligation for the closed banks, and he predicted that the frozen assets of the institutions could be absorbed by the state without new taxes.

At the same time Margiotti replied to State Chairman Edward Martin's letter inquiring if he would support the party nominee in November. Margiotti said he had always been a Republican, but believed Martin was disqualified as an inquisitor for the party. The state chairman, he said, along with the Mellon-Grundy-Vare interests, had slated a candidate "whom you believe 'safe' for your interests," and thus had erased the idea of an open primary.

SPEAKS FOR FARLEY

Professing to speak for Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley, Congressman Woodrum, of Virginia, in an address at Philadelphia last night said that "many of us in Washington would be made extremely" happy by the election of the primary ticket comprising Joseph F. Guffey for the Senate and George E. Earle for Governor. Woodrum was said to have made the speech at Farley's request.

Earle in a radio speech said that big interests rather than representatives of the people had written the laws of Pennsylvania for years.

In Erie Representative Norbert J. Fitzgerald, anti-Guffey candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs, said he had been promised the post of Secretary of Labor and Industry should Earle be elected, if he would soft pedal his opposition to the state committee slate. Fitzgerald said:

"The very day Earle spoke in Erie, saying he favored a minimum wage and collective bargaining, workmen were being fired at his Philadelphia sugar plant for wearing union buttons."

Tonight over WCAE at 10:30, Roland S. Morris, opponent to Guffey, is scheduled to speak. The local Morris-Copeland committee has a meeting scheduled for tonight in Tarentum.

David T. Hart, Philadelphia ward leader, who was fired from a public job last year because he bolted the Vare municipal ticket, today announced support of Schnader, returning to the Vare fold. Another Philadelphia report was that the Vare interests finally had determined to support Senator Harry B. Scott, rather than David E. Kaufman, of Towanda, for Lieutenant Governor.

COUNCIL BALKS FINLEY OUSTER

Mayor McNair, undaunted by the charge of frivolity made against him by Councilman William A. Magee, declares he will keep on sending in names to Council for the $12,000 Traction Conference Board job of Charles A. Finley.

Informed of how Council rode rough-shod over him yesterday, rejecting one appointment, refusing to consider another and passing an ordinance over his veto, the Mayor appeared light-hearted. He said:

"One Councilman has declared that there isn't a man in Pittsburgh that can hold Finley's job. We'll just run down the list and see if we can't find one."

He again hinted that he may swear in Safety Director Ralph E. Smith for a $5,000 traction board job, whether Council confirms him or not.

Council by a vote of 5 to 4 refused to remove Finley in order to install the Mayor's appointee, the Rev. W. W. Canton, Negro, of 2035 Wylie avenue, as chairman of the Traction Board.

Council overrode the Mayor's veto on the ordinance designed to prevent the placing of milk bottles in garbage cans.

The veto of the $14,000 appropriation for traffic safety publicity and education was laid on the table.

Fisher Nephew Fired As Health Officer

INDIANA, Pa., May 1.—(INS.)—Dr. A. H. Stewart, nephew of former Gov. John S. Fisher, has been discharged as county health officer, it was revealed today. No reason was given for the dismissal.

Dr. Stewart is a candidate for Republican state committeeman as one of the opponents of Howard B. Buterbaugh, backed by Senator Edward Bennett, Pinchot leader of Indiana County.

GERMAN GROUP BACKS EARLE, SCHNADER

Bringing the first important independent support to Attorney General William A. Schnader, candidate for Republican nomination for Governor, the German element of the county has organized under the leadership of the old German-American Alliance.

The group avers there are 147,000 German and Austrian born naturalized citizens and native born of German parents in the county. Of these, 100,000 are estimated to be potential voters.

On the Democratic ticket, George H. Earle received the indorsement for Governor. On both tickets, Frank M. Trexler received the backing for Judge of Superior Court.

Congressional indorsements were for Edmund F. Erk, Thirtieth District, on both tickets; in the Thirty-first District, William T. Pyle, Republican, and James L. Quinn, Democrat; in the Thirty-second, D. Clarence Davies, Republican, and Marion K. McKay, Democrat; in the Thirty-third, Henry Ellenbogen on both tickets, and in the Thirty-fourth, Guy E. Campbell on both tickets.

For State Senate: Thirty-eighth District, Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican, and Rev. George Shuster, Democrat; Fortieth District, Senator Hermah P. Brandt, Republican and Democrat; Forty-second District, Martin C. Mihm, Republican and Democrat; Forty-fourth District, Carl C. Baldrige, Republican and Democrat.

The legislative indorsements have not yet been completed.

The German-American Alliance, organized in 1897, was incorporated by an act of Congress in 1907. In 1918 the charter was revoked as a result of war feeling.

Leaders of the movement, however, say the spirit of the alliance has continued, with a new trend evidenced this year by the decision to unite in politics. They intend to demand recognition for their element as other racial groups have done.

Attorney John F. Gloeckner is chairman of the legislative committee and Ludwig Marhoefer, secretary. Heading the alliance are Reinhard Ullrich, Henry Meushke and John E. Loibl.

M'NAIR SWAPS JIBES WITH SCHWARTZ

Mayor McNair and Louis A. Schwartz, former engineer in the Bureau of Building Inspection, today traded verbal punches over Schwartz' attempt to collect $98.33 as wages.

The Mayor, appearing for the city at a hearing on the claim before Alderman A. M. Maloney, charged Schwartz with responsibility for Pittsburgh's slum conditions and Schwartz, during a heated exchange, told McNair:

"I know more than you do."

The Mayor shot back:

"Sure, I'm a lawyer."

The Mayor also threw charges at the Civil Service Commission.

MAYOR QUIZZED

Attorney Ben L. Steinberg, counsel for Schwartz, asked His Honor:

"Did you know that Schwartz passed a civil service examination and received a mark of 98½?"

His Honor replied:

"Some 800 employes got 100 per cent. I doubt if many of them ever took the examination. I'd like to see the questions. I doubt if Schwartz passed it."

The Mayor demanded to know why Schwartz has not sued Council members for abolishing his job. Steinberg interposed:

"You know, Mayor, as an attorney, that you can't do that. You sue the Mayor as the head of the city."

"I want to introduce evidence that the whole bunch in the bureau of building inspection was incompetent.

"You are the man that's responsible for these outrageous slum conditions in Pittsburgh."

A violent argument ensued and Schwartz, during the uproar, then shouted his taunt:

"I know more than you do."

Alderman Maloney restored order and wound up the hearing. He reserved his decision.

The claim of Schwartz against the city covers the period from March 15, when he claims he was illegally dismissed, to March 31, when Council abolished his job.

Assistant City Solicitor W. A. Stewart appeared with the Mayor.

REGISTRATION TOMORROW

Polls will be open in Pittsburgh tomorrow, the third and final day for enrollment of voters in the various districts, under the permanent registration system.

Two registrars will sit at each polling place from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., daylight saving time.

While tomorrow will be the final registration day at the polls, belated voters still have until Saturday night to enroll at the offices of the Registration Commission, County Office Building.

Under the law the enrollment must be completed 10 days before the primary election, May 15.

Meanwhile, three Pittsburgh polling places were ordered changed today by Judge W. Hay Dithrich.

Registration tomorrow and voting on May 15 will be held at the new addresses. The old and new polling places follow:

Third District, Ninth Ward, from 149 Forty-fifth street to 467 Butler street; Fifth District, Ninth Ward, from 229 Forty-third street to 4200 Butler street; Fifth District, Fifteenth Ward, from rear of 3707 Beechwood boulevard to 874 Flemington street.

Three Meetings For Guffey Slate

Democratic meetings for the slate headed by Joseph F. Guffey for United States Senate and George H. Earle for Governor will be held tonight at West Lake School, 900 Lorenz avenue; Columbus School, Irwin and Columbus avenues, and Woolslayer School, 509 Fortieth street.

Juvenile Court Officer to Speak

George D. Weinstein, probation officer of the Juvenile Court, will speak on "The Child in Society, Past, Present and Future," at a meeting of the International Club of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 6:30 p. m. today.

HOLE CABINET STUMPED BY 'HOMESTEAD'

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—If you should see an administration adviser walking in absent-minded manner, he's probably seeking a substitute for the word "subsistence."

Almost a week has passed since President Roosevelt set the problem—what to call "subsistence homesteads" instead of "subsistence homesteads."

Although Mr. Roosevelt called this program his "pet," nothing seems to have come of the new name proposal—except possibly headaches.

Success for this presidential renaming scheme would provide federal aid to the stutterers, stammerers and headline writers. The sibilant sound of "subsistence" causes bitter complaint among telephoners. And after lazy days of AAA's and NRA's the head writers just hate to come a cropper on "subsistence homesteads."

'ACES' FAIL

The President prophesied that Secretary Ickes and Relief Administrator Hopkins would supply him with a name, looking with highest optimism for originality of nomenclature among the two.

Though Ickes once named a dahlia, when last queried he had no sub for "subsistence homesteads."

Hopkins had his secretary saying "out of town." Nor had they announced a public contest for a new name, as the President suggested. They seemed stumped.

Nothing was added by woman's intuition. Labor Secretary Perkins acknowledged she couldn't think of anything else to call these "homesteads."

YOU NAME IT

President Roosevelt said he never did like the word "subsistence," which somehow connotes mere existence.

Officialdom started to scurry and worry.

Such synonyms as "selfcontained, selfsustained communities" did not simplify the matter. Merely more sibilants for stammerers.

Someone suggested the "abundant acre and co-operative craft administration"—AACCA to you.

That fell on bored ears as being imitative, if not near-repetition of existing agencies. Besides, many thought four letters ought to be the limit.

Well, you name it.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS -:- By PAUL MALLON

Criticism Due Soon Aimed Directly At Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, April 30.—A leading opposition Senator, who does not try to fool himself, confessed the other day that his pot shots at the DRA, AAA and Brain Trust really had been intended for the head man in the White House. He said:

"You cannot attack Roosevelt yet; it's not the political thing to do."

Anyone with half an eye open could discern that current underlying situation. At first, the New Deal could not be attacked at all because popular opinion demanded unanimous patriotic support of it. Now anyone except President Roosevelt can be attacked with political safety.

That situation cannot last long. Soon the attacks will be made directly at Mr. Roosevelt.

Politics gradually is getting back to normal.

SEARCH

A sharp newsman was sent to Washington by a New York financial newspaper a few days ago and told to find out what in the deuce IS the basic idea behind the New Deal.

He went first to a head farm man in the AAA, who said:

"Basic idea, eh? Well, I admit I do not always understand the basic idea among those fellows in the NRA, but, down here in the AAA, it's simple. Now, purchasing power, etc.—surpluses, etc." Thus he went on for an hour.

The newsman staggered up to one of the administration's best economists and demanded to know in a few words what the New Deal was all about. The economist replied:

"Just now, it's housing."

Still perplexed, the newsman went on to a wise old Washington observer, who formerly had been a newsman himself. He replied:

"The psychology of the New Deal is to get as much reform as you can."

That's the answer.

MARGIN

Administration strategists accepted the disclosures of Father Coughlin's indirect marginal purchases of silver as an anti-climax. They knew it all along.

Weeks ago Father Coughlin told a Senator, who asked him about it, that he had silver stocks. That word went around the inner circle, although it could not be published until official proof existed.

It may hurt the silver cause, because much of the popular silver support was based on a belief that the leading silver agitators were disinterested and unbiased.

WHO DID IT?

Attacks made on Treasury Secretary Morgenthau for disclosing the silver list lack surface substantiation. Mr. Morgenthau was required to submit the list by an official demand from the Senate.

If you dig back under the surface, however, you will find that Mr. Morgenthau originated the idea of getting up a list of silver stockholders. Naively, he made that fact public. When Congress heard about it, the resolution demanding publication of the list was passed.

Few disinterested parties will quarrel with Mr. Morgenthau about that because all he did was to try to show who would profit if the government helped silver.

FUMES

The NRA is having more inside trouble with the government than with Henry Ford in enforcing codes.

A certain dealer in cotton waste had a large contract with a federal arsenal. The NRA found that the dealer was not operating under the Blue Eagle and wrote him, advising him to release his contract with the arsenal.

The dealer was glad to get off without punishment or publicity and wrote to the arsenal agreeing to drop the contract, but the arsenal refused.

The dealer now is chuckling, the NRA fuming.

SPEED

The highest speed of efficiency has been reached in a bureau of the Home Owners Loan Corporation which handles applications.

There are two shifts of workers, toiling eight hours a day each. Heads of each shift have been promoting a contest to see which can do the most work. The record of the day shift is submitted to the night shift and vice versa. Pep talkers demand that each outdo the other, and pressure is strong.

The latest stunt of the night shift was to cut 15 minutes off the lunch hour so it could turn out more work.

Apparently they never heard of the NRA.

NOTES

One member of the NRA review board did not want to sign Lawyer Darrow's critical report to the President because he did not believe such strong language against the NRA should be used in addressing the President. If there is one man in the government here who can put as much fire in his words as Gen. Johnson, it is Darrow. . . . Those who attended the Tydings dinner here some weeks ago recall that Speaker Rainey criticised the administration leadership of the Senate so strongly that he moved Senate Leader Robinson to make an angry reply. It is interesting because of the abuse which has been heaped upon Rainey's leadership lately. The wealthy senators who promised to finance the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee have not put the money up yet, but they probably will later.

Reform Plus Found Basis Idea Back Of New Deal

MAIL BOX BAN COMPLETED

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—Congressional action was completed today on legislation to stop the practice of putting gas and light bills and other unmailed matter in mail boxes.

The measure had the approval of Postmaster General Farley, who some time ago issued a regulation against depositing such material in letter boxes.

The Senate Postoffice Committee reported:

"This practice is depriving the Postoffice Department of considerable revenue on matter which would otherwise go through the mails, and at the same time is resulting in the stuffing of letter boxes with extraneous matter."

Annie Laurie Kin Bride of May Day

LONDON, May 1.—(AP.)—A descendant of Annie Laurie, heroine of the famous ballad, was among Great Britain's May Day brides.

Miss Margaret M. Lairie, of Dumfriesshire, was married to Capt. Reginald Houldsworth, of Maybole, Ayrshire. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Sir Wilfrid Laurie, of Maxwellton, the locale of the ballad.

PRIEST ASSAILS LOAN EVILS

LOS ANGELES, May 1.—(AP.)—Unless the "cancerous growth" of "usurious small loan business" is controlled, the national recovery program of President Franklin D. Roosevelt is doomed to failure, the Rev. J. M. Campbell, director of the Rural Life Conference of the Catholic Church, told a section meeting of Catholic action week here. Father Campbell said:

"The small loan offices today compose the fourth largest business in the United States. Ninety per cent of these offices are in the hands of people charging from 12 to 45 per cent interest annually.

"This usurious business is one of the obstacles of national recovery."

The Catholic Church, Father Campbell remarked, has already taken steps to spread the gospel of thrift and overcome the evil of the small loan office.

Railroad Men Indose McClure

The candidacy of James H. McClure for State Senate in the Forty-fourth District has been indorsed by the four transportation brotherhoods, embracing Locomotive Engineers, Railroad Trainmen, Railway Conductors and Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

McClure, in asking nomination, points to his legislative record in the General Assembly. He says he voted for old age pensions, the mothers' assistance fund, a state soldiers' bonus, a pension system for the blind, workmen's compensation, abolishment of child labor and the poll tax, permanent registration, the full crew bill and "all social legislation."

Errors in Travel Plague Miss Perkins

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—After a series of misadventures, Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, arrived late last night at a dinner meeting of the conference on immigration policy, declaring she felt like a "bewildered immigrant."

First, she said, she was delayed in Washington until the last minute; then she forgot about daylight saving time and on arriving in New York went to the wrong hotel for the meeting.

Shots Peril Firemen In Armory Blaze

DUNDOS, Ont., May 1.—(AP.)—The Dundos armories were leveled today by flames which swept through the 75-year-old structure from an ammunition store room. Loss was tentatively estimated at $160,000. Lives of firemen were continously in danger as the heat from the fire exploded bullets stored in various rooms in the armories.

NEED 57 NAMES TO FORCE BANK PAY-OFF VOTE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Driving against the opposition of bipartisan leaders in the House, sponsors of the McLeod bank deposit pay-off bill today sought to increase the number of signatures to their petition to force a vote on the measure May 14.

The petition has 88 signers and needs 57 more. Information was received by the bill's supporters that the House leaders have warned Democratic members "they must face the consequences" if they join to force action on the measure.

Meantime, the House Banking Committee had before it the compromise proposal of Chairman Steagall (Dem.), of Alabama, with no indications of early action.

The Steagall proposal was added to the one-year extension of the effective date of the permanent bank deposit system bill, requested by President Roosevelt, which is facing strong opposition from some committee members.

The possibility of the Steagall compromise being shunted aside in the committee fight spurred the McLeod bill supporters to complete their petition and remove all doubt as to a vote.

Democrats Threaten McLeod Bill Signers

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(U.S.)—Democratic members of Congress have been threatened with severe party discipline if they sign the McLeod bank payoff bill petition, it was learned today.

The majority leadership, determined to carry out the wishes of the President, hopes thus to prevent the bill reaching the floor.

The petition to discharge the Rules Committee from further consideration of the bill must be completed by Thursday if a vote on May 14 is to be realized.

The threatened discipline has kept many Democrats favorable to the measure from signing. There are 88 names on the petition, with 57 more needed.

PAYOFF URGED BY MARGIOTTI

POTTSVILLE, May 1.—(AP.)—Immediate payment by the commonwealth of "one hundred cents on the dollar" to depositors of closed state banks had been proposed today by Charles J. Margiotti, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. In a campaign speech last night he said:

"The State of Pennsylvania is normally responsible to our people for the obligations of its closed state banks. Therefore, I propose that immediate revenues be made available by the state itself through bond issue or otherwise to pay depositors of closed state banks and the state take over the frozen assets of these institutions."

The state "is rich enough and resourceful enough to take over the frozen assets and hold them until such time as they may be released at a profit," he stated, adding that there would be no new tax to carry out this program. He concluded:

"I promise my unremitting efforts to the end that our federal government pay in full the depositors of closed national banks as well."

'Friend' of Hitler Grilled in Fraud

CHICAGO, May 1.—(INS.)—A Berlin newspaperman who calls himself a "friend" of Hitler today was questioned by Chicago police in connection with a swindling charge in Holland.

He is Bernard Newman, who reported to police Saturday that $6,500 had been stolen from his room in a Chicago hotel.

Tarentum Youth Wins Student Prize

A Tarentum boy, Clifford E. Montgomery, attending Columbia University, today was awarded the Edward Sutliff Brainard prize for students there. The Brainard prize is the income from $1,200, according to an Associated Press dispatch from New York.

WAR HERO HELD AS FORGER

Accused of forging and passing CWA checks, John Alvin Shelar, 40, a World War hero and mail carrier attached to the Beaver Falls postoffice, was held for court today by the United States commissioner.

Postal inspectors testified that Shelar stole seven letters containing CWA checks totaling $46.20 from the mail sacks of fellow carriers and cashed them in various stores in the Beaver valley.

During the World War Shelar, serving in the 323d Field Artillery, was awarded the Croix de Guerre by the French government for bravery.

BANK PAYOFF SPONSOR TO SPEAK HERE

port the McLeod measure are expected to attend.

Congressman McLeod will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow morning. He will be introduced by Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Allegheny County. Congressman M. J. Muldowney, another member of the Allegheny County delegation in Congress who have battled for the bill, will greet McLeod on his arrival here.

Numerous business houses have signified their intention of having representatives at the meeting.

PLAN DEPOSITORS' LEAGUE

A plan will be presented for creation of a depositors' league to actively support the pay-off proposal on the grounds that it will spur business activity, through the release of $1,800,000,000 now tied up in closed Federal Reserve banks and that the government is morally obligated to free those deposits.

Similar organizations have been formed in other cities to consolidate the support of the depositors and others interested in the plan behind the measure. Membership will entail no financial obligation, since the services of those who actively support the McLeod bill will be given free.

The sentiment of the rally will be conveyed to representatives in Congress by means of petitions circulated at the meeting.

BANK TO PAY 100 PER CENT

One hundred per cent of the deposits in the former Brentwood State Bank were made available today with the opening of the new Bank of Brentwood which took over the liabilities of the old bank, placed under a conservator.

The new institution, with a capital of $50,000 and a $25,000 surplus, is crediting savings deposits in the former bank up to May 1, 1933, with 4 per cent interest.

Full 3 per cent interest also will be paid on savings deposits between May 1, 1933 and May 1, 1934.

A. G. Kaufmann is president, A. C. Slenkamp, vice president; John K. Blair, cashier, and W. G. Roth, secretary and assistant cashier.

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

We urge immediate Congressional action on the bill introduced by Representative McLeod.

SWICK FIGHTING FOR M'LEOD

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Representative J. Howard Swick, of Beaver Falls, on his return to Washington was among the first signers of the petition for the discharge of the Rules Committee in consideration of the McLeod bill. Representative Swick today said:

"I commend the bank depositors in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania in their enterprise in holding a mass meeting to further this important legislation.

"It is with regret that my duties in Washington prevent my going to Pittsburgh with Representative Clarence J. McLeod, author of the bill. My good wishes go with him and with all who are engaged in this beneficent movement.

"I congratulate the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on the part it has played in advancing the interest of the bank depositors. Put the money in circulation which is tied up in closed banks and half the work of effecting national recovery will be accomplished."

DAVIS BACKS M'LEOD BANK PAYOFF BILL

Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, today wrote an indorsement of the McLeod bank payoff plan as the means of restoring confidence in the American banking system.

In a letter expressing his regret that he will not be able to attend the mass meeting in support of the bill at the Nixon Theater at noon tomorrow, Senator Davis wrote:

"Enactment of the McLeod bill would do much to restore confidence in the American banking system. The government would be keeping faith with the citizens who were urged to deposit their savings in institutions which later became insolvent."

He added:

"I am afraid it will be impossible for me to be with you on May 2nd, but I am sure the citizens of Pittsburgh will be delighted to hear Representative McLeod."

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, said he would attend the meeting if it were possible.

HIGHEST COURT HITS RATE JUGGLING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Supreme Court today had prescribed rules of vast importance in the fixing of local utility rates by state commissions.

The high court, in two significant decisions yesterday, in effect declared that state commissions can prevent juggling of charges between subsidiaries of giant holding companies to justify demands for rate increases.

In both cases, one involving telephone rates in Chicago and the other gas rates in several Ohio towns, the high court ruled against the contentions of the utilities.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Company in Chicago is a subsidiary of the giant American Telephone and Telegraph Company, while the Dayton Power and Light Company, figuring in the other case, is a subsidiary of Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation.

CHARGES SET ASIDE

In holding that rates fixed by the Illinois Commerce Commission on Chicago telephones in 1923 were non-confiscatory, the high court considered the charges made by the A. T. & T. and also the Western Electric Company, another subsidiary.

It had previously ordered the Federal District Court in Chicago to separate the interstate and intrastate business to find a basis for local phone rates.

The Dayton Power and Light Company, a gas distributor, the court pointed out, purchases gas from an affiliated corporation. Both buyer and seller are subsidiaries of Columbia Gas.

The Ohio Public Utilities Commission held that the Dayton company was paying too much for its gas from the Ohio Gas and Fuel Company, although the rate was similar to that charged in other cities.

LEASEHOLDS STUDIED

The court then considered the leasehold values of the Ohio Fuel Company, although not directly involved in the rate case, as a means of establishing proper operating expenses for the company whose rates were under attack.

Without saying what is a proper charge, the court held that the state commission was within its rights in holding that the Dayton company was being charged too much for gas by its affiliated company.

The court also upheld a reduction in the management fee charged by the Columbia Engineering and Management Corporation to the Dayton company.

The decisions, elaborating upon principles previously laid down by the court, are regarded as insuring state utility corporations of the fullest right to examine into the affairs of giant holding companies.

Cannon Prosecutor Gets 'Brand' Threat

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—A letter threatening District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett with branding "all over" if he ever prosecutes another clergyman was received at the prosecutor's office yesterday, three days after the close of the trial of Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

100 TEST TUBE BABIES BORN IN NEW YORK

Lawrence, L. I., after eight years of childless marriage.

The Lauricellas, out of spontaneous gratitude, told the neighbors about the aid through which science gave them twins when many doctors had told them they would never have a child.

In all the 13 cases the husband of the mother has been the father of the test-tube baby, despite reports that at least two of Dr. Seymour's test-tube babies—one nine months old and another a few days from the world as the stork flies—had been born to "bachelor" business women.

At first Dr. Seymour refused to confirm what Mr. and Mrs. Lauricella said about her part in bringing twins to the Lauricella home, but finally consented to talk. He said:

"You probably can see that this is frightfully embarrassing to all concerned. I am terribly embarrassed in spite of the fact that dozens of other doctors assist couples by artificially aiding women who wish children. Offhand I'd say nearly a hundred babies so conceived have been born in New York recently.

"The method is not new and it certainly does not mean there can be no more childless marriages. Goodness, no!

"Aiding a woman to have a 'eugenic baby' is a new thing, but is growing constantly. The anonymous father receives from $100 to $150."

Dr. Seymour said artificial insemination is a scientific "blessing" because of the "great unhappiness" of couples who can have no children.

'Test Tube' Twins Born Naturally, Mother Says

NEW YORK, May 1.—(INS.)—The "test tube" twins, who unwittingly started all the current agitation about artificial impregnation of childless women, gurgled in their cots today while their mother took issue with the claim of Dr. Frances Seymour that they were the product of mechanical insemination. Mrs. Lillian Lauricella said:

"They were born perfectly naturally. They were born as a result of natural relations with my husband.

"I think the doctor meant when she spoke of artificial impregnation all the things she had to do to help me have a baby at all after eight childless years of married life."

The babies are fed by formula, Mrs. Lauricella said, and are normal in every way. She said Dr. Seymour interested herself in her childlessness a year and a half ago, and performed a minor operation.

PROBE LOOMING IN BABY CASES

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 1.—A controversy developed today among leading members of the medical fraternity over the ethics of the "test tube" baby practice.

Dr. W. T. Dannreuther, president of the New York County Medical Society, told International News Service his organization would investigate the practice "in the natural course of events" if it was found that some member of the society was seeking publicity by calling public attention to a surgical method he said had been in use for 30 years. He said:

"It is natural that our governing body would look into the situation if we found some member of our society was causing a furore of publicity over a practice that has been in use for 30 years and has been largely discredited by experienced men in the medical profession.

"There is nothing new in artificial impregnation and no particular reason for all this present flurry."

Dr. Frances Seymour, whose revelations began the controversy, is not a member of the society, but her associate, Dr. Alfred T. Koerner, is. Dr. Koerner and Dr. Seymour are fellow-graduates of the Medical College of Virginia.

Synthetic Babies Nothing New, Doctor Bares

CHICAGO, May 1.—(INS.)—Synthetic parenthood is far from a twentieth century miracle of modern science, Dr. Morris Fishbein, president of the Chicago Medical Society, today declared after it was learned that one Chicago physician made it possible for 60 barren women to have children.

Declaring the practice was ancient, Dr. Fishbeing cited an article written in 1924 by Dr. Samuel R. Meaker, of Boston. Dr. Meaker wrote:

"The idea of artificial impregnation has been entertained for centuries. As far back as 1322 it was carried out with success by the Arabians."

CHICAGO HAS 60 'EUGENIC' BABES

International News Service.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Motherhood has been made possible to 60 Chicago women who otherwise would have faced barren marriages, it was admitted today by Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse in discussing his success in bringing "synthetic babies" into the world.

While in most of these cases fathers of the children have been the patients' husbands, Dr. Lespinasse explained in some instances he has resorted to eugenic male parents.

The so-called "test-tube" children have been born to wealthy society couples as well as to those in more moderate circumstances.

Race, complexion, health and intelligence are the most important requirements to the prospective mother, and in that relative order, the specialist declared.

Roosevelt Signs Tire, Battery Code

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today signed the retail rubber tire and battery code.

TEST TUBE BABY STORY SCORNED

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Dr. Iago Galdston, secretary of the New York Academy of Medicine, says mechanical fertilization has been practice for years and very widely to overcome many types of sterility in women. Replying to a question, he said:

"Opposition to it? No, of course not. There never has been any more opposition to it in the profession than there has been to attaching artificial limbs in cases of amputation."

Then he said:

"However, you have two kinds of cases in this current synthetic baby story. One is the mechanical fertilization of married women, giving them children by their husbands. That has been going on for years, only the parents usually do not talk about it.

"The other is this story of gratifying the desires of two unmarried business women for children with test tube babies, the fathers of which they have never seen.

"I am sure that if such an instance were true and was officially called to the attention of the profession there would be a storm of protest on moral grounds. But personally I don't believe it's true."

F. X. BUSHMAN INVENTS 'GUN'

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP.)—Francis X. Bushman, star of the early movies, made an appearance today in a new role—that of an inventor with an eye for scientific crime detection.

Bushman's invention is a tiny movie camera which is attached under the barrel of a revolver, machine gun, rifle or what have you. A false trigger is placed in front of the real one, and operates the camera.

The policeman shoots at a fleeing automobile with his revolver camera. The car may get away, but if the invention works the way Bushman says it will, the policeman has a picture of the car.

For sportsmen, he says, the gun-camera will record photographic evidence of the big ones which get away.

Congress Gets Bill For 3-Cent Coin

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(INS.)—The government would be authorized to coin a new 3-cent piece under a bill introduced in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan.

Issuance of such a coin, to be made from copper and nickel was recommended last week by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. It held a 3-cent piece would be "very useful" because so many newspapers are sold at that price.

Shock Proves Fatal To Burned Child, 5

Shock, following burns to her head and body, today caused the death of Josephine Dellimone, 5, of 6414 Saxon way, in Pittsburgh Hospital, a Coroner's report stated. Josephine was burned yesterday when her dress caught fire while she was playing with matches.

Ex-Police Captain Injured in Crash

Dan Ambrose, 60, former police captain, suffered lacerations to his face early today when his automobile collided with a parked automobile at 5161 Penn avenue. Ambrose's injuries were treated at the West Penn Hospital. He lives at 6350 Dean street.

Triple Threat !

We do business three ways—AT THE SAME PRICE TO YOU. What we mean is, whether you decide to pay cash (and it won't make us a bit mad), or use our regular 30-day (department store) charge, or use our popular Budget Plan, the price remains the same. So, as they'll say on the baseball diamond, we're triple-threat and plenty of support for any pocketbook that needs a friend.

3 WAYS TO BUY Your Family's Clothes

No. 1. Cash. No. 2. Regular Monthly (or department store) charge
No. 3. Budget Charge (with many months to settle your bill).

Just trot your better half in—we'll send him out a new man—rigged out in a new suit, a new topcoat, a new hat, shoes, undies—complete with suspenders and pocket handkerchief. If your better half's a frau, send her in for her new redingote, swagger, foundation, shoesies, Nomend hose, crepe lingerie, what'sot—we'll put them all together and spell FASHION. All this can occur at Pittsburgh's fastest growing Apparel Store—the wonder of the New Deal era—the store that's Triple-Threat and triply-useful to the intelligent buyers of the tri-state area.

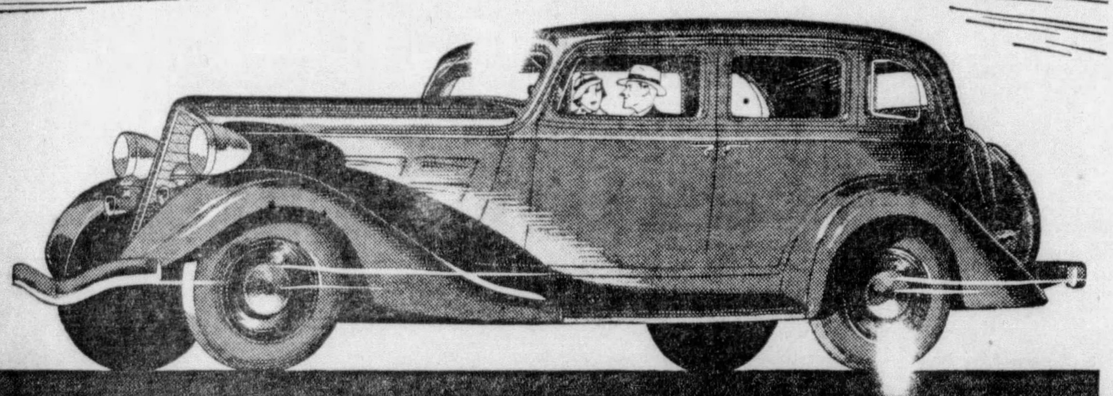
NO GEARSHIFT LEVER



A Triumph in Aerodynamic Design and Long Life Construction

Outstanding Features in the New Reo

Reo Self-Shifter . . . Economical 6 cyl. 85 h. p. Reo engine . . . 7-bearing crankshaft . . . 118 in. wheelbase . . . Exceptional riding qualities . . . Air cushion engine mountings . . . Airplane type shock absorbers . . . Positive action hydraulic brakes . . . Draft free ventilation . . . New type starter.

WRITE today for copy of our interesting booklet, PROOF, containing enthusiastic comments of Reo owners. Also detailed explanation of Self-Shifter operation. See your Reo dealer for a demonstration.

THE car without a gearshift lever is presented today by Reo in an entirely new design—a design in which we confidently believe you will recognize the smartest combination of advanced style and good taste yet offered to the motoring public.

The new Reo Flying Cloud for 1934!

A car of flashing performance and superb construction! A car that literally changes driving to piloting. There is virtually nothing to do but steer. The "take-off" is like that of an airplane—a swift, smooth, uninterrupted surge of power!

Try it yourself—and see!

Start from a dead stop and sweep through to high without reaching for a gearshift lever—without a movement of hand or foot. Slow down and change automatically back to second! Drive for hours without touching the clutch! Think of the greater SAFETY in such a car—of the fatigue and tension saved by being able to keep both hands on the wheel and concentrating all attention on safe control!

QUALITY in a Reo may be taken for granted. But the SELF-SHIFTER is such a revolutionary advance, so startling in its effect on car operation, that it can be understood and appreciated only after a drive. We urge that you do this—call your Reo dealer today and experience the thrill of a trip in the most advanced car of all—the car without a gearshift lever.

It will make you wonder how long any car of the hand-shift type can continue in public favor—make you realize that it is a GOOD INVESTMENT—for more reasons than one—to buy a Reo!

$795 Business Coupe — $895 Standard Sedan

N.Y. PREPARES TO CELEBRATE BAR'S RETURN

By DIXIE TIGHE
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 1.—By twelve-thirsty on the night of June 31, New York will have slipped off its high chair and limped back to the bar to the tune of "stand up and beer."

Until repeal made the bar sinister and derailed the liquor-lover who stood with one foot higher than the other, New Yorkers took their drinks standing up. A chair was the refuge of the sissy. If you could really take it, you made a floor walker look like Chief Sitting Bull.

Overnight, diet-mad Manhattan will reduce six inches—that six inch limit that kept a bartender silent and the customer working up a boarding house reach. A drink received in silence, is a Martini without an olive. But for months you couldn't hear a bartender above the gin—but, they are practicing up today, matching their reach with the long arm of the law.

Throughout the city, restaurants, hotels and the speakeasies with a faint recollection of "aw, you know me, Tony," are getting ready to move right into the open spaces left vacant by the new legislation making a bar an elbow rest and a stool a type of lawless pigeon.

The club proprietor of today—the one who was the speakeasy owner of yesterday—says when New York answers the call of the bar, he'll be glad to stand a few rounds on the house himself. For it seems that prohibition never had a case of athlete's foot, but that repeal gave the ladies a frightful fear of spreading hips.

2,000 IN DRIVE ON 'LEGGERS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Disappointed in its hope repeal would minimize bootlegging, the government today was mobilizing a force of 2,000 agents to stage a drive on illicit distillers surpassing in scope many of those made during prohibition.

The disclosure of Joseph H. Choate, Jr., director of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, that bootlegging still remains as a serious problem and is threatening the legitimate industry, caused the belief to prevail today the chief executive would take steps soon to lower prices and improve the quality of the legal product.

Arthur J. Mellott, a Kansas City lawyer, was selected by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to direct the Bureau of Internal Revenue's drive against the bootleggers.

On May 10 the agents of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol and the skeletonized force of prohibition agents will be merged and former dry agents re-employed in the new drive until the enforcement force throughout the country totals about 2,000 men.

STATE TO MAIL RUM CHECKS

HARRISBURG, May 1.—(AP.)—Nearly a half million dollars in liquor receipts will be returned to municipalities next month.

The Liquor Control Board had announced today the amountt to be sent to communities in which licensed places are located totals $427,762.50. The sum represents fees from 1,996 licenses issued since January 31.

Combined with the February disbursement of $1,692,950, the present fund increases to $2,120,712 the total collected from retail licenses since repeal. An additional $6,100 has been collected for public service licenses. These fees go into the state treasury.

To date the Liquor Control Board has granted 7,904 licenses and denied 1,293 applications.

Pittsburgh Dancer Taken in Chase

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—Stephen Kish, 30, who described himself as a tap dancer of Pittsburgh, was held under $1,500 bail to the grand jury today on a charge of peddling narcotics. He was arrested last night after a chase through Times Square in which a pursuing policeman fired several shots into the air.

38,000 Cases Rum Come From Europe

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—The first consignments of liquor since the lifting of import quotas arrived in New York today.

The liner American Banker brought 8,000 cases from London and the Cameronia carried 30,000 cases of Scotch whisky from Glasgow.

4 HELD IN BLAST IN SWISSVALE

Four men were under arrest today in connection with an explosion which last night destroyed the one-story frame home of Joseph Cemino, in Orchard way, Swissvale.

Those arrested were Cemino, Joe Margola, of 317 Fifth street, Rankin; Thomas Blant, 611 Baldrich street, Braddock, and Mike Coyle, 13 Miller street, Rankin.

They were held in $20,000 bail each, to await a hearing. The District Attorney's office said it was the highest bail ever fixed here in an arson case.

Margola, critically burned in the fire that followed the explosion, is at Braddock General Hospital. Doctors there said that he had little chance for recovery.

The blast shattered windows in several nearby homes and was heard within a half-mile radius.

Flames shot out as he passed the house ignited Margola's clothing, police were told. Robert Finan and Harry Wiesman, both of Michigan street, and Roy Ludwig, of Nevada street, extinguished Margola's blazing clothing and summoned Patrolman H. G. Mockett, who rushed the victim to Braddock General Hospital in a commandeered automobile.

Fire Chief Peter McGuirk estimated the damage at $3,000.

Cemono is employed by his father, a building contractor, police were informed.

A report that a woman was walking with Margola at the time could not be verified by police.

Three New Groves Greet Park Patrons

Residents of Allegheny County who hold their picnics at North and South parks will be greeted by three new groves this season. They are:

Triple Oaks, North Park, on the Henderson plateau, off the Babcock boulevard, and has accommodations for 400 persons; Shady Dell and Sylvan Spring, South Park, can be reached by the Broughton-Library road or the Brownsville road, entering South Park by the Golf Club drive. Shady Dell and Sylvan Spring each are built for 200 persons.

MARITAL ISSUE 'UP TO GLORIA'

By SEYMOUR BERKSON
Universal Service.

PARIS, May 1.—Gloria Swanson, American screen actress, and her husband, Michael Farmer, are going to 'talk it all over" in London some time this summer, Farmer says.

Commenting on reports that Miss Swanson is planning to bring suit for divorce, Farmer said:

"Maybe it is the old story that a career and marriage do not mix. Anyhow, I have not heard anything directly from Gloria about a divorce. We have never discussed it."

Farmer recently disclosed that he and Miss Swanson had virtually separated. His disclosures were followed by Miss Swanson's statement in New York that she would seek a divorce. Farmer said:

"Gloria has been busy with her tour in the United States, but I am expecting to meet her in London before the end of this summer, and then we will talk it all over in a friendly way. Until I speak to Gloria face to face, I cannot say what will happen."

Farmer has been one of the leading playboys during the Paris social season.

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.)

PARIS, May 1.—(Universal.)—There are always plenty of boats to America, but one does not have frequent opportunities to meet the King and Queen of England.

So on the eve of her scheduled departure to the United States this week, Mrs. Edward B. Close, attractive New York society matron, canceled her reservations when informer she would be presented at the Court of St. James on May 16.

Mrs. Close, the former Elizabeth Taliaferro, is busy shopping in Paris and also plans to visit her twin sons who are at school near Oxford.

But "business is business," and that, she says, is why she must catch the boat to America the very next day after her presentation. She will be the guest in New York of Mrs. Carl B. Eb.

Kathryn Schrafft, pretty American heiress and opera singer, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. George Schrafft, at their Paris apartment, prior to her return to Milan to prepare for her London concert debut in Wickmore Hall, June 25, when she will sing with Dino Borgioli, formerly of the Chicago Civic Opera.

Kathryn is regarded as a promising songbird, and there is talk that she may sing next season at London's Covent Garden Opera House. She is intent upon her career, shuns social fanfare and is trying to hide her wealth from the other students at Milan.

Consistently and methodically, Mrs. Peyton Leitner has played number zero at the Cannes roulette table this week. Finally, the other night, zero won, but to her furious amazement the croupier had for the first time forgotten to play her favorite number for her.

Mrs. Leitner gave the croupier such a tongue-lashing that the management decided to pay her bet anyway, but she walked out swearing she would never play again.

Senora Sert, sister of the Mdivani princes and wife of the Spanish mural painter, and Mme. Gabrielle Chanel, the famed couturier, who were formerly inseparable companions, are not speaking.

U. S. HIGHWAYS SYSTEM URGED

The proposal of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers that a system of federal highways be built across the entire country, has received the support and praise of local officials.

Dr. Thomas M. Heard, Jr., president of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, gave the proposal his support in a radio address yesterday.

Dr. Heard pointed out that up to the present time all of our highways have been designed and built as connecting links between cities or other population centers.

He advocated a direct route across the country, "running straight as an arrow and as level as engineering skill can make it."

The road, he declared, should not deviate to the right or to the left to connect up with cities or population centers. Cities and sections should build feeders to the main highway, he declared.

Dr. Heard talked on station WCAE at noon yesterday during the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter period.

MOTHER STAMP GOING ON SALE

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—The new postage stamp in memory and in honor of the mothers of America will be on sale in postoffices Thursday.

Postmaster General Farley, in a radio address last night, said the new stamp—with the likeness of "Mother," the world-famous painting by James Abbott McNeill Whistler, as its central motif—would be purple.

The Whistler painting, the Postmaster General announced, was used for the theme of the new stamp at the suggestion of President Roosevelt.

The first sheets of the stamps were run off the presses of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington several days ago, with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt looking on as the guest of honor.

Man Wills $64,000 To Grandchildren

Leaving an estate valued at $65,000, Edward S. Crocker, late resident of Crafton, left $1,000 jointly to his son, Frederick S. Blacksmith Quits For Lack of Horses

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—James Kiely, who has been shoeing horses for 44 years, is closing up shop.

He is doing just as good a job as he ever did, he says—it's the horses that have petered out.

Almost his only jobs of late have been for police department horses, and now Mayor La Guardia has ordered that police horses be shod at the department shop for economy's sake.

DRIVER HITTING TROLLEY FLEES

Police today sought a motorist whose automobile struck a street car on South Eighteenth at St. Patrick street last night and who drove away after telling the motorman a woman in his car required hospital treatment.

A check of hospitals failed to reveal anyone injured in a trolley accident.

Operator A. P. Carbonalle said the motorist struck the side of the trolley and broke a window and window guard. None of the passengers was injured.

Leetsdale Woman Wills $21,600 Estate

Mrs. Mary H. Hutchinson, who died recently at her Leetsdale home, left an estate of $21,600, according to her will filed for probate today. Her son, William J. Hutchinson, Jr., and a nephew, Samuel J. Wainwright, of Memphis, Tenn., were willed $1,000 each. The balance of her estate goes to her husband, William J. Hutchinson, Sr., of Leetsdale.

SLEEP TABLETS BRING DEATH

Sleeping tablets, taken in too large quantities, today caused the death of Frank Baker, 38, of 321 Collins avenue, according to Dr. H. L. Westerman's report to the Coroner's office.

In his statement to Chief Deputy Coroner John S. Aldisert, Dr. Westerman said Baker had been taking between 200 and 300 tablets a week for the past several weeks.

Tired, Burning Feet Mean Dangerous Foot Disease

IF WALKING is a hideous torture—if you can't be on your feet without excruciating pain—don't neglect your condition. Look out for DERMASTALSIS, the newly-discovered, insidious disease menace that threatens the very basis of good health—your feet.

Foot callouses—tough, hardened, knobby skin pads—actually crush and deaden living cells with their painful inward pressure. These atrophied cell tissues build up and up on the inside of the callous—until this thick, rock-like, dead mass bruises the unprotected nerves and tissues unbearably at every single step you take.

Why let every step be a piercing, nerve-wracking pain—wearing you down to a frazzle after a few hours on your feet? . . . you can so easily end DERMASTALSIS—free yourself from relentless foot torture, ageing you before your time. The treatment costs only a few cents—takes just a few minutes in the privacy of your home.

At night, before retiring, soak the feet in hot water for 15 minutes. Then rub in Coolene, the new ivory-white vanishing foot cream. Immediately you will feel the callous begin to soften—Coolene's soothing, cooling oils and unguents penetrating deep into the sore, burning tissues beneath. This healing medication instantly draws out fiery inflammation—stops all irritation. Checks DERMASTALSIS by removing painful pressure—softens, and in a short time actually tends to destroy the entire callous growth.

Use COOLENE tonight. Tomorrow—all day long—your feet will stay fresh as a daisy—cool, springy, untiring. Thousands of users, people on their feet all day, depend on Coolene for steady foot comfort. Get a jar today, and you, too, will never want to be without it. Greaseless. Will not stain.

MANY MEDALS CAPTURED BY U. S. WINES

By R. W. JIMERSON.

California wineries are producing notable examples of three major types of wine—dry, sweet and sparkling.

Before the American buyer, particularly the householder who is building up a modest cellar, parts with the large sums of money he must spend for imported wines, he owes it to himself to make an investigation of California's products.

Imported wines cost at least twice as much as California wines.

The American buyer should not be worried over the comparatively low quality and the high prices of the imported wines, however. He should be glad, because this is a combination of circumstances that should lead inevitably to the wines of California.

California's dry wines come chiefly from the counties about the Bay of San Francisco—Napa, Sonoma, Alameda and Santa Clara. Scores of gold medals and other honors won in open competition with the great wines of the world in international expositions testify to the high quality of these light wines, quality built on three-quarters of a century of careful, costly, painstaking work by the grape grower and the vintner.

FAITHFUL REPRODUCTIONS

The better known dry red wines are claret, burgundy, chianti and cabernet, all faithful reproductions of the corresponding European types. They bear French names merely for purposes of identification, not with any attempt to lead the purchaser into believing he is getting a Burgundy from France or a Chianti from Italy. These types come from the dry wine district in Central California.

Then there is a distinctively California wine, the famous Zinfandel, a claret type that is in great demand all over the United States, a red table wine that is light, soft and smooth. The Grignolino, produced chiefly in San Bernardino County, is another red wine of wonderful bouquet and delightful taste.

These red wines are each available in vintages to suit each palate. The average householder should experiment until he finds the type which precisely meets his requirements.

DELICATE WHITE WINES

The same holds true for the white wines, of which California produces some delicate and notable types. California's vintners produce Sauterns running the whole gamut from quite sweet to completely dry. California Chablis from the Napa and Sonoma vineyards asks no favors of the best of the European products. Reisling types, as well as the California Hock and Moselle, likewise offer themselves proudly under "California" labels to buyers of discrimination.

Sweet wines are "sociability" wines, with the exception of the versatile sherry, which can be taken before, during and after the meal. Angelica, a sweet wine which is a favorite with women, was developed in California and named in honor of Los Angeles.

Even those who concede the high quality of California dry and sweet wines will sometimes insist that sparkling wine of a high quality comes only from France.

WON HIGHEST AWARD

The fact is, nevertheless, that California has been producing champagne of excellent quality and character for more than 50 years. A California champagne won the "grand prix" at the International Exposition at Turin, Italy, in 1911, against the finest wines of all the world.

The exacting jury of international experts gave it the highest award in their power, not knowing until their decision was recorded that it was a California champagne which they were honoring.

There are at least four California wineries which produce champagne of high quality.

These great wines, incidentally, are made exactly as are the fine champagnes of Europe, but foreign wine agents are using every method of suasion to bar California wines from their natural market.

Scarcity of Honest Men Worries Mayor

ERIE, Pa., May 1.—(AP.)—The scarcity of honest men is adding furrows to the brow of Mayor James P. Rossiter. Says he:

"If I could find such a person to fight battles against utilities and carry out my program against city evils, I would not seek re-election next year."

Irene Castle Plans to Make Film Comeback

IRENE CASTLE M'LAUGHLIN

SCREEN TEST SUCCESS

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—Irene Castle McLaughlin, famed equally as a dancer and as one of America's best-dressed women, plans to re-enter the movies, Warner Brothers Studios announced today.

Following a screen test it was said that she probably would be offered a contract.

Immediately after the test she flew back to her home in Chicago, where the mother of her husband, Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, was critically ill. Director Alan Crosland said:

"The test was very complete and revealed that Miss Castle lost none of her distinctive grace and charm."

DENTISTS OPEN CONVENTION

Featuring the latest ideas in modern dentistry, the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society opened today in the William Penn Hotel.

Dr. Harry C. Metz, Pittsburgh dentist and president of the state society, opened the three-day convention. Exhibits included wax models of unusual design, and masks showing peculiar facial conditions which are a part of the work of present day teeth specialists.

Besides the clinics and exhibits at the hotel, arrangements have been made to conduct clinics in exodontia and anesthesia at the Elizabeth Steel Magee and Mercy hospitals. The convention will close Thursday with the dental hygenists' banquet.

SPRING BRINGS MARRYING URGE

Spring is in the air again—and if you don't believe it, take a jaunt over to the City-County Building, second floor rear, to the Marriage License Bureau. Its customers have forgotten there's a depression, or maybe they think it's over. Anyway, business is booming.

Records for the month of April, completed yesterday, rate the month as the year's best with a total of 733 licenses issued. April of 1934, when compared with the same month last year, shows an increase of 252 couples who have taken up the "two can live as cheaply as one" adage.

Top-notch day of the month, and consequently of the year, was Saturday, when from 9 to 12 a. m. 57 couples took their turns in standing in line (there weren't enough seats to go around) so that they might eventually say "I do" in proper legal form.

One cloud, alone, appears on Cupid's Pittsburgh horizon—the fact that business in the divorce courts is picking up just as much as in that stepping-off place, the Marriage License Bureau.

'Plane Sign Falls In Fifth Avenue

A 50-foot advertising sign attached to an airplane broke loose late yesterday and fell into Fifth avenue near Craft avenue. No one was struck by the sign, police reported.

PITTSBURGH'S ORIGINAL BARGAIN BASEMENT

AL WILLIAMS -:- 'Blossom Time,' Knickerbocker -:- HEARD ON AIR

Air Prophet Broadcasts Tonight

Capt. Al Williams, who has an eager following of millions of air-minded Americans on his Saturday night network broadcasts, accepts an invitation to speak to KDKA listeners during tonight's Pittsburgh Varieties Program at 9:15.

The famous flier, whose accurate foresight into the future of flying has earned him the title, "Prophet of the Air," was once a pitcher with the New York Giants; a member of the New York bar, and held the world record for speed flying for eight consecutive years.

Among other things, Capt. Williams has deliberately flown a plane to complete destruction, without a parachute, to observe the effects of stress and strain of extreme speed on various types of aircraft.

* * *

Appropriately, WCAE presents "Blossom Time," Franz Schubert's famous operetta, with Gladys Swarthout and James Melton in the leading roles, as the Beauty Box Theater performance tonight at 10 o'clock.

* * *

Tom Lewis, former Pittsburgh coal miner, leads the male choir of 185 factory workmen during their broadcast over WJAS tonight at 10:30.

* * *

Dorothy Dell, Jack Oakie, Alison Skipworth and Roscoe Karnes are among the Hollywood headliners appearing on Ben Bernie's program on WCAE tonight at 9 o'clock.

* * *

The Musical Memories program, heard over KDKA at 9 o'clock, features a new version of the "Big Bad Wolf"—"The Three Little Pigs Are Pork Chops Now."

* * *

Cholly Knickerbocker, whose gossip about New York society is a feature of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is heard over WJAS at 9 p. m. with Freddie Rich's orchestra.

* * *

Samuel DiPrimio, KDKA tenor, sings his farewell concert at 7:15 this evening, entraining for New York immediately after the broadcast.

* * *

Samuel Harden Church is heard over WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock, as guest of George Seibel, in a discussion of "What Shall We Do About the Theater?"

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Tomorrow we have another talk from Harold B. Foulkrod, the special contact man from the Department of Military Affairs, Harrisburg.

He informed the veterans that the organization handling the payment of compensation to soldiers was entirely made up of ex-service men whose hearts as well as minds were in the work.

He said that 398,000 applications for compensation had been received and that the rate of handling in Pennsylvania was better than 50 per cent faster than in Ohio or New York.

He mentioned that the Attorney General was preparing an opinion which might affect thousands and thousands of Pennsylvania citizens who were the only relatives of deceased soldiers, yet not mothers, wives, fathers, or children.

The question is whether the bonus money can become part of the estate if the above mentioned relatives are not in being.

We'll learn more about that Wednesday.

Harold Foulkrod is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars as well as the American Legion.

An unusual letter from a mother arrived today. There is nothing that can be done for her. She presents a good argument but unfortunately for her the law is otherwise.

She points out that she spent the sleepless night when her boy went to France. It was her only son and each day while he was away was a nightmare for her.

When he returned he married. Shortly thereafter he died. His wife collects the bonus for the war service while the mother gets nothing. Yet the mother did the worrying, the wife didn't know her husband until he returned from France.

Futurists Cast Eye On Radio

By AIRCASTER

It was inevitable that, having left their mark on the cinema, on canvas, in literature and, to some extent, in the theater, the futurists should turn their designs on radio.

It appears that they now have given their attention to the kilocycle, ambitious to materialize a new art that is "universal and cosmic" and something else which they call "a spirituality of sounds."

Signor Marinetti, who founded and led the futurist movement in art, is again in the saddle, and we hear from him through a prospectus, now reposing in the National Broadcasting Company's archives.

The futurist estimate of current radio is this: It is stupid and monotonous because it borrows from stage and literature and wafts languid melodies.

It should begin where the cinema, books, music and the theater leave off; it should enjoy the freedom it deserves. There should be a widening of space.

SEA, FOREST MUSIC

In place of drama, song and talk, as we know them, the radio should awaken an organic entity of wireless consciousness and develop an art without past or future, day or night the signor says.

There is a lot of other such language in the prospectus, but all that a fairly normal mind can gather from it is that the signor thinks radio should begin at once to capture, amplify and transform vibrations emitted by living things and spirits, states of mind as depicted by sound, and also the vibrations of inanimate things.

"Today," says he, in citing an example, "we listen to the song of the forest and the sea; tomorrow we shall be enchanted by the vibrations of a gem or a flower; we should strive for the expression and interpretation of the characteristic life of every sound, of the infinite variety of the concrete and the abstract—the actual and the imagined."

Odd Fellows to Celebrate Birth

Refreshments and entertainment will be provided at the one hundred third anniversary celebration of Pittsburgh Encampment No. 2, I. O. O. F., in the Hilltop Bank Building, Mt. Washington, at 8 p. m. today. Clarence P. Forsythe is chairman of the affair.

Leas Lose Battle To Escape Terms

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(Universal)—Luke Lea, Tennessee banker and publisher, lost a crucial legal battle yesterday when the Supreme Court refused to prevent his extradition to North Carolina to serve a prison term.

Rejecting the petition of Lea and his son, Luke Lea, Jr., for a writ of certiorari, the high court cleared the way for the legal removal of the Leas from Tennessee to Asheville, N. C., where they were convicted of violating state banking laws.

Baltimore Traps Mayor's Monkey

BALTIMORE, May 1.—(AP.)—After an 11-day hunt, which carried policemen and others over the tops of buildings, over fences and into cellars, the Mayor's monkey is behind zoo bars.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson received the monkey April 19. Not realizing what sort of present it was, his secretary opened the packing box carelessly. The gift jumped out a window, but was finally caught in a lunchroom.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

The Phalanx Trio makes its bow locally tonight with a quarter-hour of instrumental music at 5:45.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

Why FURS Must LEAVE HOME

To Get Proper Treatment In Summer

1. Crowding them into a moth-ball filled trunk—cramping them into cedar bags—treating them and hiding them in some dark corner takes away their "life" and gloss—and encourages accumulation of dust particles.
2. Furs need cold storage—they have grown and thrive best in colder climates!
3. Furs at home are in constant risk of theft or fire. In storage they are insured against it!
4. In Boggs & Buhl storage they are hung individually with "breathing space"—healthy throughout the Summer.
5. There is satisfaction in knowing your coat is at Boggs & Buhl.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Swagger a little swagger and thank your lucky stars that one of the stores has anything like this to offer!

Linen Swagger Suits with batiste dresses under them for the slenderized sum of $5.98. The sort of swagger suits that will carry you through the spring days and the summer ones with equal ease. Plain color coats . . . with prints under them such as blues raspberries, browns and greens. For misses and women.

* * *

Swing a wicked golf club and putt with desperate skill! It won't be hard to do in a silk golf dress that depends upon a 2-piece pleated skirt with a yoke and a short sleeved "top" with a detachable scarf tie and belt. These last in white polka dots on brown or navy ground. Peach, white, blue, maize, and in sizes 14, 16 and 18. Priced $10.95.

A whole quart of wave set for your little wiglet! Great gobs of this goo necessary to finger waving—put up in a quart refrigerator bottle that can be used AS one after the lotion is gone.

This will not flake, dry out the scalp, or affect the shade of the hair. And it costs . . . guess what! . . . only 25c just now as a SPECIAL!

A little shirt . . . some tricky shorts . . . and there you are! Looking like you did when you played in the sandbox as a child . . . feeling almost as carefree . . . and suitably clad for active sports from now on.

We know where these appear in gingham plaids . . . all woven fabrics . . . for the low sum of $2.98. Women's and misses' sizes.

* * *

Be smooth . . . and let who will be otherwise. For now the company that makes a famous depilatory has reduced their prices far below former levels. Regular $1 to $3 bottles of this mixture come at 50c to $1.50 now . . . with spatula included for application. De W——'s own, and anyone who has used this knows what a value they're getting!

Beginning tomorrow! An offer of THIRTY-THREE-AND-ONE-THIRD-PER CENT-OFF on all monogramming done on linens purchased during May! Which offers you something you've always longed for and couldn't buy because the budget reared its head at that point!

PUPILS BENEFIT BY RUSHMORE EXTENSION

Students profit with their adult participants in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition, hundreds taking advantage of the 18 extra days allowed for completing and submitting their 600-word texts.

Mr. Fixel

The new closing date is Memorial Day, May 30, with midnight as the final hour. The previous closing date was May 12. An extension of time was granted because of hundreds of requests throughout the country being received by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers, which are sponsoring the competition for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission.

STUDENTS BENEFIT

So every student and pupil—of universities and colleges, high and grade schools—can devote more thought to their version of America's epic. They can gain more information and material. As an example, the final interview of a special series of radio broadcasts from Station WCAE will be heard Thursday at 5:45 p. m. (daylight time). William G. Fixel, instructor in history at the Allegheny High School, will be interviewed on the last three episodes of the nine specific points of history that must be the basis of all text entries.

Mr. Fixel will discuss: Settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute; the Alaska Purchase, and Building of the Panama Canal. The talk will be based upon the effect these events had upon the progress and history of the nation.

That is the thought to be borne in mind by all contestants. Remember that your text must not just cite the particular episode. It must tell the effect that each episode had upon the country's growth. The nine episodes, besides the final three being discussed by Mr. Fixel are: 1—Writing of the Declaration of Indipendence. 2—Drafting of the American Constitution. 3—Purchase of Lopisiana 4—Ceding of the Floridas to the United States. 5—Rise of the Republic of Texas and its entry into the union. 6—The Mexican War and the acquistion of California.

REVISED RULES GIVEN

Read the revised school rules published elsewhere on this page. Check the entry form also published and make certain if you must use it. The complete set of rules will be pubblished Thursday. In the meantime, you can obtain a special free folder at the Sun-Telegraph Downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. It will be mailed provided youd request, addressed to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Editor,, care Sun-Telegraph. IS ACCOMPANIED BY A STAMPED ENVELOPE.

Make up your mind to join the great parade of American men, women and children seeking the honor of writing that 600-word history which will become the basis for the inscription on the national mounment in South Dakota. If you already have started your text, read and study it, make revisions that will improve the entry and then rewrite it before sending it in. If you have not started a text, you have plenty of time.

Mount Rushmore Text Rules for Students

Rules for student participation in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial competition follow:

1—All students in the public, private and Pittsburgh Diocese parish schools, day and evening, in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, are to submit their texts to the principals of the respective schools. The principals of Pittsburgh public schools, Allegheny County public schools, and the Munhall, Duquesne and Wilkinsburg schools will submit all entries to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, in care of the Sun-Telegraph.

Principals in Pittsburgh, Diocese, Carnegie, Rankin, East Pittsburgh, Crafton, Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Clairton, Tarentum, New Kensington, Braddock, North Braddock, Homestead, McKeesport, Bellevue, Stowe Township and Monongalia County, Morgantown, W. Va., schools will submit the best text of each school to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee.

2—All students in universities and colleges in the same area are to submit their text to the faculty member designated by the school's president.

3—In the event there is no committee in charge of the competition at the school or college of any entrant, such entrant may mail his text to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, in care of the Sun-Telegraph. These entrants must certify the class in which they are competing and the school from which they are entering.

4—All entries must be received by the schools or colleges of the entrants not later than midnight, Memorial Day, May 30, 1934. The same date closes entries to students submitting direct to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee.

5—All school and college committees must complete the judging of entries in their respective schools and send the best entry from each school to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee not later than 12 o'clock noon, June 16, 1934.

6—Every entrant in this competition agrees, as a condition of his entry, to accept the judgment of any school or local or intermediate board of judges, as well as the national committee, as final and without recourse.

STUDENT SPECIAL ENTRY FORM

Students attending colleges and schools in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia without active participation arrangements should attach this blank to their text entries. entries. Address entries before midnight, May 30, to:

Brakes Wore Out—but THIS Tire Kept Right on Rolling

Test cars burned out brakes in 72 hours

THE Goodyear test cars were "trying out" a new tire. Start—run to 50—stop. Start—run to 50—stop. Hard, quick, emergency-like stops, jamming on the brakes.

The strain was terrific! Brakes had to be adjusted every 8 hours, completely relined every 72.

But when that battle was over, we knew we had a better tire than ever before. We wanted a tire to match the new cars, for these high-powered, faster-sprinting, quicker-stopping cars were putting new burdens on tires—demanded longer wear, more grip—and "G-3" certainly was that tire!

How it Started

Treads were wearing out too fast. Not only competing tires—but even ours. And because leadership is a tradition at Goodyear this order came from the executive offices: "Find out what's wrong and lick it! Pour all of our experience, resources, and skill into building a tire that can stand the gaff!"

Today—that tire is ready for you. It is called "G-3" because that was the simple symbol which identified it in all of the research tests. It needs no fancy name, for in the plain, honest facts are reasons enough for any sensible man or woman to buy it.

Put "G-3" tires under you and you will get greater non-skid mileage than you ever got before. And that's important, on today's smooth highways and boulevards, if you want to stop.

Smooth highways invite you to drive at higher speeds. You need grip on your tires more than ever—and "G-3" All-Weather keeps its grip 43% longer

Here are the facts:

43% longer non-skid mileage.
16% more non-skid blocks.
5½% wider tread; more road contact.
11½% wider ribs; narrower grooves.
100% guarantee that it is the best All-Weather that Goodyear ever built. It costs more to build—because there's more rubber in the tread—an average of 2 lbs. more per tire.

You may ask: "If the tread is heavier, does that increase sidewall strain?" The answer is yes. But, here is why Goodyear can pile on that added strain and stand it—Supertwist! For only Goodyear has the right to build tires with Supertwist, that marvelous, extra-durable, extra-elastic cord fabric which enables the carcass of "G-3" to accept an increase in strain with no effort at all.

See "G-3" All-Weathers in your size. See how the closer-nested pattern of diamond blocks and ribs makes a more compact pattern, one that reduces "squirming" of the tread under pressure. And "squirming," you know, is responsible for much tread-wear.

If you have tires to buy, buy "G-3" All-Weather tires now for—while they cost more to build—they cost you nothing extra!

A Master of Satire Sums Up Campaign

By MARK SHIELDS

This column really should bear another name and surround another picture. For it is not original here, but a reproduction of "The Pennsylvania Legislator," which is "published every so often" by its author, Senator George Woodward, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Shields

Senator Woodward, in addition to being an extremely wealthy gentleman and an independent from the Germantown district, is a master of satire, and frequently points a bar or two at his associates. In the latest edition of his pamphlet he has ironically summed up the campaign, and not only as it applies to candidates for the major offices. He gleefully satirizes some of the campaign promises and, pretending to be a candidate for Governor, and using paragraphs entitled to a wider circulation than his pamphlet, he writes:

As one of the unemployed, it has occurred to me to run for Governor. If you elect me, you will at least remove one from the army of the unemployed. I am not the candidate of any one faction or any combination of factions. I wish I were, but up to date, I am entirely factionless. I am offering myself as the candidate of every man, woman and child in this, our Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I gladly will accept the votes of all voters, whether they are leaders, office holders, taxpayers, or forgotten men, without any prejudice as to their race, religion, color or previous condition of servitude. They all look good to me, and I here and now declare myself their very promising friend. I am a 100 per cent American. I was born that way and can't help it. The problems before us transcend politics and factions. We are all up against it, including myself, or I wouldn't be out in this very open primary. If the old convention system will nominate me for office, I am for it. I have either a 7-point or a 13-point platform. I am not yet sure, but we shall see.

Fewer Candidates Or More Offices

Before actually building my platform, I wish to make a brief survey of the extraordinarily unfit bunch of candidates who are running for this office of Governor against me. I wish to go on record, without any reservations, that either there ought to be fewer men running for office or else there ought to be more offices. That may sound radical, but it is my mature judgment. This campaign must be kept on a high level, but there are slush funds. I will not stoop to naming names, but I will devote my best efforts to discover how my opponents raised the funds to slush. I have always been a poor man and still am, up to the time of releasing this statement.

Every day I see in the papers where some other candidate is being supported except myself. My platform stays as it is or will be when written. If you do not read that far, you can briefly take it from me that I am a lifelong believer in the principles of both the Republican and particularly of the Democratic party at this time. I know no bosses. No bosses recognize me, worse luck, and I will stick in this race until I am thrown out. I am a loyal Republican-Democrat, and stand firmly behind or in front or alongside, any position, of both party principles. If you doubt this, read my platform, which is not dictated by any monied interest. I cannot say this too often, as I feel it. The invisible government of Mellon, Grundy, Pepper, Vare, Guffey, Kelly, Dougherty, or Congressman Stokes, has never touched me. I wish it had.

* * *

Jobs for Workers, Pensions for Others

Seven to 13-point platform (in order of importance):

1—Legal horse race betting: I am for it. Any child voter knows the phychology of getting something for nothing.

2—Outlawing of sweatshops: I am unalterably opposed to sweatshops and don't see how they ever started.

3—Elimination of waste: I am for elimination in general and 100 per cent for it when applied to waste.

4—Permanent milk control: I believe most sincerely in anything permanent in this short-changing world. The control of all milk certainly must be made permanent.

5—Abolition of child labor: I am for it. There are too many children and too much labor.

6—A job for the man who wants to work: I am for it. If jobs are found for only the men who want to work, the unemployment problem is solved. For the other men, I shall devote my time, strength and money to securing old age pensions, young age pensions, musicians' pensions, officeholders' pensions, fire and police veterans, not so old service men, sailors and marines who rendered no service. My plank right here is "A Pension for Every Man, Woman and Child Who is Not a Taxpayer."

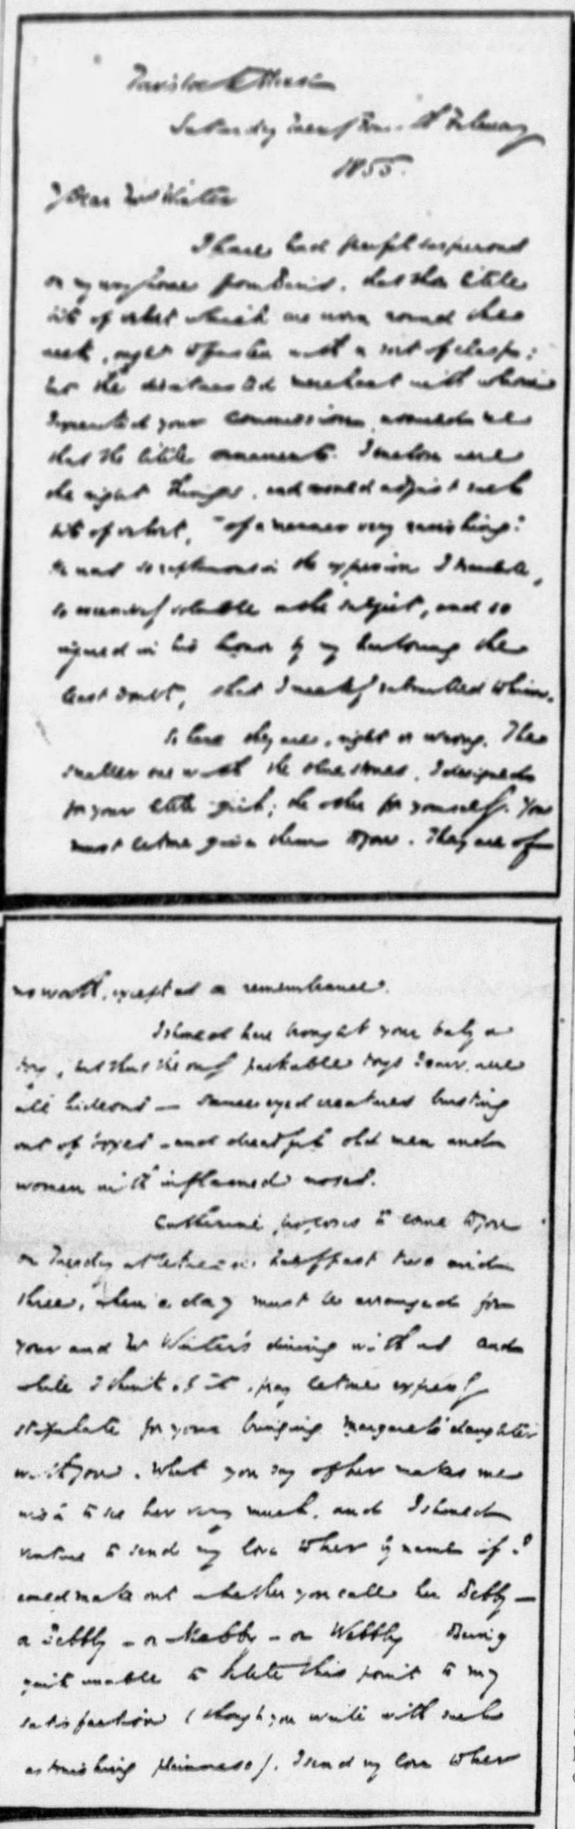
Maria's Letters Reawakened Dickens' Dreams of 'Only Girl'



From the Original in the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery, San Marino, California.

DICKENS LETTER OF FEBRUARY 24, 1855, TO MRS. WINTER

Author's Charity Was So Strong He Imputed No Blame to One Who Had Destroyed His Youthful Illusions, Notes Reveal

Previous episodes have presented the amazing "First Interlude" in the dramatic life of Charles Dickens. He captivated Maria Beadnell, beautiful daughter of a well-to-do banker. After three years of ardent courtship Maria rejected him. Heartbroken and despondent, he impulsively married Cathrine Hogarth. Years of unhappiness followed. Twenty-two years later began the "Second Interlude." Dickens was now forty-four, and the father of nine children. Maria had been married for years to a staid, small business man and had two children. She wrote to Dickens. He responded with an ardor which reflected the love he had felt in his heart all his life for Maria Beadnell. Yesterday was printed one of Dickens' letters of the "Second Interlude" which has been pronounced one of the "greatest love letters ever written." Today is presented his "camouflage letter" to Maria.

By H. H. HARPER

THE years had indeed "vanished like a dream." The remembrance of his old love was upon him and his pen ran on with the abandon and indiscretion of youth, combined with the eloquence of mature years. Carried away by the vision of his first sweetheart, he wrote with the power and pathos of one who looks back longingly from the dismal prison house he has built for himself, walled in by the social barriers and responsibilities that he has somehow accumulated while striving for success and happiness.

Maria's letters, reaching him in this uncongenial state, suddenly opened a door that he had thought closed for ever. Through this opening he looked back upon the hardships of his unhappy childhood, "so long, so bare, so blank;" and thus he reviewed the dreams of his youth—his long lost hopes of a happy marriage with the only girl he had ever really loved—a train of memories that might well have unsteadied a pen in the sturdiest hand.

The strange part of it all is, that the charity of his heart was such that he imputed no blame to the one who had destroyed all his youthful illusions. The years had so softened his resentment that one might easily suppose he was unburdening his soul to some fairy queen to whom he owed all the triumphs of his life.

It is easy to see how fortunate it was for Dickens that Mrs. Winter kept these lettters inviolate during his lifetime; but now when the world reads them in their entirety, and with a complete understanding of the circumstances under which they were written, this love story will lend an added charm to everything Dickens ever wrote.

No character in all his books is so vividly interesting as he made himself; in no book that ever he wrote did he place the leading character in such peril as he unwittingly created for himself; and few love stories in history are more filled with pathos and drama than his own life experience.

If any one should find it difficult to reconcile the impassioned letter of February 22 with the one he then had in mind to write—and did write two days later—to Maria's home, it may be explained by saying that Dickens was nothing if not humanly impulsive and romantic. But in his exuberance he had brought on a situation that could easily have been used to checkmate his whole career; for it would have been quite possible, even for a fair-minded person, to suspect dishonorable motives in a man who wrote two such letters to a married woman, the first to a private address, and the second to her home.

Here follows the deceptive letter he intended to be read by Maria's husband or any one else who might see it. It will be seen that the endearing opening, "My dear Maria," and the affectionate closing in the spontaneous love letter of February 22, have given place to "My Dear Mrs. Winter," and "Very faithfully yours."

And true to his promise he tells her—in order to forestall any suspicion in others who might read it—that Catherine (his wife) would see her, etc. It is a cordial, harmless little missive, quite a platonic affair, compared to the one two days previous, "all to herself."

Tavistock House
Saturday, Twenty-fourth
February, 1855.

My Dear Mrs. Winter:

I have had fearful suspicions on my way home from Paris, that those little bits of velvet which are worn around the neck ought to fasten with a sort of clasp; but the disinterested merchant with whom I executed your commission, assured me that the little ornaments I enclose were the right thing, and would adjust such bits of velvet, "Of a manner very ravishing." He was so rapturous in the expression I translate—so excessively voluble on the subject, and so injured in his honor by my harboring the least doubt, that I meekly submitted to him.

So here they are, right or wrong. The smaller one with the blue stones, I designed for your little girl; the other for yourself. You must let me give them to you. They are of no worth, except as a remembrance.

I should have brought your baby a toy, but that the only packable toys I saw were all hideous saucer-eyed creatures bursting out of boxes—and dreadful old men and women with inflamed noses.

Catherine proposes to come to you on Tuesday at between half past two and three, when a day must be arranged for you and Mr. Winter's dining with us. And while I think of it, pray let me expressly stipulate for your bringing Margaret's daughter with you. What you say of her makes me wish to see her very much, and I should venture to send my love to her by name, if I could make out whether you call her Pebby—or Pebbly—or Mebby or Webbly. Being quite unable to settle this point to my satisfaction (though you write with such astonishing plainness), I send my love to her as your niece and her mother's child.

Believe me ever,
Very faithfully yours,
CHARLES DICKENS.

* * *

IN HER letters Maria had very adroitly succeeded in setting all things "right" by her "earnest words, so courageously, so delicately and gently" expressed; she had established "a confidence, which still once more" was to be between themselves alone.

Dickens had written her from Paris that her handwriting had "not in the least changed." Perhaps that's why it never occurred to him that she had changed. She must have warmed up considerably in at least one of her letters for he answered—"If you had ever told me then what you tell me now . . . the simple truth and energy which were in my love would have overcome everything . . . All this mist passes away upon your earnest words." Which shows that she was then as ingenious in clearing up mist as she had been in spreading gloom over his boyhood hopes.

It will be seen that letters received at Dickens' home were not under the restraint of domestic censorship, for he assured Mrs. Winter that he could be nowhere addressed with stricter privacy than at his own house. The exemption, however, seems not to have included this feminine caller, since he took the precaution to suggest that she ask first for Mrs. Dickens, who with all the household—excepting only himself—was sure to be out at the time appointed.

DICKENS IN HIS STUDY AT TAVISTOCK HOUSE IN 1854

We can easily picture the effect of all this on the feverishly expectant Maria, who was going to meet, secretly and intimately, the devout lover of her girlhood days, who had given her every reason to believe that he was now more susceptible than ever.

What could she do to exercise the old charm? What would he expect? Could she enchant him once more? We do not think of four and forty as old nowadays, and it would not be strange if Maria had retained some of her old fascination; indeed, she probably wrote him that she was "fat, old and ugly," with a view to giving him a happy surprise.

But with all the youthful attractions she could possibly have retained, it would have been difficult to fulfill the expectations of a man who visualized her only as the beautiful young creature who was "always the same" in his remembrance—the idol of his youth, in the raspberry colored dress, who sang and played on the harp, and captivated his "boyish heart."

It was a rather bold experiment; and yet she must have felt reasonably sure of herself, for it seems perfectly obvious that in making so many tender apologies for her former conduct, her purpose was to establish a new and closer intimacy.

Otherwise she would hardly have ventured to "enlighten him as to how much her thoughts had dwelt on him during some "crisis" in her early life; nor would she have appealed to him to "treasure" what she told him in his "heart of hearts."

His ready acceptance of her "explanations" undoubtedly reassured her, and it is not to be doubted that she felt more or less confident of her latent ability to attract. Should she ignore the intervening years and assume the role of the coquettish ingenue of nineteen? That seems precisely what she attempted to do.

Tomorrow's installment tells of the secret meeting of Dickens and Maria Beadnell Winter.

84,000 HOMES MAY BE PUT ON ROLLS

Emergency Group Out Of Funds to Balk Evictions

Moving day and threatened eviction of several thousand families today increased the tenseness of the relief crisis, as these outstanding facts developed:

1—On direct relief were 74,000 families and more than 250,000 individuals.

2—Collapse of the relief work program may bring the total to 84,000 families within another week.

3—Food and clothing relief orders were being issued on credit from the fundless treasury of the Emergency Relief Board.

4—At the peak of the eviction period, the Emergency Association was out of funds to aid those thrown homeless on the streets.

With their hands tied by lack of funds and inability to obtain them, relief agencies today were put in the position of sitting by helpless to aid those thrown on the street.

George P. Mills, director of the Emergency Relief Board and the Emergency Association, appealed to Harrisburg for state funds.

Since April 7 the Emergency Association has been using funds earmarked for medical aid and other services for aiding the evicted.

During the week ending April 27, there were 369 evictions. The funds from other sources are now depleted, too, he said.

Relief orders for food, clothing and necessities were being issued on credit, with the expectation that a transfer of funds to Allegheny County would be made in Harrisburg tomorrow.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, in Washington, promised to announce in 24 hours whether he could grant Gov. Pinchot's request for more federal relief funds.

The state is "broke," legally, Gov. Pinchot told federal relief authorities today in Washington. He revealed that Pennsylvania has reached its constitutional debt limit of $100,000,000 and, under the law, cannot again vote on amendments until 1938.

In Washington, Gov. Pinchot expected favorable action on his plea for additional relief funds.

DECISION NEAR

International News reported a "substantial agreement" had been reached by Hopkins and Pinchot in conference yesterday. Pinchot wanted at least $2,500,000 added to the federal grant of $7,632,021, it was understood.

If this is granted and turned over the RWD for continuation of the work program it will be only a "drop in the bucket," said Philip L. Lantz, deputy RWD director here.

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen charged that Harrisburg authorities had been lax in contributing the state's share of relief funds when they knew the money was running low.

RWD EMPLOYES CHARGE PROBED

A federal investigation into conditions for office employes of the relief work division opened today in Pittsburgh.

Arch Mandel, investigator from the office of Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator at Washington, came here today in response to complaints of 152 workers in the RWD headquarters in the Oliver Building.

In their complaint to Washington the workers charged that they had been dismissed without receiving nine days' pay due them and that the wages paid office workers here were lower than the regular scale.

Mandel conferred with employes and department heads in an effort to clarify the local situation.

Philip H. Lantz, deputy relief director for Allegheny County, declared that state relief officials in Harrisburg had failed to take into consideration the fact that Pittsburgh living costs were higher than elsewhere in the state in fixing the scale for office workers. He said:

"Their pay could only provide meager relief."

Maj. Gibbs Says RWD Has Failed

Discrimination against those not on relief in distribution of relief works division jobs shuts the door of independence in the face of the self-sustaining man, according to Maj. Ralph W. Gibbs.

Gibbs, candidate for Republican nomination to Congress in the Thirtieth District, said last night:

"The RWD, which succeeded the Civil Works Administration, was to have been a more or less permanent organization to bring about the return of prosperity. Instead it has been a failure."

HEARING WAIVED IN ATTACK

Edward McDonough, Braddock's "battling councilman" was at liberty on $2,500 bond today, awaiting grand jury action on his alleged attack on Michael Verosky, former political boss of the community.

Arraigned last night before Alderman Jacob C. Michaels, of Overbrook, McDonough waived hearing and was held for the grand jury.

McDonough is alleged to have struck Verosky in the washroom of the Braddock Moose Club in an argument that climaxed an old political feud.

A former police lieutenant, McDonough quit the force last fall and ran for the council on a ticket opposing the so-called "Verosky slate." He was elected. The fight came as an aftermath.

COURT TEST SET ON WORKS PLAN

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court has fixed the week of May 21 for a hearing at Harrisburg on an action to test validity of the proposed federal emergency administration loan of $29,406,000 to the Allegheny County authority for use in financing public works and improvements in that county.

The petition for the Appellate Court to take original jurisdiction was filed on behalf of Henry Tranter, Pittsburgh taxpayer, naming as defendants the Allegheny County Authority, and Press C. Dowler, William McK. Reed and Joseph C. Trees, members of the authority.

The authority has applied for the loan, and the administration has prepared a loan agreement which contemplates a $24,000,000, 4 per cent serial bond issue by the authority to be purchased by the federal government. The agreement provides for a government grant not to exceed 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material to be used in construction, which will total $6,000,000.

Tranter contends the acts contemplated by the authority would harm him and other citizens.

Seek Federal Aid For Market House

An effort to obtain from the federal government 30 per cent of the cost of materials and labor to be used in the improvement of the North Side Market House is contemplated in an ordinance introduced in City Council. Such action, if successful, would cut down the amount which the city would have to expend out of the $210,000 bond issue which has been set up for the improvement

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 1.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, San Francisco, I bet that San Francisco was a city from the very first time it had a dozen settlers. Cities are like gentlemen, they are born, not made. You are either a city, or you are not, size has nothing to do with it.

Will Rogers

New York is "yokel," but San Francisco is "city" at heart.

Boats coming from the east coast through the canal are crowded, people that didn't know that a boat went anywhere but Europe.

The old Bret Harte and Mark Twain gold mining districts are opening up again, men are trading in their golf clubs for a pick and shovel and burro.

Yours, WILL.

World Revolution Ingredients White 'Hoss,' Plug Hat

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

May first is old home week for the international agitators.

All over the world they march and fight. Just to prove they can march and fight.

The line of parade ain't vital just so it is three times around some important building.

The ingredients for a world revolution can be reduced to a plug hat and a white hoss. Those two things will start a parade anywhere. After that anything can happen.

Up to date nobody has gained immortal fame by stoning a legation or being thumped on the head by the law. With blisters on his feet and lumps on his head we diagnose an agitator as a man who is sore on both ends.

ARMY OFFICERS JOIN BATTLE ON LEAGUE

The stand of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the associated Hearst newspapers against entrance of this country into the League of Nations and World Court, has received the indorsement of the Pittsburgh Chapter No. 38, National Sojourners, an organization of present and former officers of the United States Army.

The militant men passed resolutions, indorsing stand against entering the League, and lauded the Sun-Telegraph for its efforts to combat movements to force this nation into foreign entanglements.

The resolution follows:

"The United States of America . . . . being a nation established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes, shall not be subject to the whims, notions and idiosyncrasies of any other nation, country or political subdivision regardless, and therefore shall be absolutely free from any foreign entanglements whatsoever. Therefore be it

"Resolved, that the Pittsburgh Chapter No. 38, National Sojourners, does hereby approve and indorse the attitude taken and the efforts being made by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Hearst publications throughout the country against the participation or entry of the United States of America in the League of Nations and World Court."

The sentiments expressed by the Sojourners have been indorsed by more than 39,000 individuals in this district. Thousands of signatures on petitions protesting entry into the League and World Court are being received each week at the Sun-Telegraph. Petitions are being circulated in every American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

In addition to the veterans' organizations, hundreds of petitions are being circulated by members of the auxiliaries of both the Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Any volunteer worker who would like to join this patriotic duty, can obtain petitions by writing to the League Court Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. All loyal Americans are urged to obtain petitions and circulate them for signatures among their freinds and neighbors.

(See Petition on Editorial Page).

Hints on How to Have Gay Maytime Lunches

Menu Listed Helping To Capture Proper Festive Air

May, festive month of the year, invites parties, informal get-togethers. Daytimes are too lovely to be spent entirely in washing and steaming and worrying over the ironing.

Company breakfast and luncheons can be made so festive with really very little cost and trouble. Call up some of your old friends whom you used to enjoy doing things with and invite them to spend the day at your home. For old friends you won't have to worry about entertainment, they'll have plenty to talk about.

As for the luncheon Prudence Penny has arranged a menu which will be a pleasure to prepare. For decorations she suggests sprigs of lilac or bowlfuls of violets wherin will soon be plentiful. Here's your menu . . . now all you need is the recipes.

MAYTIME LUNCHEON
Cream of Mushroom Soup
Toasted Crackers
Molded Stuffed Apple Salad
Mayonnaise
Olives Radishes
Tea Rolls
Strawberry Preserves
Chocolate Tarts with Meringue
Coffee

Doesn't that make you want to have a luncheon tomorrow? Luncheons are occasional festivities in your home, you say, but three meals a day are your prime interest. Prudence Penny is remembering that by offering you a wide assortment of recipes daily. Your recipes, if sent in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, may be included in the daily suggestions of $5 and $1 prize winners. No recipes, whether or not they are used, are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. THOMAS P. SASSANI
818 Atlantic Avenue, Wilkinsburg.
CHIVES SALLY BONES

Two pounds summer sausage
Four tablespoons flour.
One egg.
Four tablespoons butter.
One-half cup thinly sliced onion.
One and one-half cups thinly sliced celery.
Two cups water.
One medium size cucumber.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
Two pimentos.
One-half cup toasted almonds.

Cut sausage into strips four inches long and one-quarter inch thick. Roll in flour, dip in slightly beaten egg and then again in flour. Place butter in frying pan and when hot but not smoking, brown sausage over all. Add onion and celery. Cover with one cup water and simmer gently 20 minutes. Remove sausage and vegetables, add peeled and finely diced cucumber, seasonings and lemon juice with remaining cup of water to frying pan. Cover and cook 15 minutes. Add meat and vegetables to cucumber reheat, turn into serving platter and garnish with pimentos and toasted almonds.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director — J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

By J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Winners of Local Wing Prizes in Motto Contest to Be Announced in Sunday's Junior Birdmen Column

Well, Junior Birdmen, our first activity is over! The national motto contest came to a close yesterday at midnight and really, I'm afraid to look at this morning's mail bags. I can imagine the number of last-minute entries that must have been placed in the mails yesterday. And I can imagine, too, our staff working at "nose-dive" speed in order to select the four winners for those trips to Washington, D. C., which will be announced in Sunday's column.

I'll bet when you became an early member of the Junior Birdmen you little realized we were going to do a few wing-overs. Immelmans and barrel rolls and dive right into our first activity at this early stage of organization. And we have plenty of other activities in store for you, too.

Our local judges are already busy wading through the hundreds of entries in our motto contest and picking out those that they deem suitable for use. From these the two best sent in by group "A" members, and the two best submitted by group "B" members, will be selected, and these four boys and girls will be the winners of the three-day vacation trips to the nation's capital, Washington, D. C., leaving on Friday, May 25, and returning on Monday, May 28.

If your motto is selected as one of the four best, it will also be sent to national headquarters, where it will be considered, along with the four best from every Junior Birdmen city, for the grand prize, which is a coast to coast vacation trip which I am ready to tell you all about.

To Leave Pittsburgh On July Third

If a boy or girl from the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing is the winner, he or she will receive a 15-day vacation trip to San Francisco. That is even better than we first anticipated. We thought it might be 10 days, but no, sir. We are going to give you a full 15-day trip. And what a trip!

Here is the complete itinerary of the trip. Just dig your "prop" into this, boys and girls, and see what you are in for.

Crawl into berth on the famous Liberty Limited at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station at 10:30 p. m. (eastern daylight saving time) Tuesday, July 3. Johnny or Mary or whoever the lucky prize winner may be will be fast asleep in their berth when the speed king of the rails pulls out of the station at 1:48 a. m.

Next morning, Wednesday, July 4, the train will pass through Gary, Ind. The train will arrive at the Union Station, Chicago, at 9:35 (Central Daylight Saving Time).

At Chicago our member will be met by William Westlake, local wing commander of our Chicago Herald and Examiner wing. After washing up at the hotel the lucky boy or girl will be taken to the Century of Progress where he will spend all afternoon and evening of July 4, National Independence Day, and all next day, amid the marvels of the Universe concentrated at this World's Fair.

At Chicago our member will be met by Mr. William Westlake, local wing commander of our Chicago Herald and Examiner wing. After washing up at the hotel the lucky boy or girl will be taken to the Century of Progress, where he will spend all afternoon and evening of July 4, National Independence Day, and all next day.

Off for Frisco!

Leave Chicago at 11:45 Thursday night on the Overland Express of the famous Burlington route.

At 3:45 p. m. (central standard time) Friday, July 6th, the famous Overland Express arrives in Omaha, Nebraska, where it will stop long enough for our Omaha Bee-News wing commander, Mr. George Tobin, to board the train and have a short talk with the contest winner, and then off once more.

On Saturday the huge snow capped cone of Pikes Peak will loom high above the other surrounding mountains and the train pulls into Denver at 7 o'clock in the morning, Mountain Time. Then Colorado Springs at 10:05 and the grandest sight of the entire trip westward at about 12:53 noon when the Overland Express passes through the majestic Royal Gorge of the Colorado River.

Sunday, July 8, the train stops at Salt Lake City, where the winner will have time for a short sightseeing trip around the lake. On Monday the speedy flier passes through Feather River canyon and on through the Sacramento Valley to Oakland, Cal. After a brief ferry ride across famous San Francisco Bay, with a beautiful view of the famous Golden Gate, the member arrives at San Francisco at 4:15 in the afternoon, where he is greeted by his host of the West, the wing commander of the San Francisco Examiner, Mr. Oliver W. Tuttle, and a group of prominent Junior Birdmen.

Three Days on The West Coast

Spending three days in San Francisco and the surrounding country, where an interesting program of entertainment will be arranged, the member is ready to leave on Thursday, July 13.

At 8 o'clock on the morning of July 13 the member bids goodby to his host at San Francisco and boards the daylight express of the Southern Pacific Railroad for Los Angeles, traveling along the famous Pacific Coast. Arriving at Los Angeles at 8:45 that evening, the boy (or girl) will be met by Mr. Leslie Dowell, our wing commander in that town.

At 12:01 noon, Pacific time, Friday, July 14, the famous Grand Canyon Limited of the Santa Fe station will be taken out of Los Angeles, arriving at the famous Grand Canyon of Arizona at 7:30 the next morning. A complete daylight stop-over is made at this point, with sightseeing through the canyon. At 10 o'clock that evening the train departs for its Eastern destination, passing through Albuquerque, N. M., and Raton, the highest spot on the entire train route, on Sunday. Monday at Kansas City and Tuesday arrival at St. Louis, where the winner will change trains.

Taking the popular American from Union Station in St. Louis, the famous Pennsylvania Railroad flier takes the boy or girl at high speed on the last leg of his vacation trip, arriving at the Pennsylvania Station, Pittsburgh, at 12 midnight, Thursday, July 19, thus completing a 15-day trip through the United States, from coast to coast and back again.

Happy Landings!

Tomorrow we will have another installment of our air dictionary and other news of interest for you.

Happy landings!

U. S. STUDYING GIRLS' CAMPS

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—A score of experimental resident and camp schools for unemployed unattached women will be operating this coming summer if plans outlined yesterday at a White House conference are speedily carried out.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, trail-blazer last summer in this field with her Camp Tera, Bear Mountain, N. Y., presided over discussions of experts called in by the Federal Relief Administration.

Dr. George F. Zook, education commissioner, made a special plea for camp schools for destitute girl transients, but discussion for the most part centered on older women, prematurely "on the shelf" industrially.

Pepper Lays Slump To Moral Collapse

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—(AP.)—Indicating Americans as "no longer an honest people," George Wharton Pepper, former United States Senator, at exercises commemorating the one hundred fiftieth birthday of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Pennsylvania and the United States, yesterday called on the church to teach "simple honesty."

To a crowd that filled historic Old Christ Church, the former Senator declared the depression "is really nothing but the moral collapse of America."

THE NEW

PIERCE-ARROW

at an unbelievably low price

$2195

F.O.B. FACTORY FOR BROUGHAM
$2295 FOR 5-PASSENGER SEDAN
(Subject to increase without notice)

IN OUR showrooms this week, you will find a new Pierce-Arrow Eight, the first car of its class ever to sell at so low a price.

No other car at twice the price embodies more hours of craftsmanship, or more careful fidelity to detail. It is tested by 9710 separate inspection gauges. The crankshaft alone undergoes 67 micrometer tests. Each cylinder wall is honed . . . polished to an exactness of 2/10,000-inch. And during this honing, the cylinder-block is cooled with dry-ice so that heat cannot distort the microscopic precision. No wonder each engine is endowed with a life 5 times as long as the finest motors of 5 years ago.

READY TO RUN: The Pierce-Arrow craftsmen who build this new Eight are the same men who created the Twelve, recent winner of 14 world records. Before leaving the plant, each new engine receives a conditioning equivalent to 700 miles of "breaking in",

That is one of the reasons why it takes four times longer to build Pierce-Arrows than most other cars . . . and why this new Eight can start right out at 60 or 70.

CUSTOM BODY: Pierce-Arrow's trained custom-builders build the body. Its sound-proof insulation surpasses any competitive car under $3000. The dash is lined with Seapak 1½ inches thick . . . an impenetrable wall against engine heat. The interior is roomy (102 cubic feet) and perfectly appointed . . . with all the traditional Pierce-Arrow refinements.

COMPLETE RIDING EASE: With refreshing freedom from strain, this new Eight will take you as fast as you could possibly want to go. The speed will seem 20% less than actual. For here you have 5,000 pounds of road-gripping weight, with a wheelbase of 136 inches. You have springs ¾ as long as the wheelbase, permanently lubricated and encased in fabric and metal. You have an engine cradled in live rubber . . . a body mounted on cork cushions . . . a chassis with 67 anti-friction bearings, 27 more than any other Eight except higher-priced Pierce-Arrows.

FULL-POWER BRAKES: A little girl can stop this car in its tracks with a touch of her toe . . . from 60 to zero in 3⅔ seconds. Such full-power automatic brakes are found only on Pierce-Arrows. They cost ⅓ more than any others, but they are the safest of all brakes.

PRICES: The company is completely independent. Under the management of Pierce-Arrow men, factory efficiency has been increased, overhead has been reduced, distribution-costs have been greatly curtailed. And production is now at highest point in three years.

INVITATION: We want you to see this car . . . drive it yourself . . . compare it with any other car at any price. Without the slightest obligation we'll be only too glad to arrange a demonstration, at your convenience. Just call up or drop in.

FLOOD CONTROL NEEDS AIRED AT PARLEY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Seriousness of flood control problems confronting many sections of the United States was stressed today at round-table discussions of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

Hugh A. Thatcher, chairman of the flood control committee of Los Angeles County, declared:

"You people don't seem to realize there is a flood control problem west of the Rocky Mountains. Yet one of the greatest problems facing Southern California and Los Angeles County is the prevention of disastrous floods."

The recent flood in Southern California, although caused by a rainfall small in area, was one of the most disastrous in the history of the state, Thatcher stated. He added:

"We cannot carry on an effective flood control fight on the Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers without government aid. Not one dollar has been appropriated by the government toward flood control on these rivers.

"We invite this Congress to give Southern California its moral support in this great work."

Representative Kathryn O'Loughlin (Dem.), of Kansas, asserted that flood control and soil erosion constitute a major problem in the semi-arid regions of the Central West.

SOVIET SPEEDS RIVER PLANS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The progress of Soviet Russia in developing a planned inland waterways system was reviewed by Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky. Speaking at the banquet session of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, Troyanovsky said:

"Year before last the opening of the Dnieprostroy dam with its system of locks opened the Dnieper River to navigation for its whole length for the first time in history.

"Last year the Baltic-White Sea Canal connecting Leningrad and Archangel was completed and the distance between these two centers was cut by over 75 per cent.

"Before the second five-year plan ends in 1937, the Moscow-Volga and the Volga-Don canals will have passed out of the blueprint stage into that of blue lines on the map opening new avenues for the production of some of the most important regions of our country."

PAY FOR MYSTIC TRICK OFFERED

LONDON, May 1.— (AP.) —The occult committee of the "Magic Circle" today offered a reward of $2,500 for a genuine performance of the famous Indian rope trick in which a fakir is supposed to fling a rope into the air, snub it to nothing and have an assistant climb it.

The committee which met here last night reported it had conducted a long investigation into claims of persons who said they had seen the trick performed, and reached the conclusion the feat never had been and never would be accomplished.

The chairman of the committee suggested the "Magic Circle" might just as well have offered $25,000 or $250,000 for all the chance there was of anyone claiming the money.

Lord Samphill, president of the Circle, said the committee was rendering a public service, since firm belief in the trick persisted. Lord Halifax, former viceroy of India, wrote he had made many unsuccessful attempts to see it done.

Lost Charm Found Along Trout Stream

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 1—(INS.)—A silver watch charm, lost 15 years ago along a Northern Pennsylvania trout stream, is being worn again by George R. Fleming, physical director of the local Y. M. C. A.

A fisherman dug the medal out of the mud of the creek bank a few days ago. It was still in good condition.

WIFE, WED AT 15, GETS DIVORCE

Stella DeFelice, 1425 Forsythe street, married at 15, today was handed a divorce decree signed by Judge John P. Egan, divorcing her from Ben DeFelice.

They were married at Wheeling, October 6, 1919, Mrs. DeFelice having at the time of her marriage been a resident of Smithfield, O. She testified her husband was dissatisfied and left her.

A short time later she heard he was hurt and rushed to Wheeling to take care of him, but in August, 1922, she avers he left her finally. One of her complaints was that he gambled.

OHIO SUSPENDS BUS PERMIT

COLUMBUS, O., May 1.—(AP.)—The State Utilities Commission "in the interests of preserving the public safety" has suspended the certificate of the Nevin Western Bus Lines, Inc., of Chicago, until May 18.

The commission order yesterday forbids the company to operate any passenger vehicles in Ohio during the suspension period. It is the result of an accident at Elyria a few weeks ago in which six bus passengers were killed and several injured.

Give Students Medals For Life Saving

At a mass meeting in the Davis Theater Saturday morning, May 19, boys and girls of the Junior Safety Patrols in both public and parochial schools who have participated in saving the lives of their schoolmates during the year, will be awarded gold star buttons by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council. Capt. William B. Rodgers, president of the Safety Council, will present the awards.

Struck by an automobile while crossing the Boulevard of the Allies at Stevenson street last night, George Thompson, 42, of 1914 Tustin street, was treated at Mercy Hospital for bruises and lacerations about the face and head.

Thompson, police said, absolved the driver, Walter L. Moser, of 128 Hawthorne street, Edgewood, of blame.

476 Fleas Sailing Aboard Ship And Terrier

BOSTON, May 1.—(AP.)—Four hundred and seventy-six trained fleas sail from Boston aboard the liner City of Flint today, their cabin, the soft coat of a live dog.

The strange shipment, ensconced in natural habitat, is destined for the Circus Schumann, of Copenhagen, Denmark, where a collection of fleas was lost recently.

A terrier, housed in a specially built crate, has the dubious distinction of serving as host to his arch enemies. John Benson, of the Benson animal farm of Nashua, N. H., the shipper, has a special preparation which is to be put on the dog's skin in the hope the fleas will feed on it and save the terrier some sleepness nights.

MAN DIES, DOG SAVED IN FALL

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 1.—There was only one witness to the tragedy that cost August Mosel, 62, his life and he'll never be able to tell what he saw.

The witness was Mosel's shepherd dog, Bobby.

The two of them were walking above the Harlem River parkway when the accident occurred. Somehow Mosel slipped and fell over a 100-foot embankment. The dog, leashed to his master's wrist, was dragged over with him, but when the leather leash snapped he landed on a ledge 75 feet above the ground and later was rescued.

THIEL ELECTS PRESIDENT

GREENVILLE, Pa., May 1.—Dr Earl S. Rudisill, pastor of St. Luke's Church, York, Pa., has been elected president of Thiel College, it was announced by the board of trustees today.

Dr. Rudisill will be inducted on commencement day, June 6.

He received his A. M. degree at the University of Pittsburgh and his Ph. D. at the University of Pennsylvania, and taught at both institutions. He has held pastorates in Chicago, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. He is a contributor to many periodicals in the field of psychology and religious education.

'Strong Man,' 85, Dies After Test

MONETT, Mo., May 1.—(AP.)—Joseph Juvenal lifted weights before high school students yesterday to demonstrate his physical fitness at 85. He collapsed and died two hours later of a heart attack.

Juvenal, who called himself "Tommy Ryan," had been giving demonstrations for many years before students claiming his powers were due to abstention from drinking and smoking.

it. I am convinced that in the nearly near future there will be no privately paid anyone.

8—Minimum wage. I am for a minimum and especially a maximum wage.

9—Income tax. I am for it. I have no income.

10—Inheritance tax. I am for it. There is no one in sight who will leave me a penny. These two taxes will redistribute wealth. We must have a new deal.

11—Return to depositors of their money. I am for it. When a bank refuses to hand back the money you deposited for safe keeping, you didn't understand the second word. These bank refusals may be only a misunderstanding of the agreement between the bank and the depositor, but it does annoy the depositor.

I seem to be two planks missing for my 13. If any of my future constituents wish to suggest them, I am in a receptive mood up to May 15.

Jessup Takes Post With Carnegie Board

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has announced that Dr. Walter A. Jessup, former president of Iowa University, will take charge of the foundation's work today.

AMPLE ALIMONY ASKED BY WIFE

A petition for ample alimony was on file in Common Pleas Court today against Samuel A. Landau, wholesale milliner, who has filed suit against Mrs. Bessie P. Landau, 5866 Bartlett street, for divorce.

Mrs. Landau's bill states that Landau provided her and their three children, with a beautiful home until he launched on a career of misconduct.

She says she does not know the amount of her husband's income, but wants enough alimony to maintain her in the manner to which she had become accustomed.

Haller Honored By Vet Post Here

Gen. Joseph Haller, Polish general, who is here raising funds for Poland's disabled soldiers, was made an honorary member of Chapter 8, Disable American Veterans, last night.

Following an address to 150 veterans at the post headquarters, 839 Ridge avenue, North Side, Gen. Haller was presented the jeweled emblem of the chapter. Past Commander Norman A. Robinson made the presentation.

SCOUT PROGRAM AIDS RELIEF

As part of its contribution to National Youth Week, which started Saturday, the Community Fund today announced that Boy Scout membership in this area has increased 800 per cent in 10 years. The three major scout councils here, with a total membership of 11,118 boys and men, as compared to 1,000 in 1924, are financed through the fund.

Irwin D. Wolf, president of the Scouts' West Allegheny County Council, said:

"Our Boy Scout program, which is helping to socialize and develop boys not alone from underprivileged groups but also from average and better-class homes, is absolutely vital. Not only is it offsetting the immediate harmful effects of unemployment and loss of income, but it is building a solid basis of character and social consciousness in the community."

Two Sisters Share Estate of Father

Florence M. Burkley and her sister, Cecelia, will share equally in the $23,000 estate left by their father, Joseph A. Burkley, of Grimes avenue, according to the terms of his will, filed today for probate. They also will administer the will.

C-POINT U. S. SCHOOL AID

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Federal aid for the public schools without any binding national control over the internal affairs of the public school system is asked by Dean William F. Russell of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Writing in the current Record monthly publication of the college, Dean Russell recommended that all federal subsidies be made on an objective, automatic basis.

A six-point program of education, adopted by national educational organizations was advanced. This plan includes:

1—Fifty million dollars for immediate aid for the remainder of the year to keep schools open, to be administered on an honor basis by a board or individual in Washington.

2—One hundred million dollars for next year for the same purpose.

3—A substantial sum—$300,000,000 or $40,000,000,000—upon the principles of equality and efficiency.

4—Loans to the localities secured by frozen assets in banks and taxes anticipated.

5—Grants for school buildings.

6—Thirty million dollars for college students.

Dean Russell commented:

"The American has only to examine education in Russia, Japan or Nazi Germany to come to appreciate the precious treasure that he has in the American public schools. They are locally controlled. They are sensitive to the will of the people."

LEAGUE EXHIBITS 18TH CENTURY ART

Paintings of French Masters Open to Public View

By PENELOPE REDD

The Junior League presented an exhibition of French paintings of the Eighteenth Century at a private view in their gallery in the Clark Building yesterday afternoon. Today the exhibition will be opened for public view until May 14. The group of 17 canvases has been lent by Wildenstein & Co., of New York City. The exhibition is descriptive of a frivolous period with the earliest of the Eighteenth Century French painters, Antoine Watteau (1684-1721) singing the century's mood in "The Pleasures of Summer." The caprices of light love are echoed again in two scenes of gallantry by J. B. Pater (1695-1736) and in a boudoir episode by J. H. Fragonard (1732-1806).

Miss Redd

Francois Boucher's (1703-1770) mythological piece showing Mercury committing the infant Bacchus to the care of the nymphs illustrates the influence of the Italian Baroque painters recently seen at a Junior League exhibition on the eighteenth century Frenchmen.

Hubert Robert (1733-1808) is represented by a classic variation of a pastoral theme with the herdsmen of the title driving forth his flock from a magnificently-columned ruin.

The portraits reflect the politically conditioned social changes of the century, commencing chronologically with Nicolas Lancret (1690-1743) whose canvas "The Young Dancer," is of a gorgeously apparelled child. J. B. S. Chardin (1699-1779) is the forerunner of the reaction that was to erase the aristocracy. Chardin's portrait of a boy is cast in serious mold. J. B. Greuze (1725-1805) likewise has a bourgeois subject in a laundress. P. H. Drouais (1727-1775) as a counter balance, has a pair of portraits of the high nobility in the elegant Comte and Comtesse de Provence.

The transition from the old order to the new is reached in Jacques Louis David's (1748-1825) portrait of a woman with a severe shawl replacing the erstwhile lace fichu. The exhibition concludes with a portrait of the Princess Belosersky by Elisabeth Vigee-Lebru (1755-1842), whose long life saw the fragility of Marie Antoinette's fetes at Versailles replaced by the sobriety of the republican era.

"The Herdsman," by Hubert Robert (1733-1808) is one of the paintings by French artists of the eighteenth century on exhibition at the Junior League Art Gallery in the Clark Building until May 14. All of the famed eighteenth century French painters are represented in the group.

of Electric Refrigerators BEFORE YOU BUY!

The Finest Refrigerators General Electric ever built!

General Electric MONITOR TOP with matchless mechanism sealed-in-steel requiring no attention—not even oiling.

The famous Monitor Top General Electric Refrigerator with its new distinguished styling is a refrigerator that you can justly feel proud to show your friends. Newly designed, and built for the future, assuring you of a modern refrigerator in years to come. A G-E Refrigerator will add a new modern note to your kitchen of today . . . and fits perfectly into the style theme of the kitchen of tomorrow. A once-in-a-life-time buy. After all, a refrigerator is not purchased every year or so, it is something that requires your best judgment, and rightfully so. You want to know whether it will give you satisfactory service over a period. When you have a G-E, needless to say, you have this assurance: it is backed by the reputation of the General Electric Co.

Why Is the Unit On Top?

Many people have asked that question, and we are always glad to explain as follows: Warm air rises naturally, so the warm air of the cabinet is conducted through the stainless steel chilling unit to the monitor top. From there it is released into the air by natural radiation. All refrigerators must get rid of the warm air in the cabinet and by having all mechanism (only 3 moving parts) sealed within the Monitor Top this is done without the use of a fan, by simple, natural radiation . . . thus eliminating troublesome machinery. Furthermore . . . it is permanently oiled . . . you never need oil it, no belts to break, no leaky stuffing box.

General Electric FLAT-TOP has distinguished modern styling, at popular prices!!

The new de luxe G-E flat-top model has created a new style sensation in electric refrigerators. Beautiful in its simplicity of line, it has set a new standard in modern styling.

House Sheiks Must Find New Homes, Girls Vow

Through with HOUSE SHEIKS . . . so say these girls, and I do not blame them . . . young fellows who imagine they can visit evening after evening with girls, and never take them to shows or dances. Fellows who fancy they are so much of winners with the fair sex that there presence alone covers all entertainment checks, are weaving their own web of misfortune, I say.

No doubt, it is a nice comfortable feeling to be [illegible] before somebody else's woodfire and eating somebody ese's angel's food cake and drinking somebody else's lemonade. No doubt, it is a great sensation to go out for many pleasant evenings and have grand times spoofing the girls. And then to go back to your room again, young kidders, and have exactly the same amount of sheckels in your pockets.

Miss Brunot

Our grandmothers called you SHIN WARMERS.

Today, you are HOUSE SHEIKS.

Sort of unsavory, I say.

Dear Miss Brunot:

Is it really worth while entertaining "house sheiks?" Well, we can certainly say a great big NO. One does not need to pass out diplomas to the fellows who are so cheap that they look to the girls for all the entertainment. They, some of them, think they are worthy of three great big cheers. But we aren't in the throng, no-sir-ee. Surely fellows have no reason to call the girls little gold diggers, because they like occasionally to go to the movies or to some nice dance.

CURL HELPLESS

After all youth fades away day by day, and what young man and girl do not yearn for the great outside world. Even "house sheiks" like a good time, but not at their own expense. Day after day you find such men in the parlors of their girl friends. But when proms come along, they are no where to be found. This of course is very unfair. But the poor, unfortunate girl is helpless.

Come on, "house sheiks," speak up for yourselves. What have you to say? We'd like to hear it. We who have received such treatment. Sincerely,

TEMPLE AND GAIL.

Sometimes young fellows are up against it, girls. For they do not have the money to take you out. They are in school yet. Or their jobs do not pay them enough for any frivolities. And yet the girls ask them to their homes, and the poor fellows enjoy it, and in a moment of weakness they accept.

These have been hard times, you know, and money hasn't been lining pockets.

Maybe it chances to be the case with the young men you know.

However, I do agree that HOUSE SHEIKS are not desirable. There is a give and take in the social world, and where a young man is not sure of his footing and has not enough ready cash to pay for his social courtesies, he had better remain at home.

Perhaps it would have been better, Temple and Gail, for you not to have asked these young men so often to your homes. Girls, you know, have found it necessary in the past few years to go to dances on the 50-50 basis. Not that I think it the wiser course, however. Yet sometimes where the girl is the better off financially, it has worked out well.

TWO SIDES TO STORY

Just because a fellow wears good clothes and attends a good school is no reason for imagining he has a bounty of spending coin. Sometimes all he has is furnished by his parents. And they have not thought it expedient to supply dollars for out-of-line spending such as movies and dancing. How about it, Temple and Gail? There are ever two sides to a story.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I'm 16. I look 18, and am attractive. I enjoy going out with the boys, and I think life would be monotonous when not doing so. My mother is old-fashioned, and won't let me go out. She expects me home at nights. She won't even let me invite a boy over to my house. When I do so, against her wishes, she sits in the living room with us.

I think that I am old enough to take care of myself. This is 1934. Not 1834. ANN.

I cannot help but agree with your mother, and think you very young. Have another talk with her, however, and explain that you will send the boys home early, and that you will be glad for her to meet all the boys who call and know them, but that you wish a little time to entertain them all alone. I am sure, she will see your side of the argument.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I withdrew from school a few days ago, because I considered I was wasting my time. The day I left, my teachers could scarcely believe their ears and demanded to know the reason of my leaving. As I hadn't a good one, I said that I had been given a position with friends, in an office. My teachers said I should remain as I had a future ahead of me. Because they thought I had a better intellect than many others. I'm undecided. And don't know whether to go back, or not.

DOESN'T LIKE COURSE

You see, I take the commercial coourse, and one can certainly fall behind when not studying. My secret ambition is to become a singer, or a radio announcer, a dress designer or a painter. In the course I take, none of these things are taught. I don't want to be a typist. A bookkeeper or a stenographer. You may think I do not know what I want. But I do. I want to do something creative. I do have a lovely voice.

I don't know why I tell you this. But it must be because you are so sympathetic.

Sincerely,

A GIRL WHO LONGS.

It does seem too bad to waste your time in things you do not intend to use. Girls make their way in the professions very young these days. It would be wise for you to plan some way to get a try-out on the radio. The longing to do something creative always was in me, so I can sympathize with you. There are good schools and colleges in the arts here. How about your parents, though. Are they in accord with what you long to do. Let me hear from you again.

Nobody Hears How City Boys Make Good in Country---Fay King

By FAY KING

Perhaps we hear so much more about the small town boys, who make good in the big city, because many of them are writers and tell the world about each other.

But there are just as many big city boys who make good in smaller towns.

How often when a prominent citizen dies in some western city do we read that he came there from one of the large cities of the East, where he was born.

Dreams and hopes have much to do with attaining one's goal. The small town boy longs for his success in the mighty metropolis. The boy born and raised in the midst of this, dreams of going "out West" to achieve his success there!

A WHITE HAT NOW IS FRESH AS A CORSAGE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

VERY LITTLE has been blazoned forth about white hats this spring, but the fact remains that they are very good, high style events. They are calculated to make a woman's complexion look fresh and clear, and they certainly show off a dark frock, or a printed frock, to perfection. They also are adept at picking up fine lingerie details on a costume so that a fairly simple affair looks dressy, and they are usually effective over a city pale skin or a hangover Southern tan.

* * *

A FEW WEEKS ago it was white felts and fabrics that were used to make alluring spring hats—models that looked very knowing above a fur coat. But today it is straw hats in white that hold the spot, and a new note in them is the use of restrained flower trimmings. No wreaths or rioting gardens belong, but just a posie or two put on so deftly that they look like stylized botany.

* * *

ANOTHER NEW tip in white hats is their rather large size. It was the beret and the tricorn that swept the country from the most expensive to the bargain models last year. Now we are offered sombreros, which look very smart above quite tailored clothes, such as redingotes and coat frocks; and picture brims bent into irregular curves, which make an afternoon frock very festive and soft. One can't be wrong in having at least one white hat, right now.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Right, a seductive white baku hat with a blend of innocence and dash. The broad band is black and the two big daisies are white. Below, another white model, peau d' ange, with a facing and a pleated edging of white cire Chantilly lace. The ribbon band is black cire satin.

Below, purple violets are appliqued to this white toyo hat, and poised on the gloves.

Somewhat Chinois, this bengaline straw hat in black. The cire mesh veil is attached with two rhinestone ornaments at the top.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When teeth are not set close together, permitting particles of food to lodge between, use dental floss at night. Ofttimes the brush doesn't make a clean sweep. Pass the floss back and forth, being careful not to injure the gums. Follow with a brushing of the teeth and a rinsing of the mouth. If the tongue feels dry, apply a few drops of glycerine.

Sunray lines around the eyes come early to some women. Tissues are soft there, fibers small and delicate. Don't squint; squinting is a senseless habit, can be overcome. Anoint the flesh with a heavy massage cream, place the first finger on the eyelid close to the nose, sweep outward to the temple, slap back under the eye to starting point. Then apply gauze which has been wrung out of ice cold water. Hold close until the flesh is steaming hot. Repeat half a dozen times.

Hip swinging is a bad habit. It is not a normal natural movement, nor is it graceful, and it calls attention to a woman as she trots along the boulevard. Not nice. The practice weakens the muscles of the back, because it pulls them in the wrong direction. It is a strain on the muscles of the thighs and the calves. Walk with grace and ease by lifting the chest, flattening the tummy, keeping the hips tucked back. Let arms swing comfortably at the sides. Hip swinging will develop into waddling as the years come along.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Godspeed

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

One of the men at the place where I am employed has been promoted and sent to another city. Will it be correct for me to write him a letter wishing him success in his new work? I have known him for a couple of years. He is a single man and I would like to thank him for being so nice to me when he was here, also hoping that he likes the new city. He was not very well when he left here, and I would like to mention that, also tell him that we have missed him. Will you please tell me how to word such a letter?

G.

Such a letter might be written something like this:

Dear Mr. Brownson:

May I send you my congratulations on your fine promotion in your work? I am so happy about the good news, and I know, from your excellent work here, that you will splendidly fulfill the ideals that your employer has for you. It is a superb opportunity for you, and I hope that your pathway will be full of happiness and success, and the best of health.

May I also thank you again, please, for your unfailing kindness and friendliness to me while you were here . . . I shall never forget your goodness to me on so many occasions.

All good wishes and friendly greetings.

Cordially yours,

The Lady Invites

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A lady of my acquaintance, upon whom I have called several times, argues that I should ask her if I may come to see her at her home. I think that it is her place to invite me. I am anxious to know who is correct.

W.

You are right. This friend should "extend the hospitality" of her home to you. And, since you have called on her several times, it would be gracious of her to ask you for a definite time, and for a definite occasion . . . for instance, "Won't you come in for tea on Thursday of this week?"

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Father Sees Lee Chow as Assailant

I found my father and Hugh together in the hospital corridor when I left Dicky's room, after his affectionate leave-taking of me. They were conversing earnestly in low tones, but broke off at sight of me, and again I had the sensation of being barred from knowledge possessed by them.

"You will forgive my not going back with you and your father?" Hugh asked in quick, embarrassed fashion, which I knew was meant to cover that awkward stop.

"Of course," I said looking at him steadily. "I shall feel so much safer about him if you are near him."

I purposely tried to put into my words a distinct hint that I suspected what he and my father were keeping from me, and knew that my hint had found its mark when I saw little pin points of flame showing far back in his eyes.

He held out his hand to me, and when I had given mine to him he covered it with both his own, forgetting, or not regarding, my father's presence in the room.

"Will you believe," he said unsteadily, "that I shall guard his life with my own?"

RECALLS CHARACTER

A fragrant memory came to me—that of Dickens' immortal lover, Sydney Carton, saying to Lucie, "A life you love." I think I realized in that moment just why Hugh Grantland had so strong an attraction for me.

The Sydney Carton motif! Sure hit in fiction, rare in real life, but occasionally to be found. The silent lover, who asks nothing, gives all, worships a woman hopelessly all his life, cheerfully gives up his life to save her or her loved ones from danger. There is nothing like it in its effect upon the heart-strings of an emotional woman!

I returned the pressure of his fingers.

"Yes, I do know it," I said honestly, "and it makes me very humble and very happy."

The flame in his eyes deepened, and his lips set queerly as if he were trying to school them to calmness. It was almost a second before he spoke.

"Bless you for that," he said huskily at last, as he released my hand, and in another minute my father had hurried me away down the stairs, through the long corridor below, and out to the waiting car.

We had gone perhaps two miles at the headlong pace my father always sets, when I gathered up courage to ask him the question which was beating steadily against my brain.

"Father, dear!" I said hesitantly, then stopped.

He instantly slowed the car to a bare 20 miles an hour and spoke softly.

"Yes, my darling. What is it?"

"Do you know, or suspect, who shot Dicky?"

NOT OFFENDED

He was silent for so long that I wondered if I had offended him by the question—if, in this business of Lee Chow, he was subordinating his status as my father, always ready to talk to me upon any subject, to his role of "the chief," to whom any queries concerning his official business were taboo.

Finally he answered in accents curiously hesitant for him.

"Do you think it will do you any good to know," he asked, "even if I can tell you?"

I took courage from his voice—there was no accent of reproof in it—and gave my reply stoutly.

"It certainly will do me harm not to know. I cannot help the wildest, most fantastic conjectures and—dearest—I am a woman, not a child, and the lives of my husband and children are at stake. Don't you see? I must know."

He had been driving as is his wont, effortlessly, with his left hand, and he stretched out the other to cover my clenched fingers pressed against my knees.

"Yes, yes; I do see," he said softly. "It is your right to know everything that I know. But I have no absolute knowledge. I only have Hugh's fears and deductions."

"Then," I said with a little gasp, "Lee Chow was the man, and Hugh knows it."

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

'Always' and 'Never'

There are some very emphatic phrases used by Bridge players, usually without proper consideration. There are few things that should "always" be done as regards the play of a hand and, barring questions of ethics, I cannot at the moment think of a single "never."

Here is a hand, for instance, played in a recent tournament, in which a great many pairs reached the correct contract of seven, but a large proportion of them failed to make it because of failure to recognize that this was not a situation in which to apply the principle of first winning a trick from the hand which has two of the three top honors—that, in fact, following such a policy would make defeat an absolute certainty. The hand was:

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ◇	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	7 ♡	7 ♠
7 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding as given here is perhaps over-strong with the distribution, but probably a similar result could be attained without the Opening bid of two. East's bid of seven spades, based only on distribution, is amazing, but, surprisingly enough, at that contract he would have lost a maximum of two spades, two diamonds and two clubs, and had he been permitted to play it, would have lost less than if North and South had fulfilled their contract of seven hearts, although, of course, it was not absolutely certain that the latter contract could be fulfilled.

The Opening lead was a spade, which Declarer won in his own hand, and now the entire point of the hand is reached. Many players in such a situation would lead to the heart Ace of Queen, but this is a situation in which this play cannot gain and might lose. If East holds four hearts— J 10 7 6— in other words, all the outstanding hearts, he heart suit cannot be brought in, and the contract is doomed to defeat. On the contrary, if West holds them, then to play the heart King first will permit the Declarer to capture the apparently guarded honor.

The play of the single honor first is rarely adviseable, but in this instance it is the only way to win and inasmuch as the other method can not give any additional chances to win and might produce an additional chance to lose, the less common play should be accepted, dispite the "always" fetish.

Broken Teacups

Broken teacups make good poachers. Warm the cup and butter it half way up. Break in the egg and stand the cup in a frying pan or dish of boiling water over the gas ring. When the white is set, slide a knife round gently and slip the egg on to the toast.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Catarrh of Middle Ear Is Common

Recently I have received a number of letters requesting information about inflammation of the middle ear. This is rather a common affliction. Too often the disturbance is neglected and permanent damage is done to the ear.

Dr. Copeland

Acute catarrh of the middle ear, or "otitis media," as it is spoken of medically, is an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the ear. It has found its way through the eustachian tubes to the middle ear and sometimes into the mastoid cells back of the ear.

The disease is usually the result of exposure to cold. Sufferers from chronic catarrh of the upper air passages are usually susceptible to repeated attacks of inflammation of the middle ear. In some cases, it can be traced to diseased and infected teeth. During the summer months, it may follow surf bathing or diving into water from great heights.

The victim of otitis media complains of pain in the afflicted ear. This is increased by movements of the jaw in eating and chewing, and by pressure on the ear or pulling the ear. Difficulty in hearing is pronounced, and dizziness and ringing in the ear are other familiar symptoms.

The attacks occur at more or less frequent intervals. It is common in children and in most cases can be traced to some infection of the nose and throat. Diseased tonsils, infected teeth, faulty diet and repeated attacks of "snuffles" are other common causes of this inflammation.

Repeated attacks of otitis media lead to the chronic or persistent form of inflammation, with gradual increase in the deafness. As a rule, sufferers from chronic otitis media hear better during dry, clear weather, than they do on rainy or damp days. Relief under favorable weather conditions is only temporary and unless proper remedial measures are taken, the deafness progresses and becomes a serious handicap.

My advice to all victims of otitis media is to get medical advice. Local treatment can be prescribed only after a careful examination of the ears, nose and throat. All underlying defects must be remedied. Diseased teeth, infected tonsils and nasal sinuses must be treated if permanent cure for the inflammation of the middle ear is to be expected.

In addition, every effort should be made to build up the general health and the resistance of the body. The diet should be a liberal and nutritious one, rich in vitamins, minerals and other valuable substances. Drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily, obtain plenty of fresh air and sunshine and an adequate number of hours of rest and sleep.

Answers to Health Queries

B. R. Q.—I am a girl 18 years old, 5 feet 6½ inches tall, what is my correct weight?

A.—For your height and age you should weigh 132 pounds.

V. H. Q.—What do you advise as a cure for dandruff?

A.—Brushing the hair night and morning will prove helpful. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

B. M. Q.—I have a breaking out or rash which resembles fine pimples, it is very itchy and seems to dry and scale off before it disappears. What would you advise in this case?

A.—This is probably eczema. Watch your diet and elimination. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Mrs. Mary Lucci Rafferty, who was granted a divorce recently from Gilbert S. Rafferty, of Sewickley, was married Saturday in the West.

Her father and mother, the Telesio Luccis, of Berkeley, Cal., formerly of Sewickley, announce her marriage to Daniel H. Wallace, son of the late Mrs. Frank W. Severance and of Mr. Severance, of Sewickley, which took place Saturday at the California home of Mrs. Charles Davis, of Sewickley and Santa Barbara.

Mr. Wallace and his bride plan to make their home in California. She is a sister of Mrs. Francis H. McKnight, of Sewickley.

Margaret Phillips To Be Entertained

This week will bring a host of entertainments for a May bride-to-be, charming, reserved young Margaret Phillips, youngest daughter of the junior Thomas W. Phillipses, of Butler.

Margaret's marriage to Augustus Craig Succop, son of the C. H. E. Succops, Castleman street, will be the most notable event of Saturday. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon in Phillips Hall, the family's country home near Butler.

Tomorrow afternoon Peggy Mitchell, who, like the bride-to-be was a debutante of past fall, will give a tea in her home for Margaret. Peggy Mitchell is a daughter of the Harry L. Mitchells.

Mrs. John Evans will be hostess in her home at a tea Friday afternoon honoring Margaret, and Mrs. H. Houghton Phillips will give the rehearsal dinner in her home Friday night for her niece.

The day of the wedding Mary Louise Succop, sister of the bridegroom-elect, will entertain at the wedding breakfast.

Hospital Benefit To Be Held May 18

The smart set today can add a new event to their calendar for the month of May—for today is the first day, have you realized?

This new event is a benefit, and a particularly attractive one at that—a supper-dance on May 18 in the William Penn Hotel's Urban room, to be given by the members of the social service department of the Homeopathic Hospital.

Mrs. Henry Clay Adams will be the chairman of the benefit this year with Mrs. J. Sidney Hammond as treasurer. And Mrs. Hammond will also take reservations.

Mrs. Gordon A. Fisher, Jr., will do the publicity, and Mrs. Richard M. Clemson, Mrs. Aiken Fisher, Jr., Mrs. George C. Stephenson and Mrs. Frank B. Edmundson will secure patronesses, essential to any successful benefit.

* * *

And just a reminder—tonight the Pittsburgh String Orchestra with Georgia Orwig, will give a concert in the Hotel Schenley ballroom. Georgia Orwig, the Clarence W. Orwigs' daughter, will make her debut as concert soloist (she's a pianist) with the orchestra this evening.

Harmarville Home Garden Party June 6

The date of the annual garden party at the Harmarville Home for Convalescent Women and Children has been set—it's June 6. The Federation of Girls' School Societies, which aids the Home, holds this lawn fete each year. Mrs. W. Eugene Gary is the new president of the Federation.

Tonight the parents of the fifth grade children of St. Raphael's School will sponsor the fourth and last card party in a series held in the school hall, on Chislett street.

Music Leads In Popularity, Poll Shows

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

More results on the State Federation of Pennsylvania's Women's radio poll. From the 401 clubs all over the state that took the poll, 5,232 ballot sheets were received and 51,936 "likes" and 10,253 "dislikes" were stated.

Music leads in the "likes," 3,104 votes having been cast for orchestra music, 1,309 for operas, 1,199 for symphonies, organ, 1,224, 971 for dance music and 879 for bands. "Good jazz" rated 102 votes.

Men's voices were given the lead in the vocal music vote, 2,126 votes having been placed for them as compared with 1,939 for women's voices. News of the times came in with a vote of 1,329 and Lowell Thomas led among the individual speakers with 1,262 votes.

Several hundred affirmative votes were placed for book reviews, talks on congressional affairs, lectures and travel talks, educational, political and psychology talks, stock market reports coming in last with only 100 votes.

Some strange contrasts were shown in the voting for the special programs, but strangest of all perhaps is the fact that 100 "dislikes" were voted for women's club programs. Twenty-three dislikes were even voted against "static."

Incidentally several other State Federations have asked for information concerning details of the poll as they expect to conduct polls next season.

Boosters' Club Luncheon Today

Priestesses and past priestesses and watchmen of the shepherds who comprise the Pennsylvania Booster's Club in attendance at the fortieth supreme session of the White Shrine of Jerusalem in Chicago are having a luncheon today.

Representing shrines from the Pittsburgh district at the convention are Frances Mae Ebert, Margaret Caven, Elizabeth M. Sexauer, John J. Kassouf, Florentine R. Craf, Marie J. Knight, Elizabeth R. Kealey, Helen M. Sinse and Anne E. Abbott.

Ohio State Club Will Hold Benefit

Plans for the Ohio State University Woman's Club benefit for the College Club will be made Saturday at the club's monthly luncheon in the Congress of Clubs. The benefit, which is to be held for the establishment of a room at the College Club, is set for May 26 in the Craig street clubhouse.

Fashionables Attracted To Art Exhibit

The Junior League's pre-view of eighteenth century French paintings, held yesterday afternoon in the Junior League art galleries, Clark Building, attracted scores of the fashionables. The women, decked in smart new spring costumes, revealed a striking partiality for the revived redingote vogue. Suits came next.

Chairman of the arts and interests committee arranging the exhibition, tall, slender Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland was striking in a brown redingote costume. Her dress was a dark brown print with the coat, shorter than the dress, of red-brown wool, without a collar. A cartwheel brown straw hat with a quaint cluster of yellow flowers completed her costume. And she wore a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., wore with her smart black tailored suit a patent leather sailor having a crown of white and a brim of black. And her white Ascot scarf was monogramed in black.

Striped grey-blue tie-silk faced the revers of Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson's light-weight grey, tweedish suit, and formed a blouse, too. The skirt had a double pleating at the hem-line—one row of the suit material and one of the tie material. With this striking costume, she wore a navy blue Tyrolean hat.

Mrs. Blair Childs chose a black dress which resembled a suit with a bolero jacket. The gown had a collar and vest of crisp dusty-pink linen. Her pert hat was of matching pink.

A swagger suit of fine, black and white checked silk—it resembled taffeta—was worn by Helen Leovy. The collar of pleated self-material, faced in black, suggested the vogue of feather boas.

Others noted in the galleries were Mary Carroll, Elizabeth Arbuthnot, Mrs. F. C. Irish, Mrs. F. G. Gwinner III, Mrs. A. P. Woolfolk, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Mrs. William L. Standish, Mrs. John A. Murtland and Mrs. William D. George.

Louise and Phyllis Totten were there, Mrs. R. Green Annan, Brandon Smith, Mrs. Rhodes Quaile, Mrs. William D. Bickel, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. John A. Murtland, Mrs. Thomas Wurts, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Mrs. George C. Stephenson, Mrs. Jack Bissell, Mrs. Reginald Macdonald, Mrs. W. McCook Reed and ever so many more.

Women to Visit Tomb of Soldier

Mrs. Charles Runk, district chairman of fine arts for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, who is conducting the art pilgrimage to Washington from Thursday to Monday, has procured additional hotel accommodations. A guard of honor will escort the "pilgrims" to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where Mrs. Runk will place a wreath.

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(But oh, what some things know about us!

Nelson, who had one arm and was blind in one eye and got seasick everytime he boarded ship, was gifted taken for an idiot by strangers . . . Charles the Second's mother said he was so ugly she was ashamed of him . . . Talleyrand's nose couldn't endure the sight of him and left him in the country with servants.

So what have you to worry about?

The most expensive cold in history was the one Catherine of Russia sniffed in 1789 . . . Her physician ordered tallow to be rubbed on her nose and 10 roubles was marked down on the expense account to buy the tallow . . . It was put down every day from then on, for 60 years, and when Nicholas I discovered the graft there was heck to pay.

The tune "Yankee Doodle" is at least 1,500 years old and was a Christian chant in the Twelfth Century, a Spanish wine song when America was discovered, a reaper's song in Holland and in Seventeenth Century England it was of all things—what do you think? A nursery rhyme!

Spain once exiled people who starched their collars . . . Czar Paul ordered a carriage beaten because it didn't stop in the right spot . . . In Thirteenth Century England you were a boor if you didn't kiss your hostess when you arrived and departed . . . Stonewall Jackson wouldn't read on Sunday.

During the Civil War an officer said to Gen. Lee that he hoped all Northerners were dead, whereupon Gen. Lee said: "I don't. I wish they were all home, attending to their business, leaving us to attend to ours." . . . And when a preacher said to Lincoln: "I hope the Lord is on our side," Abe said: "The Lord is always with the right. I only hope we're on His side!"

Cecil Rhodes had an income of a million a year but never carried money in his pockets . . . Napoleon never wore a vest more than four times . . . But he wiped his pen on his pants! . . . Suwarrow, the Russian general, carried a rooster with him as an alarm clock; and Charles Parnell, the Irish statesman, hated the color green! Wurra, wurra!

Wherf Comte de Charolais shot a man who was repairing a high roof, Louis XV pardoned him, but said: "Understand now, I'll be glad to pardon anyone who shoots you."

Henri Rochefort, the French writer, advocated abolishment of capital punishment—except for perents who leave their children near matches or open windows.

Sam Houston squelched an unstart who challenged him to a duel by saying he never fought down hill. (A funny crack, at that!)

Seward, Sec'y of war for Lincoln, was pestered by a woman who wanted details of troop movements, but he shut her up by saying: "Madame, if I didn't know I'd tell you!"

And an old line that still goes good is this—when someone tells you that they'd rather be right than President—the perfectly delightful retort is: "Don't worry—you'll never be either."

When Nicholas the First of Russia had to have his back rubbed every day, he sent to Prussia for two rubbers because he didn't trust the Russians behind his back . . . Gen. Winfield Scott was proud of his ability to make good bread . . . Louis Philippe started his dinner with four different kinds of soup, then mixed them together for the fifth course . . . Louis the First of Bavaria always slept on a matress stuffed with the beards of the soldiers of his father's regiment.

Napoleon had a tough time reading his own writing . . . He took naps between battles . . . He cheated at blackjack . . . Loved to hear church bells . . . Created the expression: "There's but one step from the sublime to the ridiculous" . . . He never walked TO a person . . . Said he wouldn't rule France three months if there were freedom of the press . . . When he escaped from Elba and started through France to Paris, the papers there headlined his progress each day as follows: March 9—"The Anthropophagus (cannibal) has quitted his den" . . . March 10—"The Corsican Ogre has landed at Cape Juan" . . . March 11—"The Tiger Has Arrived at Gap" . . . March 12—"The Monster Slept at Grenoble" . . . March 13—"The Tyrant has passed through Lyons" . . . March 14—"The Usurper is approaching Bisou, but is surrounded" . . . March 18—"Bonaparte only 60 leagues from capital, quickly escaped pursuers" . . . March 19—"Bonaparte advancing rapidly, but will never enter Paris" . . . March 20—"Tomorrow Napoleon will be under Paris ramparts . . . March 21—"Emperor at Fontainebleau" . . . March 22—"His Imperial and Royal Majesty arrived at the Tuileries last night amidst joyful acclamations of his devoted and faithful subjects."

When Gen. Sherman was visiting an Arizona army post after the Indian wars, an Apache brave pestered him for a small cannon. "What do you want it for?" asked the general, "to kill my soldiers?" "Naw," replied the Injun, "to kill cowboys. Killum soldiers with club."

No one knows how long it would have taken for the Declaration of Independence to be signed if it hadn't been for a livery stable. The signers were gathered in a house next door to a horse hotel, and were prepared to do a lot of wrangling and speechmaking before the first signer put his John Hancock to the paper. But it was a hot day; the statesmen were wearing knee breeches and silk stockings and the horse flies bothered them so much they all signatured swiftly and went to their homes.

Young Doug Gets Dad's Old Role

By JIMMIE STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 1. — Hello! Right off your movie village reporter's cuff—Phil Goldstone, smartest money man of the independent producers, bounces forth with a bright idea: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in a new and elaborate talkie version of "Robin Hood." Young Douglas always wanted to follow in papa's athletic footsteps, cinematically speaking—and so it is to be. A major releasing firm will probably handle the Goldstone's audiflim version of the ancient tale. If you like dates—it was just 12 years ago that Doug, Sr., starred in the production . . . Finstance, Hazel Hayes, of the current crop of Wampas Baby Stars, is tossing aside what might have been a brilliant operatic career for chances, (and they are slim), at the films. Why, only this week she's singing, as guest soloist with a Portland warbling company. And Hazel graduated from no less (mind you!) than five schools of music! But Cinema fame is her goal . . . Hazel has a tiny bit in "Kiss and Make Up" at Paramount.

Since Zeppo Marx turned agent, buying into the firm of Milton Bren and Frank Orsatti, he has accomplished several amusing gestures.

Strangely enough, Zeppo has a good memory for faces, but can't recall names. During the first day of his official duties as a tenpercenter, he was hailed by a scenario writer at the Paramount Studio. Immediately Zeppo started in with a super-sales talk: That his firm could double his salary, etc.

When the writer agreed Zeppo excused himself for a moment and rushed to his partner, Bren, who was some distance away:

"Who's the guy I'm talking to?" whispered Zeppo.

"He's a scenario writer by the name of So-and-So," replied Bren.

"Great yelled Zeppo. "I've got him sold just like that. It was a cinch!"

"You've got him sold!" screamed Bren. "Why, you nitwit! We've been representing him for two years, and we've been trying to get rid of him. He isn't any good!"

Snooping—The air was positively blue with wit at Fox the other day when Irvin Cobb and Will Rogers started cracking at each other. . . . Roy Mack, the shorty film director for Warners, is SKIPPING back to New York this week. . . . Phil Regan, the ex-Brooklyn cop, now a warbler and actor for Warners, is playing a COP in a new film. . . . "That Hollywoods are full of press agents, but where can you get a GOOD maid!" . . .

Anita Page, once a rage as the modern flapper-type of M-G-M, forgot to change her histronic style with the passing of time and found herself out in w. k. cold. But, plucky-like, she hit the Middle West stock companies for a few months, and now with considerable stage training, she's back in heartbreak town for another fling at the flickers.

Noted Financier

George Arliss is seen as the head of a noted banking firm of Europe in "The House of Rothschild," dramatic historic photoplay that will open Friday in the Penn.

Shaw Jazzed In Drama At 'Y'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

That bad boy of the British theater, George Bernard Shaw, was treated to a dose of his own medicine at the "Y" Playhouse last night when "The Devil's Disciple" was put on in a style never dreamed of by Richard Mansfield and Paul Sydney Arnold. Berke's thespians staged it in true Show Boat style—or should one say Shaw Boat style? The audience was invited to hiss the villain and cheer the hero. They did not only that, but gave good advice to the people on the stage, or told them where to find what they were looking for.

Mr. Seibel

"The Devil's Disciple" is hardly enough of a heroic play to lend itself well to jazzing. But the process showed Shaw up as a second-hand dealer in old dramatic frippery. After all, there are only 36 dramatic situations, and even an unregenerate Hibernian cannot add to their number.

Sawing the air and thundering noble sentiments is much more effective in the highly moral melodrama than in the epigrama of Shavian vintage. Yet there was considerable mirth elicited from the antics of Sam Schwartz as an honest and fearless Sergeant, David Cornman as the dandified General Burgoyne, and Walter Framer as the shrewd man of God with the pretty wife. Ida London as the wife was devoted and obedient, languishing all over the parsonage, while Hannah Golding as Essie shrank timidly from every speck of dust, and Herbe Hoffman simpered in Simple Simon style like the village idiot. It was Arthur Dimling who won the plaudits and suffrages of all the audience by his heroic impersonation of Dick Dudgeon, the Devil's Disciple. If he had been Nathan-Haled by the British, they would never have been invited to another Boston tea party.

Just to see what difference there will be, the performance will be repeated in serious vein on Wednesday evening. It may turn out that Shaw's comedies played seriously are funnier than his serious dramas translated into jazz.

Dick's A Crooner

Dick Powell plays a radio crooner in "20 Million Sweethearts," romantic comedy with songs, Mills Brothers, Radio Rogues and others, opening in Stanley Thursday.

Nathan for Women Bossing Ad Business

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—George Jean Nathan, dramatic critic, favors turning over the advertising business to women because, he reasons, they are "walking advertisements." He says:

"Women should excel in advertising as the art is innate in them with their lipstick, rouge and rue de la paix clothes."

Dormont Club Plans Dance Friday Night

The Siena Club will hold a dance in the Masonic Temple, Dormont, on Friday evening. Albert J. Bachner is chairman of the committee arranging the affair.

Next Programs In Theaters

Robert Young and Jean Parker are co-starred in "Lazy River," a melodrama opening tomorrow in the Camerphone. It's an old-fashioned tale of a young couple who find love in a rural setting.

Robert Montgomery, Elizabeth Allan and Lewis Stone have the leading roles in "The Mystery of Mr. X," photoplay opening Thursday in the Fulton. Stone is a Scotland Yard detective, working on the solution of a series of mysterious murders. Montgomery is a slick thief, and Miss Allan is the girl he loves.

George Arliss has the principal role in "The House of Rothschild," a historical drama coming to the Penn screen Friday. The story is virtually a history of Europe in the time of Napoleon. Arliss is seen as the head of the noted banking family. Loretta Young and Robert Young play the romantic leads.

"20 Million Sweethearts," a comedy with music that deals with radio broadcasting, will open Thursday in the Stanley. Pat O'Brien, playing the role of radio scout, takes Dick Powell from a beer garden, promotes him to stardom. Ginger Rogers helps in the romantic angle.

Lee Tracy plays a newspaper reporter who, after pulling a sensational scoop, is assigned to cover a story of an uprising in a mythical European kingdom. The picture comes to the Warner Friday. Gloria Stuart plays the role of a princess.

Bebe Daniels and Lyle Talbot, in "Registered Nurse," are the attraction in the Sheridan Square, to be followed Friday by Katherine Hepburn in "Spitfire," with Miss Hepburn as a quick-tempered mountain girl.

Voting Machine Hearing Delayed

HARRISBURG, May 1.—(AP.)—Hearing in a Washington County taxpayers' suit to restrain the state from contracting for 150 voting machines, was postponed yesterday.

The taxpayers protest that the machines would cost the county $150,000 and that the county is to vote in November on whether to continue using machines.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"DEAR MARK," writes David Berger, "A New York lawyer who drives to the Catskill Mountains every Saturday afternoon for the week-end was recently arrested by a State Trooper in one of the small villages near Monticello. He was charged with the terrible crime of having passed a red light.

"The attorey was taken before a Justice of the Peace who was also a continued lawyer, contractor, undertaker and whatnot. The lawyer protested that he was a big New York attorney and demanded a one week's adjournment to prepare the case for trial with witnesses, etc.

"The Justice consented, and the case went over to the following Saturday afternoon. In this time, the lawyer had prepared the witnesses for his defense; said witnesses being an engaged couple who had been riding in the attorney's car at the time of the arrest.

"On the agreed day, the lawyer and his two witnesses were at the Justice's home prepared to go on with the case. But on this occasion, the State Trooper was unabel to be present because he was on strike duty somewhere. So the Justice said that the case must go over for still another week.

"'Look here,' cried the lawyer angrily, 'my time is worth money and I want this case tried right now. I'm not fighting this thing because of the fine involved; I'm interested only in the principle of the thing. Please try this case immediately.'

"The Justice of the Peace squinted at the counsellor. He was evidently growing a bit peeved himself.

"'I can't see,' he said, 'why you don't plead guilty and get this thing over with. All it's gonna cost you is a $10 fine. And whether you like it or not—trial or no trial—that's gonna be your fine anyhow. So you might as well pay up—and shut up.'

"There was plenty of logic in the Justice's words, as everyone who has ever been up against these small-town fines knows only too well. His witnesses, the engaged couple, led him to one side and told him not to be foolish. So the attorney agreed to plead guilty and pay his ten bucks.

"Then the engaged couple had a brilliant idea. As long as they were at a home of a Justice of the Peace, why not get married? They had been delaying it too long anyhow.

"The Justice grinned and said he would marry them. And he did, too—all for the same ten bucks!" . . .

"LIFE," murmurs Jack Benny, "is so perplexing. When a man falls in love, he doesn't want to eat. And when the affair is over, he can't afford to!" . . .

"KNOWING that you like Jimmy Cagney, the actor, and Mack Gordon, the songwriter," writes Phil Burgess, of Los Angeles, "it may interest you to learn that—as neighbors—the two of them do not get along.

"Cagney and Gordon occupy adjoining homes out in Beverly Hills, but both of them wish they had other neighbors. It may be that Gordon writes his songs too late in the night and disturbs Cagney. Or it may be that the Cagney household rehearses during the day and disturbs Gordon. But whatever it is, the feeling exists.

"All of which, Mr. Hellinger, doesn't mean too much. But it's rather ironic when you consider Gordon's new song that is now sweeping the country. The title is 'Love Thy Neighbor!'" . . .

"TALK about your dumb guys," wires' Howard Snyder, "I just met a pip.

"The chump read the proverb, 'All things come to him who waits'—so he got himself a job in a restaurant!" . . .

"I WONDER," wonders Seymour Sussman, "how many of your readers have heard about that Westchester County gal who was locked in a refrigerator?

"Within 20 minutes, the cops arrived and released this damsel from her isolatiton. To their astonishment, Mr. Hellinger, when the girl walked out of the ice-box, they found her to be the coolest person in the room!" . . .

"I LEFT Chicago a few months ago," reads an excerpt from a letter to this department, "to go to Russia. Because of certain conditions, I did not go there—but went to Washington instead."

If you ask Dr. Wirt's opinion, he will tell you that it hardly makes any difference . . .

"DEAR MARK:" dearmarks Hugh Wedlock, Jr. "Out in Reno there is a very special room in a very special building for those American divorcees who have married foreign noblemen. And over a counter where the divorces are handed out, there is a large sign that reads: "'Please Change Your Count Before Leaving.'" . . .

"YOU must be receiving any number of Dillinger stories these days, Mark," writes Leonard Lyons. "Here's another for the collection.

"When Dillinger was cornered just before his most recent escape, one of the policemen shot a bystander by mistake, as usual. The cop, so they say, thought he had nailed Dillinger—so he immediately sent a wire to Mrs. Holley, warden of the jail from which the desperado had escaped.

"'Just killed Dillinger,' the wire read. 'What will we do with the body? Embalm, cremate or bury?'

"A few minutes later, Mrs. Holley's reply arrived.

"'Don't take any chances,' it stated. 'Embalm, cremate AND bury!'" . . .

SCOTT, INDIAN FIGHTER, DIES

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, retired, noted Indian fighter and former chief of staff of the Army, died last night in Walter Reed Hospital after an illness of two months. He was 80.

Graduated from West Point in 1876, Scott as a second lieutenant saw active service almost immediately in the Sioux expedition, the beginning af a stirring career as an Army officer which led him to the post of chief of staff at the beginning of the World War. He held the latter post from November, 1914, to September, 1917, and laid the basis for American participation in the conflict with Germany.

He retired from active duty in the Army in 1919. But he wasn't ready to settle down. He offered his services to the state of New Jersey, and in 1923, at the age of 70, he was named chairman of the State Highway Commission by Gov. Silzer.

He served in this post for 10 years, supervising a program of modern highway development which cost $250,000,000.

Through all his last years Scott continued vigorously his researches and writings on the Indian sign languages which he, alone of all white men, had mastered during his years on the plains. In 1930 he was commissioned by the Library of Congress to compile a record for all time of this curious mode of expression.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

It's almost swimming weather again now, fellows!

And right now we want to warn you to be careful in the water. You know that often the best swimmers get into trouble in the water.

They forget that human muscles tire, but that the waves and the currents in the water never tire.

Even strong swimmers, who should know better, get too venturesome and go out farther than they should. They may get cramps and then they will be lucky if they reach shore without help. And the help may not be there.

Decide right now, fellows, to be careful in the water. And to have fun in the water where it is safe. A Junior Patrol swimming party is a swell idea, but you should make sure that there are lifeguards handy and that there is no donger.

Now here is a letter from Dorothy Mihalko, of 316½ Erie avenue, Aliquippa, Pa. She writes that she wants to be a captain. All you have to do is to get 10 members, at least, and to call a meeting. The first thing to do is to elect a captain and a secretary. Then you can go ahead and have meetings and make plans to help others, and to have fun yourselves doing all sort of things that children like to do together.

This letter is from Walter Lough, 534 Washington avenue, Bridgeville, Pa. He says:

"I would like to join the Junior Patrol Club. Please send me a membership card and badge. I am 12 years old and in the sixth grade. In my room at school we play indoor ball. We play other rooms in the school, too. Please put this letter in the paper."

Please write and tell us what "indoor ball" is, will you, Walter? It sound very interesting, especially if you can play other rooms in the school. Why don't you organize a Junior Patrol Club and play other clubs? There are many other swell games to play, too.

Don't forget that we are still looking for new members and new clubs, fellows! Soon school will be out, and then vacations will start. It's a good idea to have your club going strong before vacation starts.

Fearing Blindness, Man Ends Life

Fear of blindness prompted Paul T. Cayton, 25, to end his life in the cellar of his home, 459 Victor way, West Homestead, last night, according to the Coroner's report. Placing the butt end of a shotgun against the wall and the barrel to his left chest, Cayton pressed the trigger with a yardstock, Deputy Coroner Roy Adlesburger said. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Cayton, attracted by the shot, ran to the cellar and discovered the body. She told investigators Cayton had been worrying about his sight and last Saturday had been advised by his physician to consult an eye specialist. He was unmarried.

String on Scales Brings Fine to Butcher

It is probable there is no string attached to the scales in Louis Penkevitz' meat market at 2176 Webster avenue today.

Pankevitz was denied a new trial.

MYSTERY GIRL SERGE'S GUEST

Universal Service.

MENTON, France, May 1.—An elderly woman and a tall young blonde girl arrived yesterday at the monkey-gland farm of Dr. Serge Voronoff, 70-year-old rejuvenated expert, shrouding their identity in secrecy.

Whether the women were Gertrude Schwetz, Dr. Voronoff's 21-year-old bride, and her mother, could not immediately be learned. Attendants at the chateau apparently had received orders not to reveal the identity of the newcomers, and Dr. Voronoff likewise remained mum. He made a short trip to Nice. Servants, however, referred to the girl as "mademoiselle," indicating she was not yet married to Voronoff.

Despite previous reports that he had wed Miss Schwetz in Bucharest, Dr. Voronoff told Universal Service reports of the marriage were premature and that it would not take place for several weeks.

PRINCE EDDIE TELLS ONE

LONDON, May. 1.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales, renowned for his appreciation of a good story, tells one of his own.

The yarn, related by His Royal Highness at a dinner of the Welsh Guards, tells of a man who complained to his doctor of pains, but was unable to locate them.

The patient was ordered to place a piece of paper under his vest and make a mark wherever he felt the pain. But when the doctor called later, the paper was missing.

The man's daughter, asked if she knew its whereabouts, replied:

"Do you mean that piece of paper with all the holes in it? We put it in the pianola and it played, 'O God, Our Help in Ages Past.'"

Railways Men Renew Conferences

Negotiations for a new two-year agreement was in progress today by officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the 1,800 trolley operators. The old agreement expired at midnight.

An offer of a 3-cent an hour increase recently was refused by the men, who are seeking an increase which would bring their wages up to $1.10 and $1.25 an hour.

They are big, strong young fellows, and are doing well.

M. E. REUNITING URGED IN SOUTH

Dear Madam:

Of course he's grouchy. He's had a tiresome day at work. He's grumpy, out-of-sorts and thirsty. He needs something to pick him up. Give him a bottle of delicious, thirst-quenching beer. You'll find he prefers Iron City—most everybody does. And don't try to fool him! No other beer tastes the same. No other beer has that "just right" flavor, neither too sweet nor too bitter, but mellow and smooth and deliciously refreshing. You can get it at your neighborhood dealer's.

AMERICA'S BIGGEST-SELLING PACKAGE SOAP

Authorities Must Act Quickly

By B. C. FORBES

A VISIT from H. Gordon Selfridge, Britain's most progressive retail merchant is always refreshing. Although past 70 he radiates dynamic enthusiasm. He lets nothing discourage him.

Mr. Forbes

Raised in a small Michigan community, he migrated to Chicago, joined Marshall Field, exhibited brilliant talent and inexhaustible energy, won a partnership, made a fortune, quit—then decided that it would be fun to invade staid old London with an American department store.

Everybody predicted failure.

Today, Selfridge's is not only the best-known store in London, but he controls important stores throughout Britain, the latter actively managed by his son. I remarked:

"We hear that John Bull has overcome the worst of his troubles, and is now forging ahead."

He replied:

"Yes, we are on the upgrade. We are not rising at an angle of 45 degrees, but we are making steady, sure progress."

He added:

"Somehow, Britons are not as volatile, excitable as we Americans are. They are more deliberate. They do not become so tremendously elated when business is good, nor do they sink to the depths of despair when business becomes bad. They have wonderful stability, wonderful stick-to-itiveness. They are pulling through, without doubt."

While disinclined to discuss political developments here, I could gather that Mr. Selfridge feels that the sooner extraordinary governmental experiments quieten down and business can return to something approaching normal methods, the better it would be ultimately for the people of this nation.

A CHEERFUL incident furnished by one reader, Warren H. Eddy: When activities under the CWA terminated on March 29, a large group of men were employed constructing a sewer at ——. It was not completed. To a man, the group signed an agreement to work a full week without pay to complete to job. He adds:

"You do not seem to realize the mental revolution now current in the average American mind."

Bravo!

COTTON PRICES TURN EASY

NEW YORK, May 1.—Cotton futures opened easy, 5 to 8 lower under renewed liquidation and on the unfavorable spot market. May, 10.68; July, 10.82; October, 11.00; December, 11.07; January, 11.15; March, 11.25.

Trading was quite active at the start. Liquidation was more or less general, and there was a little selling of May, possibly against notices estimated at about 7,300 bales. There was also some foreign selling, and the break into new ground for the movement uncovered stop orders. July sold off to 10.74c and December to 10.99c, active months showing net losses of about 15 to 18 points at the end of the first half hour.

Liquidation continued later in the morning, with prices working off gradually to 10.71 for July, or about 19 to 20 points below yesterday's closing quotations and approximately 2 cents a pound below the high prices of last February. Trade interests continued to buy on a scale down and there was considerable covering, but the market was barely steady and within 3 or 4 points of the lowest around midday.

LIVERPOOL, May 1.—Cotton, no receipts. Spot in limited demand; prices 11 points lower. Quotations in pence: American, strict good middling, 6.45; good middling, 6.15; strict middling, 6.00; middling, 5.85; strict low middling, 5.70; low middling, 5.45; strict good ordinary, 5.25; good ordinary, 4.95. Futures closed quiet and steady. May, 5.57; July, 5.58; October, 5.52; December, 5.50; January, 5.50; March, 5.51.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

GOVERNMENTAL 'PUMP PRIMING' NEARS CRISIS

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, May 1.—Looked at from the outside, last week's developments in the business world are easily described.

1—Industrial production, as a whole, was fairly active, and probably increased a little further.

2—Trade reacted from the spring peak, and wholesale prices slumped.

3—Washington turned apologetic and began explaining that really it is conservative.

These three phases are not unrelated.

Overproduction is responsible for the price weakness. The artificial stimulation of business has been chiefly responsible for the spring rise in business, and the tendency at Washington to "swing right" is temporarily reducing the stimulative doses.

This "conservative" tendency at Washington, in turn, is due to a realization that business confidence was being destroyed by socialistic experiments and wild monetary schemes. The result has been to defeat the efforts of the administration to get businessmen to use bank credit, as well as other schemes of stimulation.

CONTINUANCE DOUBTFUL

Steel production has continued to expand. This is generally agreed to be chiefly the result of buying to anticipate the recent price advance. It, therefore, means an accumulation of inventories which may prove to be burdensome.

For the rest, the increased steel production reflects the peak of the automobile output, and the spring spurt in PWA spending. How long these will last, is doubtful.

The last week's reports on automobile production indicates a little decline, considering the season, and there is increasing discussion of the possibility that it may be at the peak. Sales reports are more spotty. It seems that a good many motor dealers rushed sales to beat the price advances made by several manufacturers, and that now more consumer resistance is being experienced.

Automobile sales in various southern sections continue large on account of government doles to farmers. Now that cotton prices have reacted, however, some reduction in optimism may be expected to limit the buying in this quarter.

Unfortunately, too, a condition of extreme drought threatens the grain farmers of the northwest.

CRITICAL PERIOD HERE

The result has been another spurt in production, and renewed evidence of overproduction. This, along with the soft-pedaling of government doles through the CWA, and obvious hesitation about going ahead with the inflation and price-lifting policies, are now occasioning some reaction in business and weakness in prices.

This general picture is well illustrated by the textile industries, in which case there is even talk that some goods and clothing prices may actually be lower this fall.

Evidently we are at the "critical period" of the "pump priming" process. Either some more priming will have to be done soon, or further recession is likely.

The big question now is, will the President wait for those excess bank reserves to go into action, or will he proceed to more direct means of inflation?

STEEL OUTPUT RATE RISES

NEW YORK, May 1.—Steel operations for this week are indicated at 55.7 per cent, according to telegraphic advices to the American Iron and Steel Institute. This compares with 54 per cent a week ago and is an increase of 1.7 points, or 3.2 per cent.

The current indicated rate is the highest since last July.

Steel making in the Pittsburgh district is up to 47 per cent of capacity this week, a new high for the movement. Some of the independents are operating above 50 per cent. Carnegie Steel has 10 out of 32 furnaces going. Jones & Laughlin has 7 out of 11.

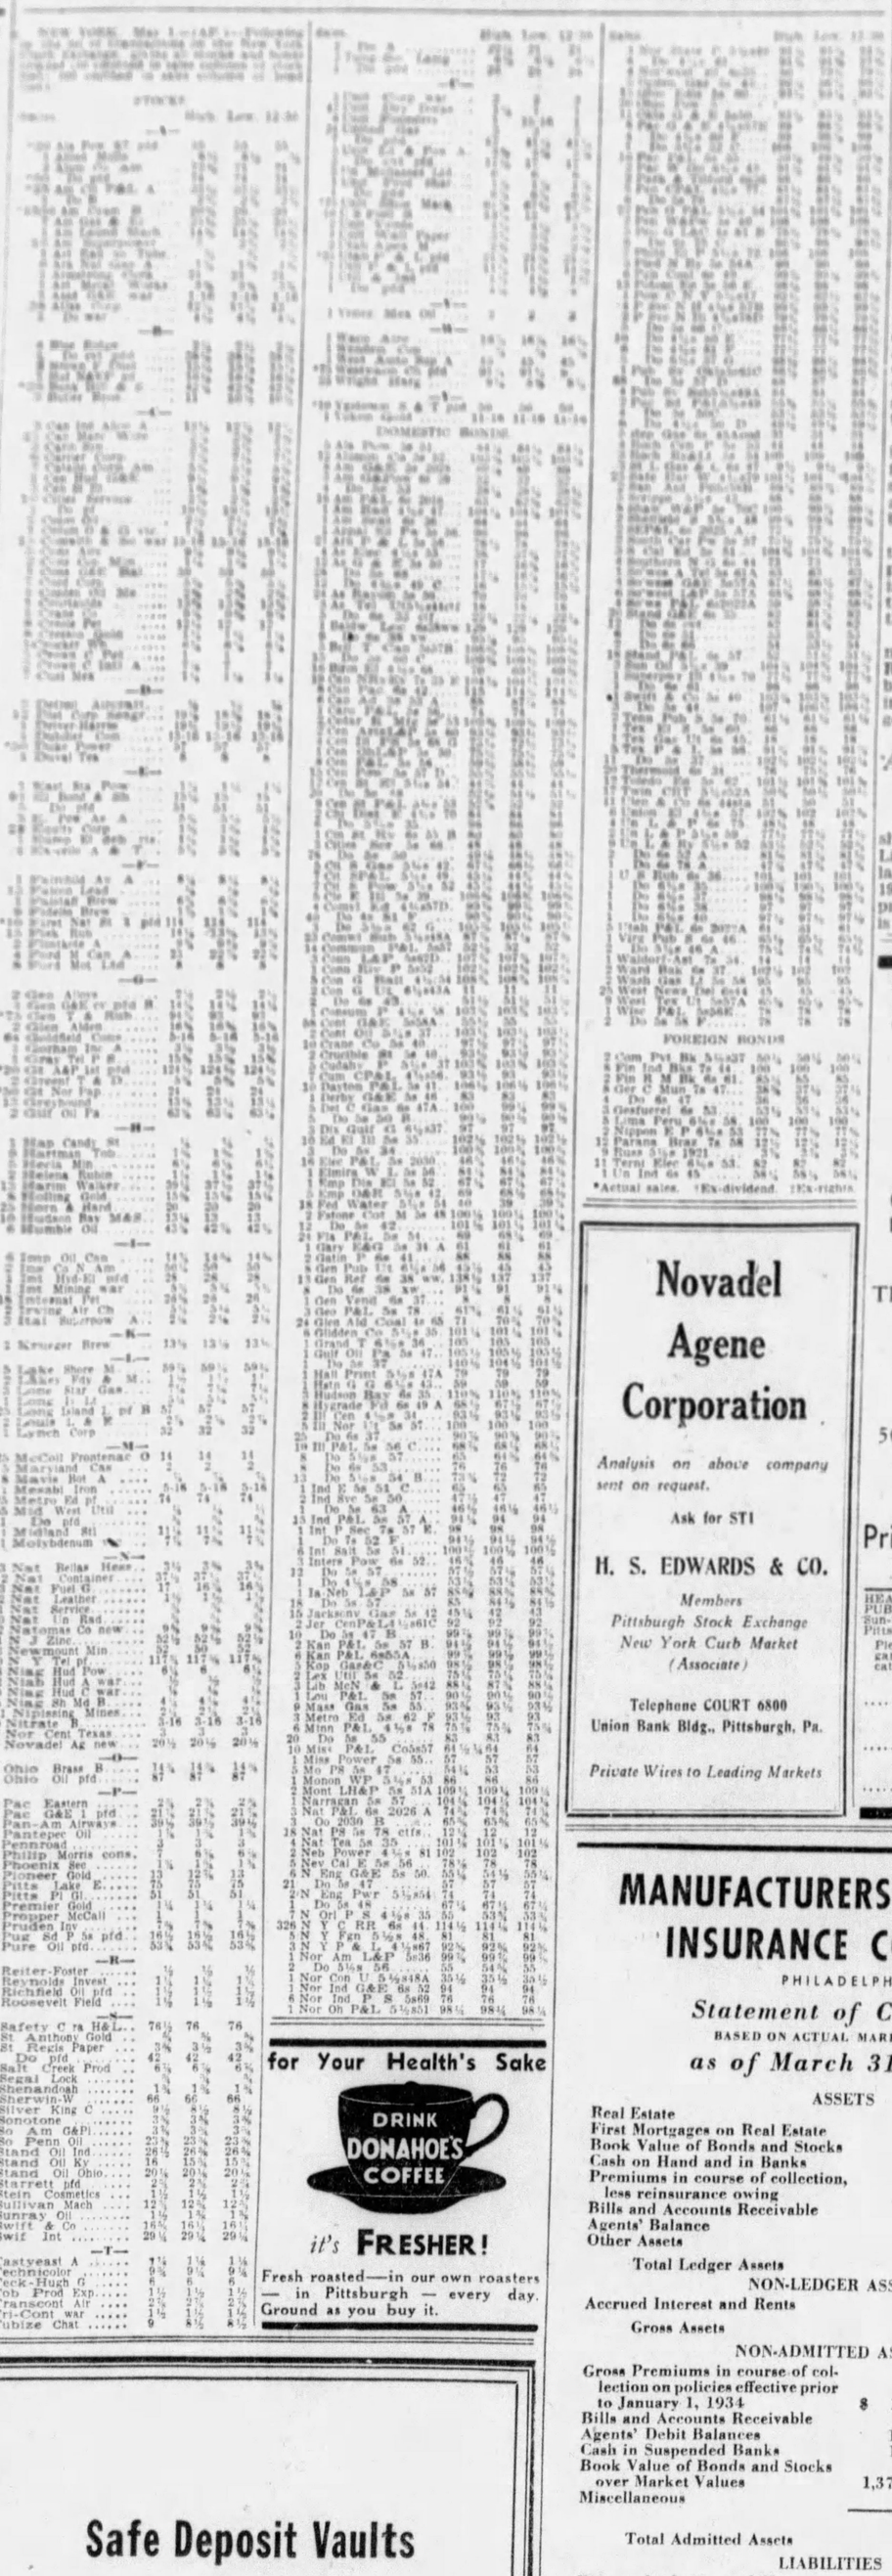
NEW YORK CURB MARKET



INTEREST PAID ON HEARST BOND ISSUE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—Semi-annual interest, totaling 668,625, was being paid today by Hearst Publications, Inc., on its outstanding issue of first mortgage and collateral trust 6½ per cent serial gold bonds.

Hearst Publications, Inc., which is a subsidiary of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., earned annual bond interest in 1933 by 4.5 times actual requirements, while during the past four years annual interest was earned five times the amount due.

The company retires serially a block of $1,000,000 bonds on the first day of each November and semi-annual interest payments are made on May 1 and November 1.

Executives of Hearst Publications, Inc., report that the company is maintaining the uptrend in volume of business and that the outlook for the balance of the year is extremely encouraging.

The Omaha Bee-News, another newspaper enterprise of William Randolph Hearst, will also disburse today $60,000 semi-annual interest on its 6 per cent serial gold debenture bonds.

Auto Lite Sales Best in 3 Years

DETROIT, May 1.—Sales and shipments of the Electric Auto-Lite Company during April were larger than any month since July, 1931, according to C. O. Miniger, president. The schedule for May is "very substantial," he added.

STOCK MARKET SELLING TIDE STEMMED

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP.)—While the selling tide appeared to have been stemmed in today's stock market, and scattered rallying tendencies were discernible, caution was the watchword among the speculative forces.

There was no stimulous to be drawn from commodities and the Washington outlook was still cloudy. Wheat dropped about 2 cents a bushel as rains were predicted for the thirsty crops. Cotton was off around $1 a bale to its lowest level since early January. Silver futures sagged and the bar metal was lowered 1 cent an ounce to 41⅝ cents, the bottom since November 6, last. Rubber was firm, however, on the new restriction agreement. Bonds were irregular. International dollar rates showed little change.

The unsettlement of American Telephone is attributed partly to the Supreme Court decision upholding the Illinois State Commerce Commission in its telephone rate reduction battle begun 11 years ago.

Followers of the motors and rails appeared somewhat more cheerful. There were indications that the automobile labor difficulties would be ironed out peacefully at the conference now being held in Detroit. Traffic and earning gains of the carriers continued to show improvement.

The market had other labor problems to consider besides those in the automotive field. A strike of some 7,000 leather workers was started in Massachusetts, with 39 firms affected.

Statistical services found there were 82 favorable dividend revisions in April, compared with 144 in March and 25 in April of last year. A further decline in commercial failures was also reported. During the past week there were 262 of these defaults, compared with 265 in the previous week and 452 in the corresponding week of 1933.

On the dark side of the Wall street picture there was seen, among other things, the passing of the seasonal peak of motor car production, debates on the stock exchange control bill in Congress, the erratic tendencies of commodities, the check upon retail sales occasioned by the backward spring, and indications of an over-supply of silk and rayon goods in the hands of merchants and manufacturers.

PENNA. CRUDE OIL RAISED

All grades of Pennsylvania crude oil have been advanced 10 cents per barrel, the South Penn Oil Company announces. New prices are: South West Penn Pipe Lines, $2.22; Eureka Pipe Lines, $2.17; Buckeye Pipe Lines, $2.07. Bradford district and Allegheny district, New York crudes also have been raised 10 cents to $2.55.

Court Dismisses Erie Fare Case

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has dismissed the complaint of the Metropolitan League of Erie Commuters against the Erie Railroad. The league had attacked as unreasonable the 60-trip monthly communitation passenger fares between New York City and points in New Jersey and New York.

PIRATE HURLERS SHOW INABILITY TO PITCH ROUTE

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Babe Herman Fools 'Em. No Weakling On Defense. Spot Players Make Good. • Finesse Replaces Power. Outsiders Take Derby. Woman at Golf Peak.

While the Cubs, in accepting the series opener yesterday as a little token of Pittsburgh hospitality, were almost as loose as the Pirates in their general play, and it was only a question as to which side would ultimately outstagger the other, Charley Grimm's powerhouse club did disclose one new item in its pennant equipment that evidently has been underestimated. That is the defensive side of Babe Herman. The jokesmiths around the circuit always have painted Herman as being a laugh in the field, and have created the impression in some quarters that, aside from his big punch at the plate, the slugging right gardener is a liability rather than an asset to his club.

Babe Herman

But Babe yesterday opened many pairs of eyes at Forbes Field with some of the slickest outfielding of the new season. Not only did he handle the unusual number of eight chances with a smooth sureness, but the best part of his work does not appear in the box score. It was his handling of ground balls. On two occasions, by fast ground covering, sparkling stops and quick returns, Herman cut down to singles hard Pirate drives to right center that ordinarily would have been good for extra bases. The second of those stops, robbing Cookie Lavagetto of a triple in the eleventh frame, probably deprived the Bucs of a victory, as if the ball had gone through, Lavagetto, instead of being held to a single, would have been on third with only one out and in a position to score the winning run. Don't fool yourself that Herman is a defensive weakling.

GOOD START BY PLAYERS PUT ON SPOT

In coming through to deliver the big things expected of him in his transfer from the lowly Phils to the pennant-seeking Cubs, Chuck Klein isn't the only player put on the spot this year who is making good. Observers around the major circuits report several others as having given excellent accounts of themselves under conditions that found them facing new tests. Manager Charley Grimm, of the Cubs, is on the spot himself in being allowed to remain in charge of a club in which the owners place strong pennant hopes, and so far Charley has handled the outfit in a way with which nobody could find fault.

Carl Hubbell, the game's greatest pitcher last year, was told to go out and prove himself all over again with a new and livelier ball, and the Giants' star left-hander is doing that very thing in most convincing style. Hack Wilson, adjudged as just about done at the close of the 1933 season, was handed a final chance by the Dodgers, and has come back to wallop the ball with his old power and to play with as much gusto as he did when he first broke into the majors. It was up to Babe Ruth to prove that he had not reached the end of his string, and if the Bambino can keep going at his starting clip, even his own original views that this season would be his last may be revised. His legs have yet to meet the test of sun-baked grounds, but at least he has shown so much of his former larruping power that the pitchers are as careful as ever not to give him a good ball to hit.

MARBERRY MORE THAN POWER PITCHER

Detroit has in Tommy Bridges a pitcher with the best curve ball in the American League, and the hooks of the other Tiger flingers look very ordinary in comparison, but for all around value and general effectiveness, according to Harry Salsinger and other Jungletown critics, the real bell cow of Mickey Cochrane's mound staff is Fred Marberry, the Washington discard. Marberry formerly was labeled merely a power pitcher, just a strong-arm thrower, but he has developed into a balanced mound performer.

Fred Marberry

Marberry's fast ball would not get him by today, a realization that led Washington to get rid of him, but he no longer depends entirely on that pitch. He now carries a change of pace, a curve ball, and pitching intelligence and finesse besides. He has developed the ability to mess up the timing of the batters by making them swing while off stride, and he has the knack of keeping the ball where the hitter does not like to see it pitched. Besides, big Firpo is of the winning type, oozing competitive spirit, and in general his present stock in trade makes him one of the most valuable pitchers in the business. In their current hunt for another pitcher, the Senators may well wish they had Marberry back.

KENTUCKY DERBY WON BY LONG SHOTS

The unusually open nature of the 1934 edition of the Kentucky Derby, to be run on Saturday, is causing speculation as to the chances of a long shot's coming home in front. If the betting fraternity centers the bulk of its money on a couple of the horses that have figured most prominently in the advance talk, and one of the more obscure starters happens to win, the victor will pay uncommonly heavy odds.

It wouldn't be the first instance of the Derby's being captured by a rank outsider. The winner paying the longest price in the history of the event was Donerail in 1913. For each $2 mutuel ticket, those backing him to win received $189.40, those playing him for place drew $41.20, and those playing him against the bark got 13.20. In 1918, Exterminator paid $61.20 to win, $23.10 place, and $12.40 show. The shortest-price winners were 1 to 3—Hindoo in 1881, Halma in 1895, and Agile in 1905.

DIEGEL RANKS WOMAN GREATEST GOLFER

If you'll take the word of Leo Diegel for it, the ranking of the world's outstanding performer in golf belongs to a woman. The famous professional rates Miss Joyce Wethered, four times winner of the women's British championship, as the best player golf has seen. He admits that Bobby Jones was the greatest scoring machine ever to drive a ball off a tee, but says that in choosing the best player the execution of shots must be considered above everything else, and that in this respect the English woman was without a peer among men or women golfers.

Joyce Wethered

Diegel insists that Miss Wethered executed her shots in a manner nearer to perfection than any other player in the world. He concedes that Jones could outdrive her, but declares that Bobby even at his best missed a great many more shots than did the former English champion. Rating the players having the best golf temperament, Diegel names Walter Hagen as his first choice, Denny Shute second, and Paul Runyan, third. In Leo's opinion, Hagen, though getting along in years and not able to stand the pace he once was able to maintain, is without doubt the coolest player that ever stepped on a course. Nothing ruffles him, Diegel says, and if Walter has a temper he keeps it well under control.

Frank Bruno, caddie master at the Nemacolin Country Club, was named president of the Caddie Masters' and Assistant Professionals' Golf Association at its annual meeting at the Churchill Valley Golf Club last night.

Bruno succeeds Alister Soutar, of Allegheny, who was not a candidate for re-election. Joby Conners, of the Chartiers Heights, was elected vice president, and Charley Bagswell, of the Churchill Valley Club, secretary-treasurer. Bagswell succeeded Andy Petrolio.

GOLF PROS ATTEND

When the annual meeting opened, the following were in attendance: J. E. Daly, Country Club of Pittsburgh; C. Bagswell, and Brannigan and A. Monzo, Churchill Valley; S. Langsner and J. Johnstone, Stanton Heights; Alister Soutar, Allegheny; Andy Petrolio, unattached; F. Bruno, Nemacolin; Dick Kline, Churchill Valley; Bert Capebianco, Aliquippa; A. Moranto and Reese Marks, Wildwood; Sam Mellon, Oakmont; Butch Kaiser, Highland; F. W. Huck, Beaver Valley, and A. M. Benton, Fox Chapel.

Ed McCoy, vice president, and George Ormiston, secretary, of the West Penn Golf Association, were guests of honor. Johnny Capebianco, of Aliquippa, and Jimmy O'Donnell, of Churchill Valley, represented the professionals at the dinner.

Sam Mellon, Reese Marks and John Johnstone were on the nominating committee, with Sam Mellon, Butch Kaiser and John Johnstone named as a membership committee to get recruits for the organization.

DENTIST SCORES ACE

Dr. K. R. Weigel, of the Pennsylvania Dental Association, scored the first hole-in-one of the season at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday afternoon. The tee shot was sunk on the sixteenth hole. A mashie was used. Dr. J. A. De Weese and Dr. R. S. Dow were in the threesome.

Interscholastic golf holds the spotlight this afternoon, all four sections swinging into action. Some real matches should result.

Denny Shute, British open champion, will team up with Tom Hudgins, famous trick shot artist, against Emil Loeffler and Perry Del Vecchio Sunday afternoon, June 3, at Oakmont. The proceeds of the match will be turned over to the tri-state golf professionals' organization. Dutch and Perry were the finalists in the tri-state P. G. A. tourney last year at Oakmont.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

With only two pitchers finishing in 10 April starts, the new Pirates greeted May today in a somewhat trembling manner. The first two weeks of the championship race in the National League has indicated that the fears of the fans concerning the Buccaneer pitching staff were well grounded. It is much too soon to start singing the blues, but at the same time the personnel of the Pirates' slab roster is such that several members will have to start showing something soon else the team will be ensconsed in the second division.

Ralph Birkofer and Red Lucas each has started and ended a contest since the bell rang two weeks ago today.

FRENCH DEFEATED

The consensus of opinion among the astute followers of the club is that Larry French and Lucas will win consistently, but whom will Gibson call upon to stay in the pace with these two hurlers? Even French is off his food in the fresh season. The scrappy left-hander has been bumped out of three games, and Larry suffered a defeat yesterday after he had been assigned the relief role in a contest wherein the Buccos looked impressive at times and very bad at other intervals.

To add to the pitching woes of the club, there is a stupid vein of play running through the Pirates these days. Baserunners and coaches are turning in plays that would scarcely pass muster in a primary baseball school; moreover, there is a criticism among the rooters of the lack of spice in the lineup of the club.

Injected in the lineup yesterday, Catcher Tommy Padden gave the Buccos a flavor with his hustling tactics, his double-play throws and his clean hitting. Tommy doubled up two Cubs at second and tried to give his team the spark of victory, but just as this was about to ignite, Guy Bush and Babe Herman snuffed it out.

The first extra-time battle of the season in the Oakland orchard, the Cub-Pirate scrap of yesterday waged through 12 exciting rounds before the Buccos admitted defeat. The Bears ploughed through with two tallies in the twelfth, to win, 8 to 6.

MISSES GOOD CHANCE

Bush had a one-run lead as the Pirates came up in the ninth, but Lindstrom and Vaughan hooked up two singles in a hurry [illegible] Pirates had the winning [illegible] second and the tying ma[illegible] on third as a result of the hits. Cuyler fumbled the second single, which opened the path to second for Arky.

Slugging Gus Suhr, owner of two previous triples, was put on base purposely to fill the sacks and the strategy looked fine when Lavagetto forced Lindstrom at the plate. Tom Thevenow, a good little gent in a clinch, smacked a hot single to center that scored Vaughan with the tying run and the bases were still packed for Grace, but Earl could not turn the winning trick.

Southpaw Roy Joiner [illegible] to hold the attack of the Pirates as he paired off against Hal Smith. Joiner was shelled off the hill in the seventh and Smith also took his leave in the same round, the

Corbett Knocks Out Young Terry

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—(INS.)—Young Corbett III, of Fresno, Cal., former welterweight champion, admitted today he has definite aspirations of winning the middleweight crown from Vince Dundee.

Corbett was jubilant over the decisive defeat he handed Young Terry, Trenton (N. J.) middleweight, here last night.

Corbett knocked out the Trenton Buzzsaw in the third round of their scheduled 10-round fight before 9,000 fans.

Corbett landed two solid lefts to Terry's midsection shortly after the third round opened. No more than two minutes of the third round had passed before Terry was counted out.

WHITE SOX SLUGGERS FINALLY STRIKE BATTING STRIDE

CHICAGO ROUTS INDIANS, 20-10; GIANTS WIN

Associated Press.

An overnight rise of 23 points in the Chicago White Sox' batting average had induced their backers to shed their principal cause for alarm today.

The Pale Hose, woeful disappointments in the early stages of the American League race, broke no records as they blasted five Cleveland pitchers for 18 hits and a 20-10 victory yesterday, but the rattle of bashits at Comiskey Park was the sweetest music White Sox fans have heard this spring.

Until they finally broke loose, the Sox had batted only .242 in nine games, losing six of them, but the barrage they laid down at the expense of Monte Pearson and a varied collection of successors indicated the batting crisis had passed.

AL HITS HOMER

Al Simmons, who had made only seven safeties in his first nine engagements, led the fusillade with three hits, including his third home in as many days. Sad Sam Jones, veteran right hander, started for Chicago, but weakened after holding the Indians to six hits in six innings and retired in favor of Joe Heving with the score 20-3.

Meanwhile the New York Yankees regained first place by tripping Washington, 7-4, while the Detroit Tigers were taking a 7-2 beating from the St. Louis Browns, Charley Ruffing went the route for the Yankees and drove in the winning runs in the ninth with a lusty drive into the left field bleachers with two on.

Fine relief pitching by Bob Kline and successive homers by Frank Higgins and Lou Finney in the eighth helped the Philadelphia Athletics win from Boston, 6-2, in the other American League tussle.

The Chicago Cubs and New York Giants held their places at the top of the National League heap. The Cubs had to travel 12 innings to earn an 8-6 decision from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

GIANTS VICTORS

The Giants rolled to a 5-0 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers as big Fred Fitzsimmons stopped the Stengelmen cold with five scattered hits.

Bartell's double and Ruble's single enabled the Phillies to top the Boston Braves, 5-4, in a tight 10-inning struggle, while the St. Louis Cardinals rallied for four runs in the seventh to beat the Cincinnati Reds, 10-6.

Outdoor Ring Dates To Be Set Tomorrow

Dates for the outdoor boxing season here will be allotted by the State Athletic Commission at a meeting in the office of Commissioner W. D. McClelland in the Koppers Building tomorrow, it was announced today.

Hickey Park and the Meyers Bowl will operate again and some shows will be held on a large scale at Forbes Field.

HonusSays:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates

To the Sports Editor: This is the time of year when daylight savings comes back in many places. Now, I ain't one to monkey around with the sun, which has been on the job for a coupla billion years or so, but I can't see any harm in turning the clocks ahead a hour during the summer if it means a lot of folks will be able to get that much more outdoors fun.

Honus Wagner

I never did understand why some people kick about daylight savings. It gives a man a chance to go to the ball game, get home and eat supper and still romp around on the lawn with the kids.

So you can put in my vote for daylight savings.

Respects,
HONUS WAGNER.

BUCCO HURLERS LACK FORM

Pirate pitcher having developed a blistered finger on his throwing hand. Harris, Hoyt and French followed in this order to the slab. Bush relieved Joiner and received credit for the victory.

Babe Herman saved the game in the eleventh when he held Lavagetto's potential triple with one out to a single by a fine stop and throw. Leo Hartnett and Billy Herman came through with home runs.

CHILLYSAUCE

There isn't much wrong with the Pirate attack. Gibby's sockers outballed the Cubs, 16 to 15, in the first meeting of the warm rivals, but the Bears chalked up the game in the victory column.

Galli Curci Grimm has led his classy team to 10 victories in a dozen starts. Lefty was back on the gateway post after a short layoff with a bruised leg. Chuck Klein is sticking in the game despite a game leg on account of injuries owned by other outfielders.

The Cubs have the niftiest infield in the National League. Woodie English, Bill Jurges and Billy Herman are not overpaid athletes, but they are ball hawks from their spikes to the button on their caps. And the three swift lads cannot make any wild pitches in the direction of first base, for their boss is able to gobble up anything like a steam shovel.

Gabby Hartnett says he is convinced the fans like the lively ball and then he proceeds to smack out five homers in jig time. He has made three in the last two days.

Gus Suhr is the big hero of the Pirate camp these days. On top of his field day in the Sunday opener, the San Francisco Dutchman came through with a pair of fierce triples to drive in three more runs yesterday. Gus has pounded in seven tallies in two games.

WINGO SCORES KAYO

Frank Wingo technically knocked out Stan Pohasky in the second round of their bout under the auspices of the West Park Firemen in the Stowe High School gymnasium last night. Other results:

TIGER RANDALL REPEATS WIN OVER BAZZONE

By JESS CARVER

The bout lacked the fireworks of their first battle, but Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, and Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, kept the customers from falling asleep as they battled through their second 10-round engagement at the Palisades, McKeesport, last night. Randall won the unanimous decision of the two judges and the referee.

The battle drew a fine house, the citizens turning out practically in droves to watch the return clash between the middleweight stars. In the first battle a couple weeks back, Randall put Bazzone on the canvas three or four times in the first round and then barely managed to win the verdict. Last night he failed to connect solidly enough to drop the rugged McKeesporter, and at the windup of the bout, neither man had so much as a man-sized bruise to show for his evening's work. Randall was far out in front, however, his boxing and ringmanship being superior to that of Bazzone. Joey tried all the way, however, and at no time was the Tiger able to do any coasting.

In the semi-final, a six-round affair, Max (Kingfish) Elling, the estimable young gent from the Hill, whipped Jimmy Columbo, of Clarksburg, W. Va. Columbo has what it takes if you don't like the killer type. The trouble was last night that Elling had it also.

Ted Movan, recent graduate from the amateur ranks, put the works to Ray Eberle, of South Heights, Pa., in a nifty four-round scrap; Farmer Bill Schwerin, of Clairton, trimmed Dick Ambrose, of Pittsburgh, in four frames, and Jimmy Ferry, of Clairton, had the edge over Pat Gray in the opener.

Floyd Walcott, of Clairton, who only recently decided that he might as well be paid for getting socked around, lost his first bout when he failed to keep up with Mike Bazzone in the fourth four-rou..d scrap of the card.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Palisades, McKeesport—Tiger Joe Randall defeated Joey Bazzone, 10 rounds; Max Elling defeated Jimmy Columbo, 6 rounds; Mike Bazzone defeated Floyd Walcott, 4 rounds; Teddy Movan defeated Ray Eberle, 4 rounds; Jimmy Ferry defeated Pat Gray, 4 rounds; Farmer Bill Schwerin defeated Dick Ambrose, 4 rounds.

PITT NETTERS MEET DUKES; TECH PLAYS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

All three local college varsity tennis outfits will see action this afternoon as Grant Siverd's Dukes invade Pitt territory and Coach B. P. Hoover sends his untried Carnegie Tech squadron after inaugural honors in battle with W. & J. at Little Washington. The Bluffite-Panther affair marks opening of the chase for city laurels and should see both squads put forth extra effort in hope of breaking away to proper start.

Carnegie Tech, its clever 1933 contingent wrecked by loss of Rufus Hartig, Stuart Dueger and Groves and its hope of sophomore replacements dimmed by wholesale ineligibilities, has built a new combine around a junior trio that may or may not pack the power to win at the ton of the lineup. Herb Goss, Nick Maczkov and Don Krey constitute nucleus of the rehabilitated Skibo delegation. Of the three, Maczkov has perhaps the best strokes, but the Munhall High School youth has thus far but seldom contrived to employ his really sound equipment in winning fashion. Whether the Plaid has lifted a team of potentialities through medium of a more or less blind draw from the bag will be determined on the President campus today.

Turtle Creek, Mt. Lebanon, Allderdice, Wilkinsburg and Shady Side Academy turned in triumphs in the Interscholastic Tennis Conference yesterday.

Turtle Creek nosed out Munhall, 3 to 2; Mt. Lebanon won over Allegheny, 5 to 0; Wilkinsburg downed Swissvale, 4 to 1, and Shady Side defeated the Duquesne University Preps, 4 to 1.

SCHOOL NINES SET TO STAGE FRAYS TODAY

Scholastic baseball warfare will be resumed on all fronts this afternoon with full programs of games in the City Senior and Junior leagues, the three sections of the W. P. I. A. L. and in the Pittsburgh grade schools.

The City League program is an attractive one. In Section I South plays at Schenley, while in Section II, Carrick is at Langley and Allegheny Vocational at South Hills.

In the City Junior League, Arsenal is at Gladstone and Baxter at Washington Trade in Section I and Prospect at Knoxville and Herron Hill at Latimer in Section II.

Fayette City plays at Trinity and Hickory at Waynesburg in Section I of the W. P. I. A. L. Crafton goes to Findlay and Dormont to South Fayette in Section II, while the Section III schedule finds Wilkinsburg at East McKeesport, Edgewood at McKeesport and Elizabeth at Turtle Creek Union.

A flock of mushball games will be disposed of by the grade school tossers. West Liberty plays at Beechwood, Westlake at Oakwood and Conroy at John Morrow in Section I. In Section II, Logan is at Greenfield, McCleary at Morningside and Regent Square at Sterrett.

EASTERN DERBY HOPES IN WORKOUTS

TIME CLOCK, CAVALCADE LOOSEN UP

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—(INS.)—Losing no time in trying out the fast Churchill Downs turf, all six Kentucky Derby eligibles, who arrived yesterday from the seaboard, worked out today and appeared to relish the going.

Cavalcade and Time Clock merely cantered a mile and returned to their sheds, but Singing Wood breezed a good three-eights in :37 as an opener for a longer trial tomorrow.

Azrarian, fittest looking of the newcomers, also limbered up three-eights in :39 to prepare for a harder test tomorrow.

Discovery and Speedmore were given long canters.

While the easterners were loosening up, Mata Hari and Bazaar, fleet fillies from the Bluegrass, went through vigorous works. Mati Hari again turned a mile easily in 1:44 2-5, covering three-quarters in 1:17 3-5. Col. E. R. Bradley's Bazaar breezed a half mile in :48.

Exponent tried out his speed a half-mile, negotiating the route in :47 3-5.

Riskulus confined his work to a long gallop for fitness only. The Texas hope will not be asked for extended work at high speed until he goes to the Derby post Saturday.

HAMMOND BACK IN GARDEN

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Col. John Hammond becomes the major domo of Madison Square Garden today.

Col. John Reed Kilpatrick will remain in the position of top man until the end of the fiscal year, which ends on May 31. Jimmy Johnston's fate is problematical.

One big factor in favor of Johnston's retention as head of the boxing department is that the promotion of the Carnera-Baer fight for Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund on June 14 has already got under way, and the chances are that the directorate will hesitate about making any changes, both as regards to Kilpatrick and Johnston.

Hammond was let out by Bill Carey, former president of the Garden, but when he left he turned and said with a smile:

"I'll be back."

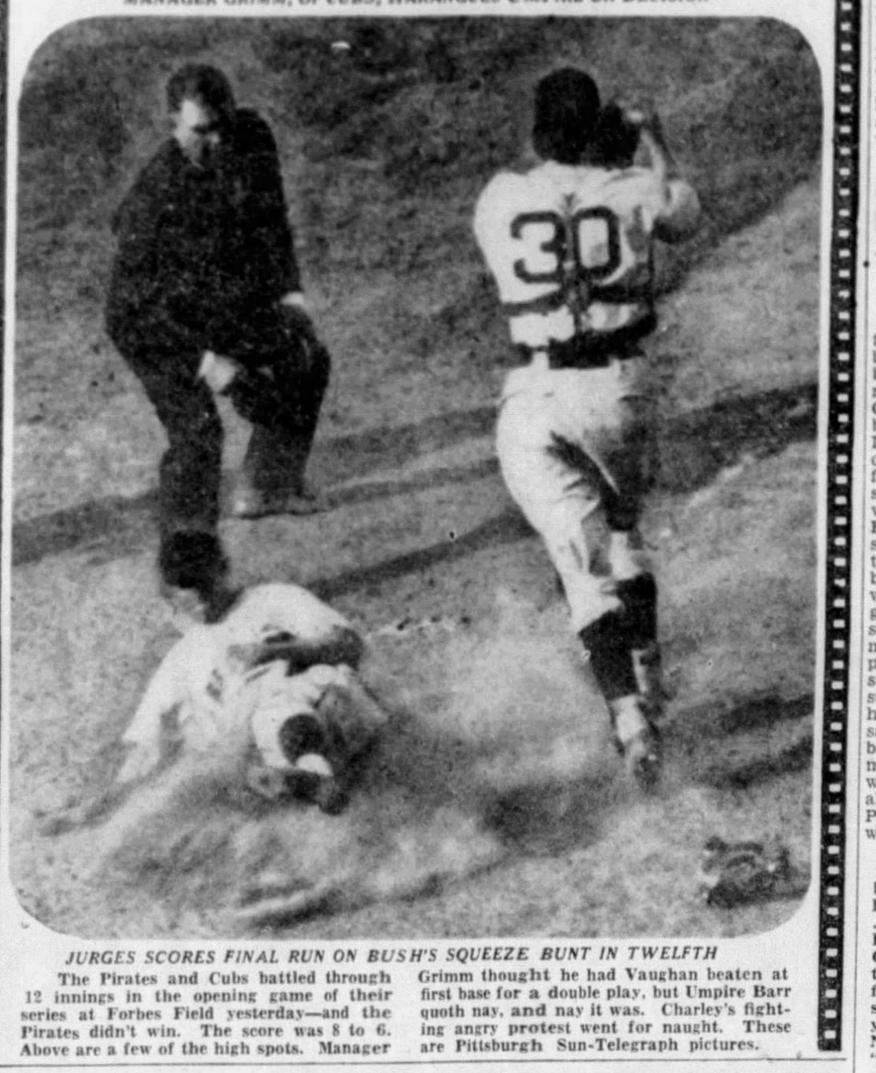
MANAGER GRIMM, OF CUBS, HARANGUES UMPIRE ON DECISION



JURGES SCORES FINAL RUN ON BUSH'S SQUEEZE BUNT IN TWELFTH

The Pirates and Cubs battled through 12 innings in the opening game of their series at Forbes Field yesterday—and the Pirates didn't win. The score was 8 to 6. Above are a few of the high spots. Manager Grimm thought he had Vaughan beaten at first base for a double play, but Umpire Barr quoth nay, and nay it was. Charley's fighting angry protest went for naught. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

CITY LEAGUE EXTENDS TIME FOR SIGNING

Everett Sweeny, president of the City Baseball League, announced today that the time for turning in players' contracts for the opening week of the league season has been extended until tomorrow night.

Yesterday was the original date for the turning in of players' names, but the league prexy realizes what managers have been up against in the matter of trying out players and extended the time. Books, Dormont and Homewood practically are set to go, but Beltzhoover, Mt. Oliver, Parmelee and the Vaughans must have practice sessions before a players' list can be set.

The city loop meets tomorrow night at the Hotel Henry at 8:30 o'clock and all contracts must be handed in at this time.

Walter Kimmick, former National League star, who played first base for Books last season, will be back with the Mounties this season. Kimmick reported to the Harrisburg club, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, but returned home today and will work out with Books at Olympia Park tonight. It also was announced that Frank Fess, a pitcher, has signed with Books.

Preceded by a parade and all the trimmings, the Bellevue Club will pry off the lid at Kendall Field with the Dormont Club, of the City League, providing the opposition. Burgess W. Chauncey Means will toss out the first ball. Casey will decorate the mound for Bellevue, with Jim Cavanaugh behind the bat. Billy Fuchs probably will start Lefty Richards, with George Lees catching.

SPORT Vignettes

A mother's plans may change the best-laid plans of the Zivic brothers, Eddie and Fritzie, local boxers, and their manager, Luke Carney . . . The brothers and Luke have been out in California for more than seven months, with Eddie and Fritzie boxing successfully, and they've become a bit homesick and were planning to get back here some time this month to campaign during the summer . . . But they're in for a surprise . . . Their mother left here on Friday for the Coast and says she will keep house for her boys and probably spend the remainder of her days there, in which event don't be surprised if all of the other Zivics, Jack and Pete and Joe and their families, wind up out there, too.

Mrs. Zivic

Mrs. Mary Zivic always has been a movie fan. . . . One of her favorites is Marie Dressler . . . For some time now she has had a yearning to go to California and see how the pictures are made and how these film people live. . . . And now she ha the chance. . . . Her two youngest sons are living in North Hollywood, and it's a "natural" for her.

Mrs. Zivic is 62 years old, her five boys are grown—Fritzie, the baby, will be 21 one week from today—and she's set on fulfilling her ambition to wind up out there with all of that climate she's heard and read so much about . . . . She's tickled pink with the success of Eddie and Fritzie on the Coast and thinks they can do better if they get some good home cooking. . . . And maybe then they'll like it so well they won't want to come back here. . . . At least, she's going to have her fling—at 62 . . . The boys' father died two years ago.—HARRY KECK.

To Put on Any Time to Go Almost Anywhere

Pattern 1804

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

If you want something to put on almost anytime and wear almost anywhere—this is your frock. And it is a gown in which you do not have to worry about your lines—the design does that for you. If you are a trifle larger above the waist than you care to be—who would know it under the cape? If it is the hips which give you concern—that point in the skirt takes inches off them! And for just general becomingness—you probably know just what a bit of lace or delicate lingerie at the throat does for a woman. In every way it is a very flattering gown, especially for the sheer fabrics in vogue.

Pattern 1804 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes 3⅞ yards 39 inch fabric and ⅛ yard 5½ inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE LATEST EDITION OF OUR PATTERN BOOK features all the best seasonal styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic. PRICE OF BOOK, 15 CENTS, BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Players are urged to clip and preserve the series.

RULE 17—Infield Fly.

1—An infield fly shall be called by an umpire immediately on any ball hit into the air which can be handled by an infielder before two are out, with first and second bases, or first, second and third bases occupied. When a ball has been declared an infield fly, the batter is out, no base-runner can advance, nor can a play be made on any base-runner.

2—An attempt to bunt which results in a fly ball is not an infield fly and the ball is dead as provided in Rule 15 Section J.

RULE 18—Legal Order of Bases.

1—A base-runner must touch each base in legal order—first, second, third and home—and when obliged to return, must touch them in reverse order, except when exempted by rule.

2—A base-runner can only acquire the right to a base by touching it before having been put out, and shall then be entitled to hold such base until he has legally touched the next base in order, or has been legally forced to vacate it for a succeeding base-runner.

3—A base-runner, having acquired legal title to a base, cannot run bases in reverse order, except when required to do so by rule. A runner violating this rule may be put out by being touched with the ball, or by the ball being held on the base he was entitled to hold.

4—In case a runner is being run down between bases, and two men occupy the same base, the man entitled to the base shall be the one who originally held it, and if both runners are touched with the ball while standing on the base, the other runner shall be declared out.

5—It is recommended that bases be made secure but if one is dislodged by a base-runner, he shall be called safe if he gains the position originally held by the base, or if he follows the base.

Rule 19.—When a Batsman Becomes a Base Runner.

A batsman becomes a base-runner:

1—Immediately after he makes a fair hit.

2—Immediately after four balls have been declared by the umpire.

3—If the catcher interferes with him or prevents him from striking at the ball.

4—If a fair ball strikes the person or the clothing of a player or umpire on fair ground before being touched by a fielder.

5—On a fourth ball, the batter shall take one base only, and shall not be permitted to advance another base until a succeeding play has been made. A throw to any player except the pitcher shall be considered a succeeding play.

Tomorrow—Base-Stealing and Base-Running.

CHAPTER LVIII.

A big Italian in a white apron and black curling hair, lifted crabs from an enormous crate where the creatures, alive and moving, were piled four feet deep. He took the things by one leg and tossed them into the huge, smoke-blackened cauldron that hubbled away on the open stove at the edge of the sidewalk with the red coals roaring underneath and the gray smoke blowing forth from a crude chimney erected on the side.

All along the curb, on both sides of the street, was a succession of these vast crates filled with crabs; these stoves with their steaming cauldrons adjoining wide counters, where the cooked crabs were arranged neatly in rows. A large sign declared "Very special! Fresh-cooked local crabs, 6 for $1." Automobiles were parked thickly, and to these machines boys rushed out with trays of oyster cocktail, clam chowder, lobster and shrimp.

It was Saturday afternoon. Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco was very busy. The catch of crab was phenomenal. Prices were cut. Boys kept darting from the sidewalk to the automobiles, shouting: "Crab today, lady? Fresh prawn?"

Pippin and Gregg walked back and forth along the narrow bit of sidewalk that was left between the street kitchens and the fish markets. They peered into the crates. Some of the crabs were very large, the bodies, independent of the long, thick legs, were eight and 10 inches across. The shells were a lovely tortoise-shell brown that turned red in the boiling. The crabs moved sleepily, but if you poked them suddenly, their eyes, which were extended on little mounds in the front of the head, slid out from the lids like black, fierce beads.

See Creatures of Sea

Gregg bought a bag of shrimps and absently pulled off the shells, now and then offering the delicacy to Pippin. He stopped before a table in front of one of the grottoes and stared a long time at an odd, hideous, sea creature while the fat, waddling Italian, black eyes and red lips flashing, kept tossing live crabs into the boiling water and humming softly: "La Donna e Mobile."

At last Gregg sighed, took Pippin's arm and walked to the end of a long wooden pier to which a hundred blue and white fishing boats were moored. They stooped to examine a small shark safely dead, its ugly mouth wide open as it lay alongside a glittering mound made of several hundred tiny, silver sardines.

They found a box where they sat while Gregg deftly pulled the shrimps from their many-legged shells. He ate and stared vindictively at the boats bobbing serenely in the harbor.

Pippin said: "That was an odd monster, wasn't it? The big eyes and the fine, thorny ridges all over its body. Wouldn't you hate to be swimming and find a hideous beast like that crawling beside you?"

"Where? I didn't see it."

"You didn't? Well—we stared at it for 15 minutes. I thought you were planning a shuddery mystery yarn with the Giant Spider Crab as the hero. Like the gorilla in 'Murders of Rue Morgue.'"

"I never saw any Spider Crab. I was thinking of my story. I can't get it to go. I've had the villain and the heroine standing on the precipice for three weeks. He won't hurl her off. The whole plot falls to pieces and there won't be any thrill—any blood-curdling suspense unless the girl's mangled body is found at the foot of that cliff."

"Why won't he hurl her over?"

Pippin Gives Him Idea

"He's fallen in love with her and spoiled everything. I created a perfectly callous, unimaginative villain and he's walked out on me, leaving this romantic sap who wants to kiss the girl when I need someone to kill her! A swell mystery gone wrong because I can't make my characters do what I've planned!"

"Couldn't you have a loose rock there? The girl, not realizing the villain is no longer a villain, sees the desire in his eyes and steps from him in terror. The ground gives—she goes hurtling to terrible death. The villain rushes down the trail, reaches her before she takes the last breath. He tells her of his love. She dies in his arms. The villain, though all new and clean inside, knows that his past will rise against him. He will be accused—hunted down. He flees—a tragic, hounded figure. He got the kiss but you get the corpse!"

Gregg rolled a cigaret until the tobacco shredded out; he lit it and took a few quick, excited puffs. "I think I have it! I'll mull that over." He looked at Pippin with a wide, happy grin, saying impulsively: "I should have talked it over with you long ago. Even when I don't take your ideas, you always suggest something that gives me a new clue. I'll sell this story for $500, Pippin. That brings the funds up to $1,300. It's a big swag."

"Do you think you can start on a tour of the world with little more than a thousand dollars, Gregg?"

"I'm not traveling de luxe. A pair of vagabonds can wander plenty far on $1,300. Also I've written to the editor of the newspaper in Hong Kong. I can probably get a job as a reporter. That's a great way to see the world and earn your living at the same time. You can also get a job on a newspaper."

"I thought you were going to support me."

Gregg stared at her fixedly: "I wish I could believe that it's only the money I lack! Bill attracts you, doesn't he, Pippin?

"He'd attract you even if he hadn't a dime. You've been dancing with him for the last three Saturdays. You're rather switching from Kevin, aren't you?"

"Do you think love is a merchandise, Gregg, that you can do up in a neat little bundle tied to another at will? I'm not in love with Bill; I'm not thinking of Kevin as you charge. He's not thinking of me. I've not seen him in two weeks.

Makes Analysis

"Why haven't you seen him?" demanded Gregg, suddenly angry. "I'll tell you why! He wasn't down on his knees bowing and scraping and making a grand fuss over you. He's got work to do and thinks of that and forgets to be the gay, gallant lover. Then along comes this prince of yours out of a fairy tale who rushes you off your feet with orchids and colored beads and trips in an airplane. It goes to your head! So you think you'll punish Kevin by ignoring him. You'll show him that other men appreciate you and lay the world at your feet! You don't go near your father's office for two Saturdays in succession. You'll teach him!"

Pippin's cheeks turned a fiery red. "I've been studying for finals. That's why I haven't been to the laboratory!"

Gregg looked out toward the bay where a flotilla of yachts, their white sails gleaming, bobbed on the blue rippling waters. He gave a short, unhappy laugh and took hold of Pippin's arm.

"Why shouldn't you take the fun that comes to you, Pippin? And what business is it of mine, which one you dance with since it isn't I? If I had your chance to go up in a plane, I'd take it! Heaven knows it wouldn't be for love!"

They walked home along the Marina, watching the sunset put a crown of flame on the head of Tamalpais while the far-flung waters turned from misty blue to darkest purple.

Gregg said, repentant: "But no one else loves the water and the hills in the same way as I do, Pippin. You can't enjoy scenery as much with another? Or a shrimp fresh from its shell?"

"I'm afraid I can't!"

"And you don't know of other things!"

They laughed and were carefree and friends again. But as Pippin dressed to go dancing with Bill, she thought with a little panic of Gregg's sharp analysis. Was she loving Bill to punish Kevin?

Dances With Bill

She went dancing that night with Bill. She wore a lei of pearly gardenias he brought. She loved the flowers and the laughing tenderness in his voice when he said, loiteringly: "Pippin—I love you!" Yet she was quiet and unhappy.

They sat in the car, watching the lighted ferry boats streaming into the piers between the dark, dreamily wooded hills of Sausalito. Bill had an arm about her; both her hands in his.

"Why are you troubled, Pippin?"

"Oh—on account of these examinations."

"I kissed you. You didn't kiss me back."

"I don't want to be serious, Bill. I told you I don't mean to fall in love."

"I've not asked you to love me, Pippin. I don't mean to. Just that you won't run off and marry another before I return."

"But I won't, Bill—it's the last thing I dream of doing."

"You wouldn't give me a promise not to, would you?"

"When will you be returning?"

"In six weeks—less if I can manage."

She said softly: "I can promise that."

"Pippin—do you really not want me to kiss you? Don't you think it's a nice, sweet thing to do?"

"Oh, I do! I like it but I know I shouldn't!"

He laughed happily: "You're very, very wrong on that, Pippin—you must know that you are."

She went into the house, her eyes shining and her cheeks flushed. Kevin stood in the little room off the hall.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party. Kevin disappoints Pippin, but saves a man's life. Bill arrives home and takes Pippin on airplane trip. They're forced to land in desolate country. They finally find a house and are driven back to town.

BATTLE OF SADOVA—THE END OF AUSTRIAN DOMINATION OVER GERMAN CONFEDERACY

The German states had been molded into a loose confederacy at the Congress of Vienna (1814-1815) with no other central power except the Diet at Frankfurt (annual or special) presided over by Austrian emperor. It was the great achievement of the Prussian Otto von Bismarck (1815-1898), the "Iron Chancellor," to weld the German states into an empire. First he acquired Schleswig-Holstein (1864) with the help of Austria; then he denied Austria her share and, in the ensuing war (1866), defeated her. The decisive battle was fought at Sadova. Above painting shows Prussian King William I embracing his son, Crown Prince Frederick William, after the battle.

Austria had to give up all interest in the German Confederacy, giving Prussia free hand (Treaty of Prague); she also lost Venetia to Italy, allied with Prussia.

Under the presidency of Prussia, a closer confederacy of 21 German states was formed; the remaining four southern independent sovereignties became secret allies against France, with which Bismarck foresaw a conflict. (World His.)

COMMISSION RULES ON DOUBTED ELECTION RETURNS—HAYES DECLARED PRESIDENT

The election campaign of 1876 was more momentous than any before, causing acts of violence. Republicans nominated Rutherford B. Hayes and William A. Wheeler; Democrats, Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendrick, for President and Vice President respectively. Returns showed 184 votes for Tilden, 172 for Hayes, not including those of Fla., La., S. C. and Ore. Each party charging fraud, recount of these was ordered, in presence of "visiting" statesmen from the North. Recounts differing, all were sent to U. S. Senate to be ruled upon by a newly created Electoral Commission (15 members, from House, Senate, Supreme Court; 8 proved to be Republicans, 7 Democrats). Above: Thomas W. Ferry, acting president of the Senate, announcing the decision of the commission in favor of Hayes and Wheeler. (U. S. History)

HEATING HOME—FIRE PLACE

Our bodies generate heat by burning food, part of which should be given off by radiation and conduction. Proper balance is obtained at about 68°-72° F. If temp. of room falls below 60° F., the house has to be heated individually by room or centrally from a heating plant. Oldest form of heating system used today is the fireplace. It is an open recess in the wall, at base of chimney, giving heat mostly by radiation. It is artistic and cheerful in effect, but least economical, since about 90% of the heat escapes through the chimney. Today, fireplaces are built chiefly for decorative purposes. The fuel may be wood, coal, gas. (Gen Science)

PLASMA—CLOTTING OF BLOOD

Plasma is the fluid of blood (contents above). It has an amber color.

If blood is shed, it clots in about 5 minutes to a jelly—like mass (above left); later clot shrinks, separates from the fluid "serum." Clotting is hastened by injury to blood vessels, contact with rough surface, temp. of above 116° F., venom of certain snakes. Clotting is retarded by contact with smooth lining of blood vessels, addition of citrates, oxalates, bile, organic ferments, certain snake venoms, deficiency of calcium, blood platelets, fibrinogen.

Persons whose blood does not clot sufficiently (hemophiliac) may bleed to death from a minor injury. (Gen. Science)

THE SCARLET LETTER

In this masterwork (publ. 1850) of the greatest American romancer, Nathaniel Hawthorne (1804-1864), the characters rise with tragic power from the somber background of the life of early New England settlers.

The aged and learned husband—held two years captive by Indians—finds his wife, Hester Prynne, with a baby in her arms in the Boston pillory. She was sentenced by the Puritan authorities of the 17th century also to wear the red letter "A," stamping her for life.

She lives with her child, Pearl, as object of contempt, but, devoting herself to works of mercy, wins respect.

The husband, after long search, traces the father of Pearl, the Rev. Arthur Dimmesdalle, who driven almost crazy by years of mental torture, makes public confession on the pillory and dies in Hester's arms. (American Literature)

PRODUCTION OF PIG IRON IN BLAST FURNACE

Pig iron is produced in the blast furnace from oxide ores reduced by carbon monoxide. Impurities, fused with the flux (limestone or sand) to slag, are removed through the cinder notch; the molten iron is led out at the metal tap.

Diagram above shows the characteristic process, reactions, raw materials, temperatures, products, in different sections of a blast furnace in making 1 long ton (2,240 lbs.) pig iron. This contains on an average 92% Fe, 3.6 % C, 0.9% Si, 0.8% Mn, 0.18% P, 0.03%S. Composition of pig iron varies greatly, depending on raw materials and furnace conditions. (Chemistry) 66-III-A

What's Apple Sauce in Latin?

New law will convict doctors who write prescriptions that druggists cannot read.

That's going to spoil the flavor of some of our best medicines.

Looks like the druggist is an accessory before the fact. He mixes things nobody can drink.

We never thought anybody took labels on bottles seriously since 1920.

A drugstore is always a mysterious institution. Especially the back room. You hand the clerk your laundry ticket that calls for pharmacist relief.

He toddles into the back of the cave growling softly to himself. He watches you through a hole in the partition. The medical rebus calls for a concoction of seven toxins and an equal number of viruses. A doctor is fair about their heiroglyphics. For every dose he prescribes he also mentions an antidote to neutralize it.

Now, the druggist can't read Latin word puzzles. But that doesn't stop him. He compares the prescription with the bottle labels until he gets one that resembles it. He then grabs the bottle and pours it into a thermos bottle.

After he has 14 various liquids in the bottle he shakes it up. Then he strains it through a cane bottom chair, runs it through a rubber boot with a hole in the toe and stirs until convinced the mixture is non-explosive. That's all because the original thesis was written in Latin.

If the doctor wrote it in English the patient could read it himself, and would discover that there was nothing wrong with him that a new pair of shoelaces wouldn't cure.

Doctors are smart. Why should they spend eight years in college and tell it all to a patient in five minutes?

Therefore, they write everything in Latin except their bills. And collection totals indicate they might as well be written in Latin too.

The new law is the first intimation we have had that a man can be punished for poor handwriting in a strange language. The doctor orders the mixture, the druggist fills it and you drink it. That's the rule and no law can make it work both ways.

No Economic Revolution

Unemployment Will Be Relieved by Business Leaders, Not "Professors"

The American people are becoming profoundly weary of the loose talk of economic revolution. They are surfeited with little make-believe "great men."

The COUNTRY IS INTENT, as never before, UPON RECOVERY—the recovery of normal trade activity. It never had much faith, and has lost even that, in the nostrums of the "professors."

Unemployment will be solved by jobs, and only restored business will provide them.

THE COUNTRY is NOW LOOKING to the MEN WHO HAVE SHOWN that they can MAKE EMPLOYMENT—jobs by the tens of thousands—who create and build up business enterprise, whose judgments are supported by solid achievement, whose views have met the test of practical experience—such men as Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., the president of the General Motors Corporation, whose speech in Boston on Thursday contained more good sense than anything that has come out of Washington for many months.

Mr. Sloan pleaded for a wholesome respect for the principles which we have been proud to call American principles.

Calling for continued support of the President, whose good intentions and the earnestness of whose endeavors are not in issue, Mr. Sloan distinguished between the POOLING OF OUR RESOURCES FOR ECONOMIC RECOVERY on the one hand, and THEIR SACRIFICE merely TO FORCE FUNDAMENTAL CHANGES of a permanent character which none of us can visualize with any assurance.

"We should attempt to distinguish emergency measures from proposals which are in an economic sense revolutionary in their implications," said Mr. Sloan. "Many of these proposals are not only contradictory to one another, but contradictory to long-accepted American principles."

The simple test is whether any measure or program under discussion or trial contributes to the well-being of the American worker. The American people are not interested in anything else. They will be inclined to agree with Mr. Sloan that our present troubles are due to the fact that there has NOT BEEN ENOUGH INCOME to distribute, rather than to the faulty distribution of this diminishing income.

The distribution now being atttempted by taxation and reckless expenditure is setting back recovery and injuring the nation. It is LIMITING OUR ABILITY to CREATE, as Mr. Sloan reminds us, through DESTROYING THE INCENTIVE TO CREATE.

He looks askance, as does every thoughtful man in the country, upon the formula for absorbing employment by the reduction of the hours of labor, as if the number of man-hours of labor is a fixed and definite thing, and unemployment, to be solved, needs only a division of the number of man-hours by the number of workers.

"No greater fallacy exists," says Mr. Sloan, quite truthfully.

And with this fallacy he ranks the recently evolved theory of the "Brain Trust" that the LESS WE PRODUCE the MORE PROSPEROUS we become.

The speech of Mr. Sloan was sane and salutary. Such views as he expressed are rapidly recovering the respect to which they are entitled.

Sound helmsmanship is coming back. The days of crazy steering are numbered.

Bring 'Old Ironsides'

The Frigate's Visit Would Arouse Interest in Waterway Development

The petition to Congress to authorize a cruise of the historic frigate Constitution, nicknamed "Old Ironsides," up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers to Pittsburgh, should have the hearty support of the people of this community.

The Constitution is an ocean-going vessel but of sufficiently light draft to permit it to ascend the rivers.

The proposal to send it to Pittsburgh brings to mind that ocean-going vessels were constructed here in the early days both for the United States Navy and the merchant marine.

Neville Craig tells in his "History of Pittsburgh" of the building of the naval vessels President Adams and Senator Ross in local yards in 1798 and 1799, when it was feared we were to have a war with France.

The late W. H. Stevenson found in his historical researches the interesting case of a merchant vessel built here which sailed to Leghorn, Italy, and which was pretty nearly seized as a pirate because the Italian port authorities, never having heard of Pittsburgh and denying there was such a port, declared the ship's papers were obviously forged.

The last time the port of Pittsburgh figured in Lloyd's reports of ship arrivals was in 1917, when the old Australian convict ship Success was towed up the river for exhibition purposes.

The coming of the Constitution would be interesting not only for sentimental reasons, but as a disclosure to the people in many parts of the country that Pittsburgh is located on navigable waters which have possibilities of useful development.

We are trying hard to persuade the federal government to establish storage reservoirs in the Monongahela and Allegheny valleys which would help to control floods and improve navigation. We ask for the extension of the navigable stage of the Allegheny as far as Olean, N. Y. And we urge the construction of a canal to connect the Ohio River with Lake Erie.

A visit of the old frigate would help to direct national attention to the desirability of these waterway improvements.

Politics in the Schools

Good Teachers' Positions Would Be More Secure With Fewer Districts

The strike of the Neville Township Junior High School pupils in protest against the dismissal of three of their teachers directs attention to a widespread evil that has resulted from the retention of the antiquated system under which Allegheny County has more than a hundred independent school districts.

Some of the school boards under this system use their authority for selfish political purposes instead of for the good of the schools. They find some pretext for getting rid of teachers, no matter how competent they may be, in order that they may put their friends and supporters in the positions. This is the charge in the Neville Township case. It may or may not be true in this particular case, but there is no doubt that school boards have been guilty of such tactics in some districts, and we suspect that this has been at the bottom of a number of the students' strikes.

Only last week Dr. James N. Rule, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, had to issue a warning to school boards that they were injuring the cause of education by dismissing good teachers whose homes were outside of the district and giving the jobs to others for the sole reason that they were local residents.

With consolidation of districts there would be less opportunity for this playing of petty politics, less opportunity for school directors to use school teachers' positions as political patronage, the spoils of victory at the polls.

PETITION AGAINST U. S. JOINING LEAGUE OF NATIONS AND WORLD COURT

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign affairs," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 1.—The permanent place Merlin H. Aylesworth holds as big chief of the radio is due largely to his silence. He broadcasts the world but keeps a still tongue himself. Outside of his wife, no one knows his thoughts, although he is at all times agreeable.

He listens to everybody and files away what he wants in a capable card-index mind, but expresses no opinions save at board meetings, when they count. Men keyed to high industrial pitch declare Aylesworth accomplishes more work than any three men of his rank. This despite harassments of chronic insomnia.

Aylesworth, born in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, almost 50 years ago, began life as a country lawyer in Colorado and was later identified in more impressive posts with public utilities. While he handles financial and executive affairs of the NBC he is no slouch as a picker of radio talent.

He salvaged Amos 'n' Andy out of the jinkle of small hookups in Chicago when they were working for coffee and cake. Like all small town boys whose fathers were church deacons, his nickname is "Deac." His diversion from work is golf, teaming up with his closest friend, Kent Cooper, the news chief.

Johnny Horgan, once a boy tenor of the Ohio river show boats, who became one of Cincinnati's best known hotel men, has cut loose from executive duties for a year to respond to a sentimental yearn to drift. In an automobile he will visit the scenes of his juvenile stage years, searching out those innocent vestiges that are life's foot-prints. Horgan, in his middle forties, is doing it in time. Most of us wait until too late.

I once crossed the Atlantic with a business man who had kept putting off a visit to his home in Wales from one year to another just to pile up a little more of what the world calls success. He was only going now because a letter informed him his mother was ill. Two days out he received a cable of her passing. It was too late. He remained on the boat at Southampton and came back to America.

At an occasional dinner place the waiters are young students helping to pay for tuition and board in this fashion. One I talked to last evening was from a city in Alabama, as his accent easily betrayed. He had a figure and a profile that would give Ronald Coleman and a few of the boys a twitch, plus that quality called personality. I lightly hinted a movie career which in no wise interested. He had been to but four movies in his life and saw nothing to them. He was a theological student whose career was already consecrated to spreading knowledge and religious comfort to the poor whites of the South. He was happy as all with honest impulses are happy. A happiness that is touching and cleansing. From his waiter's job he was going to a free midnight Bible class for young men. I went to an after-theater party where there was a deal of drinking, sophisticated banter, etc., but all evening I could not get that young man out of my mind. He was the sort of son I would like to have.

Nobody has even been able to get under the skin of Broadway like the late Renold Wolf, dramatic critic. Today there are, of course, Bugs Baer, Julius Tannen, Joe Frisco, Joe Cunningham — none of them a sap on his banquet feet. But they lack Wolf's thrusts. He sank the stiletto to the hilt and turned it with one quick movement. In his last trembling days when speech was difficult his mind remained brilliantly keen. I saw him being escorted about his old haunts by Eugene Kelcey Allen. He came into the New Amsterdam lobby, then a boiling point of theatrical give and take. He was on his way to pay a visit to Erlanger, and his ripple of comments from entrance to elevator not only peeled a lot of epidermis but had the whole foyer in a howl. Four days later he was gone.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Have We the Right to Shield Others?

The man was worthless. A weakling, probably a rascal, beneath his surface charm. Anyone with a particle of wordly experience could see that.

If the girl married him, her life would be wrecked. And she was such a fine youngster! Sweet, honest and brave, in spite of her modern wilfulness. Why did such splendid young lives have to ravel out in a misery of disillusion? Why must hers?

"It mustn't!" said Larua, the older woman. "I'll keep her from being hurt. I'll tell her the truth about him."

Then suddenly, some deeper wisdom within her asked:

"BUT CAN ONE STOP PEOPLE BEING HURT? AND HAD ONE BETTER?"

And Laura's thoughts went on: "In her experience all the richest and most valuable things were mixed up, somehow or other, with being hurt. Sooner or later everything that was nice hurt, as well. And directly from being hurt, it seemed to her, sprang all the qualities she valued most, in others or in herself—courage, a measure of insight and self-knowledge and the secret sense of strength, of the indistructibility of the human spirit in the face of disaster which is the most precious posession of all.

All these things could only be had at a price, and cash in advance at that—the price of being hurt again and again, and sometimes almost to the point of extinction.

"HAPPINESS WAS THE FLAUNTING, HONEY FLOWER OF THE SOUL; BUT THE ROOT WAS PAIN, AND THE TWIN FRUITS, KNOWLEDGE AND STRENGTH."

You'll find the story in Ann Bridge's "PEKIN PICNIC," a great book. You'll find the problem it portrays, every day, in your own life.

You, too, would like to save people from hurt. Those you love—your youngster; your husband or wife; a foolish friend. Again and again you've tried to save them from pain. Some outer bad fortune or, harder yet to bear, the evil consequences of their own weakness.

Generally you've made a mess of things, haven't you? Gotten no thanks from anyone. Even been told that you were a meddler—that you were "just trying to run things." Yet you've persisted. For surely it was your DUTY to save that dear one from misery. BUT WAS IT?

HAVE YOU EVEN A RIGHT TO PROTECT THE OTHER FELLOW FROM P'IN?

You wouldn't have a right to deprive him of air, food, water.

BUT ISN'T ROUGH EXPERIENCE AS ESSENTIAL TO HEALTHY GROWTH AS AIR, FOOD OR WATER?

Disillusionment—that's a cruel experience. We shrink from it. We're mighty sorry for ourselves, mighty bitter at life, when disillusionment happens to us.

BUT ISN'T DISILLUSION EXACTLY THE MEDICINE FOR WHAT AILS MOST OF US?

Wouldn't we all get on much faster, and be 100 per cent more useful, if some one demolished many of our pet illusions and ideals.

What are illusions and ideals, anyway? Divine tip-offs? We act as if they were, but usually they are Anything But.

OUR ILLUSIONS AND IDEALS ARE PRETTY, PERSONAL PICTURES OF WHAT LIFE IS AND HOW LIFE SHOULD BE RUN.

Sometimes we've invented these pictures ourselves. Sometimes they've been handed on to us by Maudlin Mammas and Plantitudinous Papas. Sometimes they are wish-pictures. Sometimes they are carefully concocted escapes from reality.

BUT NINE TIMES OUT OF 10 THEY ARE FATUOUS AND FANTASTIC, WITH LITTLE OR NO RELATION TO THE TRUTH—UTTERLY COCKEYED.

Then why do we cling to them so fiercely; grive so deeply when we are robbed of them? Because we are childish and cowardly, and our illusions and ideals are comforting and convenient.

What are illusions? That's what most of them are. Why is pain? PAIN IS THE PENALTY OF WISING UP, GROWING UP, BEING ROBBED OF OUR TOYS AND OUR HIDE-OUTS, BEING FORCED TO STAND ALONE AND THINK FOR OURSELVES, AS ADULTS SHOULD THINK AND STAND.

What happens if we're shielded from all pain; if our illusions are never shattered; if our ideals never change?

DEATH HAPPENS. For we continue to be children—unborn children wrapped in the soft, protective darkness of our own fantasies, utterly unable to face life with its grim and glorious realities.

That's what happens if you shield another from toughening experience, or the unpleasant consequences of his or her own cussedness.

THEN IS IT YOUR DUTY—HAVE YOU THE RIGHT—TO SAVE ANOTHER PAIN?

You Can't Beat the Game

After a few years of daily scrapping, a man doesn't care WHAT a woman thinks about him, so long as she can't prove it before a judge.

You can't beat the game! The first crowd of college students who discovered that going bare-headed would save the hair from falling out are already beginning to ask the barber to use a little hair-tonic on "that thin spot" at the crown.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

You Have Gone On

I have your memory, nothing more
Of you is left me from the time
Since you came singing through my door
And set my prose of life to rhyme.

You have gone on, with song still sweet
Upon your lips and in your breast;
You have gone past with dancing feet,
A thing too fair to be possessed.

But still your image dwells with me,
You greet me from the hearth, the stair,
And, though I wander, land and sea,
In each new place I find you there.

You have gone on, a singing lass
Lost somewhere in the wide world's maze;
But something of you will not pass
From out my heart through all my days.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There is too much talk about money and expenses in most homes.

The head of the house, in keeping with most other persons, has had a considerable decrease in income and talks about it most of the time.

If the home folk are doing all they can to keep down the expenses they should not be reminded constantly that economy is necessary.

Nor should they be compelled to listen to facts about money when they are pretty thoroughly conversant with depression finances.

They may not appear to be worried, but they are fully aware of the serious conditions and are trying to do what they can to meet requirements.

Now, old man, will you try to talk about something else for a while?

The family is getting mighty tired of your "harping" on one subject.

It's probable that you personally are not doing as much as you should to cut down demands on the family income.

If you talked less about the depression your mind would be open to see improvements.

Incidentally, your family would be much happier.

Steam From a Volcano Is Harnessed in Italy—The Mysterious Wild Horses of the Far West.

By Edwin C. Hill

A FEW MILES of land and water, not to say oceans and continents, lie between the village of Larderello in the hills of Tuscany and the village of Niaufou, which is on the coral island of that same name in the southwestern Pacific. And yet, they are two places in the world with one rare distinction in common. It is that they are built on living volcanoes which, any day or any hour, may blow either or both off the face of the earth.

However, familiarity has bred a healthy contempt in Larderello and Niaufou. The Italians for their part are making the volcano work for them in a most practical way. Bella Italia is notably lacking in coal, and the Tuscans, with an ingenuity that is commendable, have harnessed the steam from numerous jets of old Larderello. Miles of pipe carry this steam to the dynamoes which supply electricity to the whole district of Pisa.

The Polynesians of Niaufou have, on the other hand, no need for turbines or horsepower. They live there, the 1,200 of them, because they like it, or because there is no place else to go. The few white residents are either in the service of His Majesty George V of England, or are traders.

No Horses Here Before Columbus

THE WILD horses of our far West are probably an unsolved mystery. The horse did not exist in the New World before the arrival of the Spanish conquistadores and their cavalry in the sixteenth century. It is beyond doubt that the Peruvians had never seen a horse before Pizarro, nor the Mexicans before Cortez. The chroniclers of that time are unanimous on the subject. So we are told, at least, by Sciences et Voyages, a periodical of Paris. Herrera, who is the most reliable of them, relates that nothing caused greater surprise to the peoples of New Spain than the horses of the Spaniards.

At first, the natives believed horse and rider to be one, a monster like the centaur of the ancient Greeks. They offered the horses meat and bread for food, and although they soon realized their mistake, they continued to believe that the horses ate men on the battlefields and neighed when they wanted their prey. More or less the same ideas prevailed on the Northern American continent. When Cortez was compelled to flee from Mexico, he left behind about 50 horses and mares. Abandoned by the natives to their own fate, the animals soon reverted to their primitive wild condition.

Fifty years later there were not 50 but a few thousand wild horses scattered in groups over the Mexican praries. Because of their great number they attracted the attention of the nomad tribes of the region. The Indians began by capturing a few and taming them. Soon the Comanches ranked with the best horsemen in the world, also the Sioux and Cheyennes. The wild horse found in America today is neither a very handsome nor an otherwise prosperous creature.

When the first American settlers penetrated the west, they found rather ugly animals with big heads, many of them piebald and wall-eyed, and with other typical marks of horse degeneracy. Since then, however, the stock has improved greatly, thanks to the crossings with the beautiful Anglo-Norman halfbreeds, imported by the settlers and stolen by the Indians, which mingled with the wild horses.

All of the wild horses now living on the American continent are descendants of domestic breeds and there is not much of the real wild horse in them. The territory on which they live becomes smaller and smaller as it is invaded by civilization, and the wild horses are dropping the habits that made them so interesting to the scientist.

* * *

Indians Treat Horses Kindly

AS IN the past, these horses, when left alone, assemble in groups of about 30 individuals under the leadership of a ferocious stallion, which soon does away with all rivals. By instinct these herds repair to the districts that are best suited to meet their needs and remain there as long as the pasturages yield the necessary food. From time to time these groups are broken up by their owners, for counting or capturing purposes, but as soon as these operations are finished, the horses reassemble in the old order.

The American wild horse is really a docile and good-natured creature. Even with the prairie Indians, the wild horse proves a docile and obedient animal, because the Indians disdain the rough methods of their more civilized neighbors. To be sure, the Comanches are rough when they are capturing a horse. Once this is over, however, the horse is treated with kindness and as a result, is more intelligent and better able to take care of itself in critical circumstances than the horse broken by a cowboy.

When not ill-treated, the domesticated wild horse has quite well-developed senses. Its sight is weak, as is that of any horse, but in return smell and hearing are superior to those of the domestic horse. Its memory is excellent and some of these horses have been known to find a road upon which they had walked once, after an absence of several years.

On the whole, the American wild horse is an interesting survival of the past which gives us some idea of what wild life must have been like on that continent in ancient times.

U. S. Saves Taxpayers Cash On Moscow Embassy

By James T. Williams, Jr.

MISINFORMATION sometimes travels as fast as bad news. An entirely erroneous report alleging extravagant expenditures by the Roosevelt administration in Moscow was recently broadcast to the country from the federal city.

Many loyal Americans—including the Daughters of the American Revolution—were mislead by these allegations into believing that their government is spending a million and a quarter dollars to build a palatial residence at Moscow for the exclusive use of the American ambassador to Russia. In the same erroneous report, it was also alleged that it would cost $400,000 annually to maintain this mythical mansion.

Congressman Oliver has performed a timely service in exposing the incorrectness of these assertions. He recently read into the Congressional Record the facts in the case and in the light of the facts made a convincing defense of the policy of American government-owned buildings for the use of its foreign missions.

* * *

Quarters for 70 Americans

WHAT ARE the facts about our new embassy in Moscow? The facts are that recently the United States opened a new business in Moscow—the business of maintaining friendly relations with Russia. President Roosevelt nominated and the Senate confirmed an American ambassador to Russia, with 40 other diplomatic and consular officers to assist him. More must be sent as our business with Russia increases.

Because these diplomatic and consular officers and other official representatives of the American government who have been and will be ordered to the Russian capital are human beings rather than birds of the air or lilies of the field, they must have offices in which to work by day and shelter in which to sleep at night.

Today Moscow is a city of four million people. They are uncomfortably crowded into living quarters for one and a half million. For years to come, therefore, rented quarters will be inadequate and very expensive. Our government is now obliged to pay $51,000 a year for the rental of buildings for the use of its representatives in Moscow.

As a business proposition, President Roosevelt recommended and Congress promptly voted an appropriation of $1,165,000 to construct American government offices and living quarters in Moscow not for one American Ambassador but for 70 loyal American men and women who will work in our Moscow factory of friendly relations.

The annual interest charge on $1,156,000 at 3½ per cent is $40,775, which is considerably less than the $51,000 our government is now paying in rent. When the government moves into its own buildings, it will save the rental charge of the buildings which its missions now occupy. By the expenditure of $40,775 a year, $51,000 a year will be saved. The net saving will be $10,225 annually. Is it extravagant to save this amount each year? A hard-headed American business man wouldn't think so.

* * *

American Materials Will Be Used

BUT THERE is another side to the investment in American buildings in Moscow which the President and Congress have recently made that will appeal to the common sense of the nation.

The Russian people are badly in need of building materials of all kinds. For our government buildings soon to be constructed in Moscow, American materials and American tools were bought in this country and shipped over to the Russian capital. American carpenters in the United States will fabricate all woodwork for these buildings. American factories will produce the wires, the pipes, the heating plant, the radiators, paint, furniture, carpets and curtains. These products of American industry will be shipped as far as Leningrad in American ships. At Moscow they will be installed under American supervisors of construction.

Of the total amount voted for American government offices and living quarters in Moscow for the nearly 100 Americans who represent our government at the Russian capital approximately $700,000 will be spent on American industry.

The expenditure will give employment at home to many Americans. It will give our factories a permanent exhibition of American products in the capital of the country which may be our best market for years to come. The Russians have already manifested their liking for American products. They want to see and know more about them.

Thus by satisfying an American necessity in Moscow, the President and the Congress, in ordering the construction of suitable office buildings and living quarters for our representatives at the Russian capital, are benefitting American industry at home and helping to make a new market for its products abroad. This has been done in other capitals. It ought to be done in every foreign capital at which the American government is represented.
